The Bonus, String Attached.
Genius Hard to Recognize.
Faces That Smile.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

CHICAGO, June 16.

THE HOUSE yesterday voted IMMEDIATE CASH PAYMENT OF THE TWO THOUSAND FOUR HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS BONUS CERTIFICATES.

Veterans would have preferred jobs; although spending two and a half billion dollars cash among the merchants, big and little, would be a wonderful thing for business revival.

Unfortunately, it is necessary to warn veterans that the bonus so quickly voted in the lower House will hardly become a reality.

There are those who believed that paying the bonus with money printed by this government would in some way offend our national fetish GOLD. We sent tens of billions to Europe, without destroying the gold standard. But when it comes to paying men that we also sent to Europe, that is different.

TODAY'S PAPERS will tell you about the Republican prohibition plank. It is hard to please wets and drys with the same plank, and that is the problem.

The plan, now, is to let each state decide for itself whether it prefers ice water, beer or light wine. Some think the INDIVIDUAL should be allowed to decide that for himself, but under our "free government" the individual becomes less and less important.

THAT ANCIENT lady, the Chicago Tribune, is carrying on something frightful. On the front page Lenin very gory, is sitting in Lincoln's place. His name replaces that of Lincoln scratched out. Piles of corpses lie around, presumably those of "the rich" that have been first "socked" and then "soaked."

The front page editorial says:

"The national conventions this year may be the last ones held in the United States by a free people."

IT IS SOME consolation to know that a nation with too much of everything except common sense and courage, that doesn't know how to use them too much, deserves to lose its freedom.

Suppose we had some REAL trouble, for instance the "black death" that in the middle ages killed one quarter of Europe's population? That would mean a million and a half dead in Greater New York. Hundreds of thousands in Chicago, THIRTY MILLIONS THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES.

LENIN'S IDEAS will not rule here, Lincoln's name will not be rubbed out, and this country will not lose its freedom, for a while, even if it does have to give half its annual income to national and local government taxes.

The people themselves and individuals chosen by them may have to use their brains and do something. But that will not be such a terrible calamity.

ABOUT PROHIBITION, it is certain that the Eighteenth Amendment will not leave the Constitution. That would require votes of thirty-six states and you could not get thirty-six.

Some suggest "nullification," living under prohibition, paying no attention to it. But that would mean living on a bootleg basis, millions of Americans drinking poisonous concoctions of bootleggers and stuff, even worse, made at home.

ONE WAY out might be acceptable. The prohibition amendment says intoxicating liquor must not be made or sold, and orders Congress to prevent it. The Volstead "one half of one per cent" act is the law now.

Perhaps that could be changed to read that things intoxicating, within each state, are such things as the state itself declares to be intoxicating. If Wisconsin says that five per cent beer is not intoxicating, five per cent beer becomes legal in Wisconsin.

If California says twelve per cent wine is not intoxicating, California may drink that wine legally, and so through the list of states.

THE DIFFICULTY is that the Republican party, while it feels compelled to throw some kind of a sop to the wet Cerberus, doesn't like Cerberus, and wishes it could throw him a sop dipped in carbolic acid.

The Republican party knows that the prohibition movement is its annex, packed with votes. And while here and there some Republicans are as wet as the eave of the winds, the heart of the Republican party is dry.

IT IS INTERESTING to study faces of delegates in long rows. The majority, smiling, seem to say:

"This may be somebody's funeral, but not mine."

COUNTY SPAN VANISHED, QUIZ TOLD

Bridge Disappearance Bared At Probe; More Padding Of Payrolls Is Charged

The county audit probe came to a sudden halt today after three witnesses had been quizzed by Leo Riordan, county investigator, and Assistant District Attorney Earl T. Adair. During the brief session it was declared that a 60-foot bridge over Lowrie's Run, near Camp Horne, had mysteriously disappeared; that the County Road Department was flooded with political appointees who refused to work, and that Earl Sams, Hill district constable, was carried on the county payroll as a laborer.

Riordan announced that the quiz would be resumed again at the call of Assistant County Solicitor Ralph Frank. Riordan explained that he wanted more time to check statements already made and to have auditors go over payroll records and time books. He said he expected to reveal additional payroll padding.

QUIZZED ABOUT BRIDGE

While questioning a county road foreman from No. 1 Division, near Emsworth, Riordan asked:

"Do you have any knowledge of a 60-foot bridge disappear-

BOGUS MONEY TRAPS THREE

Three men, flush with counterfeit $10 bills, were trapped in the dark of the Hill district early today by two secret service operatives.

The operatives, posing as customers, had agreed to buy some of the counterfeits. And when the three appeared, at Breckenridge and Reed streets, they were arrested by Operatives Fred Gruber and John Kettl and Police Lieut. L. A. Neff.

One tried to escape, but failed. More than 150 counterfeits were found on their persons.

The operatives then hurried to a small houseboat in the Allegheny River, near Eleventh street, where the prisoners have been living, and found 40 more fake notes.

W. A. Landvoigt, chief of the operatives, said these spurious bills, poor specimens, have been in circulation in Pittsburgh for a week.

The prisoners were listed as Frank Gharass, 32; Vasil Gorgevich, 39, and Steve Vasileff, 34, recently of Toledo, O.

THE PROBLEM

EXPENDITURES for relief work in Pittsburgh and Allegheny county now total $110,000 weekly and are continually mounting, threatening to exhaust all relief funds, the Allegheny County Emergency Association points out.

THE REMEDY

A $5,000,000,000 bond issue by the United States to build great public works, employ several million men, start the nation back to prosperity.

BONUS LOSES FIRST TEST IN SENATE

Finance Committee Rejects Bill, 14-2; Veterans Say They'll 'Squat' in Avenue

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(AP.)—The $2,400,000,000 cash bonus bill was voted adversely today by the Senate Finance Committee as nearly 2,000 of the veterans camping here threatened to become "squatters in the middle of Pennsylvania avenue" if they were evicted from a building they are occupying.

A committee of 50, headed by George Alman, deposed commander-in-chief of the army and now billeting officer, converged on police headquarters and protested the evacuation order.

QUARTERS LACKING

Capt. William G. Stott, police officer supervising the veterans, told Alman fire and engineer officers had ordered them out and that he did not know where the men could be quartered.

Alman said heatedly:

"The men here have been soft peddling and there is going to be a change mighty quickly."

The Captain eyed the group and replied:

"All right. The Police Department is equal to any emergency. I repeat the Police Department is equal to any emergency."

Alman then told Stott that if the evacuation was carried out the men would become "squatters." He said the Fire Department had threatened to use tear gas to force the men from the building.

The committee sullenly left to consult the main body of veterans.

Early in the day, the Senate Finance Committee voted 14 to 2 against the bonus measure as hundreds of the veterans looked down from packed galleries.

PREDICT DEFEAT

Senate leaders forecast the bill, which passed the House yesterday, would be defeated, and President Hoover has promised a veto if it reaches him for action.

Soon after the committee acted in a brief session, Chairman Smoot (Rep.), Utah, asked the Senate to begin consideration of the legislation immediately, but objection was raised by Senator Thomas (Dem.), of Oklahoma, a friend of the measure, on the ground the Senators had not had sufficient time to study the bill.

After some discussion, Smoot asked Thomas if he was willing to consider the bill tomorrow. Thomas replied:

80TH VETS FORM

Forty World War veterans, members of the 80th Division, A. E. F., all with their discharge papers, were moving on Washington by truck today to join the thousands of ex-service men now there to demand jobs or immediate payment of the bonus.

The men gathered at Exposition Park, North Side, under Raymond A. Klick, of Overbrook; T. B. Fitzsimmons, of Hazelwood, and R. R. Dickinson.

Klick had returned from Washington to recruit reinforcements, especially from the Eightieth.

The latest detachment had two trucks, one for the men, the other for food and camping supplies.

Klick said a petition would be presented to Mayor Charles H. Kline asking a permit for a tag day, the proceeds to be used to finance Pittsburgh bonus marchers.

G.O.P. Parade Around Hall Just a Sham

—By WILL ROGERS—

CHICAGO, June 16.—Well, they met again yesterday. There was no way of preventing it. They all had their tickets and their badges and the chairs was there, so they just as well use all of em. Yes sir, everything was there but the performers.

The curtain went up. Then a man announced that the show would go on at 8 o'clock at night. Course they filled in with a few little acts, and a "sham" parade. You've heard of sham battles where they imitate a battle. Well, this was a parade where they imitated a parade.

Bert Snell, an old friend of mine, by the way, that I used to know and meet in Longworth's office when I hung out there, well, Bert went home Tuesday night after the keynote speech, and he got to thinking of a lot of things that Dickinson hadn't called the Democrats that day. Nobody else could, but Bert did. He has known 'em longer than most of us.

And so yesterday, during a lull when the Ohio pallbearers wasn't singing the blues, why Bert jumped to the microphone and he showed those 1,100 Republican postmasters seated as delegates

3 Killed, 4 Injured by Lightning

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 16.—Three small boys were killed, three others severely injured and a middle-aged man taken to the Youngstown Hospital near death, according to physicians there, after being struck by lightning during a terrific rain and electric storm which struck the Mahoning Valley shortly after noon today.

The boys, all between 11 and 13 years old, were fishing at Sun Fish Park, near Struthers, their home town. They took refuge under a huge tree which was struck by the lightning.

Pennsylvania Group Lines Up Against Hoover Plank

By MARK SHIELDS
Political Editor

STADIUM, Chicago, Ill., June 16.—State Chairman Edward Martin and Senator John J. McClure told the Allegheny caucus today that the delegates would go back home and tell their people they had got what they wanted, a chance to vote for repeal of prohibition.

There was, however, an air of apology for the platform statement on prohibition, Martin said he would rather be wrong than not give support to President Hoover. This was a comment on the fact that the prohibition plank, which many delegates consider a straddle, was the direct production of the President. Martin last night voted for the Bingham repeal plank, rejected by the majority of the delegates.

Many of the delegates planned to take trains for home tonight, though some intend to stay in Chicago for the remainder of the week.

In the Pennsylvania delegation this morning it was reported that a few more votes for the Hoover plank could have been secured if needed. Martin received word from administration leaders that they had sufficient votes to approve the platform as approved by the President.

Moonlight Bather's Body Recovered

The body of Walter Gibson, 17, of Rosedale, Pa., drowned while on a moonlight bathing party near Verona with two girls and another youth, was recovered today, a short distance from where he sank, in the Allegheny River last night.

His companions, John S. Brule, 20, of 619 South avenue, Wilkinsburg, and Irene, 17, and Nellie Kelly, 18, of 308 Main street, Oakmont, made futile efforts to save him.

J. Barleycorn Unwelcome at G. O. P. Meet

—By FLOYD GIBBONS—

Famous War Correspondent

CHICAGO, June 16.—Hello everybody.

Well, all you folks back home, those 2,000 delegates and alternates you sent to the Chicago convention made a night of it.

It was the biggest night since the country went dry 12 years ago. And like that historic national bust, the thing that kept all those boys and girls out on West Madison street most of last night was liquor.

Old John Barleycorn showed his face in polite company for the first time in years when those delegates came in for supper. Yes, sir, he got cheers. Yes, and boos, too. But he was the most important person at that Stadium party.

Anyway, all of those delegates had remorse this morning. Part of them were sorry they didn't throw old John out before he got a grip on the speaker's platform rail. Others felt he ought to have been given a still better break. And the rest of them—the friends of the administration—are sorry

EX-SENATOR ATTEMPTS TO NAME COOLIDGE; TOSSED OUT BULLETIN

By BYRON PRICE

CHICAGO STADIUM, June 16.—(AP.)—The Republican party, in noisy and demonstration-tossed convention assembled, gave a new pledge of support today to President Hoover as former Senator Joseph I. France, of Maryland, sought vainly to nominate Calvin Coolidge for president.

Police escorted him forcibly from the speaker's platform after he had engaged in a struggle there with officials.

Reaching at last the one item of its whole bill on which there was substantial unanimity—renomination of the President—the convention had marched in a long and brilliant parade in his honor, with the standards of the states crowding one another thickly for places in line, after Joseph L. Scott, of Los Angeles, making the Hoover nominating speech, concluded with a tribute to the leadership of the Californian who sits in the White House.

Then Dr. France was put in nomination by L. B. Sandblast, of Portland, Ore., a state in which France won the primary election.

A big man, dressed in black, Sandblast read a speech quoting from some of the speeches of the Marylander, and praising them. He did not, however, attack Hoover.

DISORDER FLARES

Before he got very far the crowd began to call on him to name his man. He went on amid some disorder.

Dr. France himself had been seated just back of the speaker. On the conclusion of Sandblast's speech, France advanced to the front, and asked permission to address the convention.

Snell refused to recognize him, as he was not a delegate. France declared he wanted to make a nominating speech for Calvin Coolidge, asserting:

"I insist on my rights."

Almost immediately France was surrounded by several policemen. Two of them presently took him by the arms and escorted him away from the speaker's stand and down the steps out of sight of the crowd.

The nominations meantime had been closed, and Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, of Louisville, Ky., was recognized to second the nomination of President Hoover.

The delegates had come together in the stadium weary and disturbed, nursing the bruises of a session which saw the party platform, with a submission plank on prohibition, adopted in the early morning, only after repealists had rolled up a strength that surprised party captains.

LEADERS CONFER

Much quiet consultation was going on among state leaders, and of course a Vice Presidential nomination never is a certainty until the result of the balloting has been announced; but many administration commanders were at work for Curtis, and the field against him seemed to be fading away.

Despite a late start, convention officials hoped to have it all over and check out of the stadium for

Friends Say Briand Left Only $3,440

PARIS, June 16.—(AP.)—The late Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, died comparatively poor, the newspaper L'Oeuvre said today, in a protest against insinuations by enemies of the former foreign minister that he accumulated a fortune while serving France.

Only 6,000 francs ($240) was found in his home after his death, it said, and he had about $3,200 in the bank.

HIGHLIGHTS OF PLATFORM

CHICAGO, June 16.—(INS.)—The Republican platform for 1932 in a nutshell:

PROHIBITION—Submission of a new amendment, through state conventions, permitting vote on substitution of federal regulation of the liquor traffic for the Eighteenth Amendment.

POLITICS—Condemns "appalling incapacity" of Democratic leadership in crisis and demands party followers keep insurgents at home.

TARIFF—Affirms protective principle, defends flexible tariff law and extension of protection to farm, forest, mining and oil products.

VETERANS—Pledges generous aid to disabled soldiers.

WORLD COURT—Favors early adherence but silent as to terms.

ARMAMENTS—Urges armament reductions, but insists on navy equal to any in world, while opposing any further slash in army.

FAR EAST—Denies right of Japan to acquire territory in China by force and asks right to attend conference if Kellogg pact is violated.

LATIN AMERICA—Promises early withdrawal of Marines from Nicaragua.

LABOR—Declares for principle of high wages. Collective bargaining and a "shorter work week," but silent on 5-day week.

PUBLIC UTILITIES—Favors control of interstate utilities.

PARTY RANKS NURSING BRUISES

Convention Delegates Set To Renominate Hoover; Curtis Opposition Fades

The galleries were pretty sparsely occupied again. Even some of the delegates didn't trouble to come to the hall until long after the convening hour. In many ways, in spite of the noise and color of the big Hoover push, the session was like an anti-climax to the roaring and disorderly midnight meeting.

It had been years since a Republican convention witnessed so spectacular a division of party sentiment as it did on the prohibition question, and the closeness of the vote left ground for earnest reflection.

Out of a delegate total of 1,154, the plank that would have pledged submission of a straight repeal amendment mustered 472 votes, with 681 against it, and only one not voting.

The only plank in the whole platform contested on the convention floor, the prohibition declaration, had a field day all to itself. A dozen speakers, including some of the ablest in the party, stirred echoes in the vast stadium for more than two hours, while galleries, filled for the first time since the convention began, joined in with cheers and boos so riotous that the party officials threatened twice to clear the offenders out.

It was Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, the tallest and one of the slenderest members of the Senate, who proposed the repealer and raised his tall, white-thatched form on the platform twice, to open and close the debate. He was seconded, among others, by the veteran repeal advocate, Nicholas Murray Butler, of New York. Both of them declared nobody could figure out what the submission plank brought in by the platform committee, and eventually adopted, really meant.

PLEA BY MILLS

With full voice and impressive gesture, Ogden Mills, President Hoover's Secretary of the Treasury, pleaded against repeal. James R. Garfield, of Ohio, son of President Garfield, appeared as the committee chairman to defend the plank drafted after long days and nights of conference, and much telephoning to the White House. John L. McNab, of San Francisco, closing for the committee plank, declared it was a question of standing by the President, and was both cheered and booed for saying it.

Altogether, it was just what both drys and anti-drys had predicted—an old-fashioned, roaring head-on collision of sentiment and of wits.

When the roll was called, it was for the most part the big Eastern states, led by impressive blocs from New York and Pennsylvania that pushed the repeal total up to so great a figure. Only the little Idaho delegation, with an alternate sitting in the place of the absent Senator Borah, insisted on being wholly and irreconciably dry, announcing their state opposed both repeal and submission.

The rollcall over, the platform itself including the submission plank was adopted by acclamation.

DISSATISFACTION

A deep-throated chorus of "Noes" testified to the dissatisfaction of the defeated Binghamites, but of course there was no doubt where the majority lay. It was after 1 o'clock in the morning before it was all over, although the session had begun shortly after 9.

The platform contained no real surprises. The delegates had listened patiently and respectfully to its reading, applauding a good phrase here and there in praise of the tariff, the administration's reconstruction policies and other good Republican doctrine. It was in the prohibition plank almost alone that they were interested.

It was 11:43 a. m. when the convention was called to order today by Chairman Snell. Everybody stood and sang a stanza of "America."

Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman, of St. Louis, Mo., delivered the opening prayer. He prayed that America, "with faith in humanity and with idealism in our souls," might carry on the heritage of the ages.

PROCEEDINGS SPEEDED

Snell cut a corner by not ordering the call of the roll for nominations for President. He merely announced that the time for receiving nominations had arrived, and recognized Scott, picked weeks ago to make the nominating speech for President Hoover.

The convention gave Scott a hand as he began to read in a big voice that carried out to the far corners.

He was applauded time after time as he proceeded, but the really big demonstration was reserved for the end of the speech.

California, with a front seat just to the left of the chairman, set it off. When Scott concluded with an oratorical flourish, saving the name of Hoover, after custom, until the last, his fellow Californians came to their feet instantly.

The witness replied that he knew nothing of it.

Riordan declared:

"Well, this bridge disappeared and we are going to find it."

Another foreman from No. 4 Division, at McKeesport, stated that at present he has only 12 men working on his gang. Before the last election he said that he had as high as 178 men on his gang and that he had a difficult time finding work to keep them busy. The witness said:

"Most of the men who were sent out took the position that they were to be there only for a short time and that they were to receive better jobs. They all admitted they would not stay and most of them were lazy."

NEVER SEEN WORKING

The same witness was asked by Riordan if he knew that Constable Sams was working as a laborer at McKeesport. He answered that he had seen Sams about the headquarters but had never noticed him working.

Riordan then stated that Sams was carried on the payroll as a laborer.

Another witness said that the county had once graded and paved a road in Liberty Borough.

The County Commissioners have held up payment of $25,196 due the Fort Pitt Bridge Company on the new Boston Bridge until defects have been corrected in the Thirty-first Street Bridge, built four years ago.

According to V. R. Covell, chief county bridge engineer, the two end-spans of the arched ribs forming the roadway foundation were found to be filled only with concrete when cement and scrap iron should have been used. The work had been sublet to the Rust Engineering Company, he said. Painters, who found moisture seeping from the arches, discovered the defect. Covell said the repairs will not be a large operation and will not interrupt traffic.

Texts of Dry and Wet Planks

CHICAGO, June 16.—The administration prohibition plank, as adopted by the Republican national convention early today, declares for law enforcement, condemns referenda; deprecates partisan consideration of the issue; urges attention to many pressing national problems; opposes submission confined to retention or repeal and concludes:

"We, therefore, believe that the people should have an opportunity to pass upon a proposed amendment the provision of which, while retaining in the federal government power to preserve the gains already made in dealing with the evils inherent in the liquor traffic, shall allow states to deal with the problem as their citizens may determine, but subject always to the power of the federal government to protect those states where prohibition may exist and safeguard our citizens everywhere from the return of the saloon and attendant abuses.

"Such an amendment should be promptly submitted to the states by Congress, to be acted upon by state conventions called for that sole purpose in accordance with the provisions of article V of the constitution, and adequately safeguarded so as to be truly representative."

The "wet minority" plank, which was defeated, said:

"We recommend that the Congress of the United States immediately propose an amendment to the Federal Constitution repealing the Eighteenth Amendment thereto to be submitted in conventions of the people of the several states called for that sole purpose in accordance with Article V of the Constitution of the United States.

"Should the Eighteenth Amendment be repealed, we pledge our best efforts toward the enactment of such measures in the several states as will actually promote temperance, effectively abolish the saloon, whether open or concealed, and bring the liquor traffic itself under complete public supervision and control with revenues properly drawn from legalized sources for the relief of the burdened taxpayers."

DRY PLANK HIT BY FIRESTONE

CHICAGO, June 16.—(AP.)—Harvey S. Firestone, Akron (O.) manufacturer, in the city to inspect a new plant erected here by his company, today condemned the prohibition plank adopted by the Republican party.

Firestone, who was met at the train by Lowell Fess, son of Senator Simeon D. Fess, Republican national chairman and a dry leader, said the party should have taken a definite stand for resubmission or repeal. He added:

"Any sane man knows that something must be done, and that the best way to do it is by direct action.

"The plank, as adopted, is an evasion. Perhaps not quite that, but it is taking an inexcusably roundabout means of getting at what is plainly needed.

"Advocacy of repeal would have taken the prohibition question out of politics and cleared the air for consideration of the real vital economic issues of the day."

SENATE VIEWS VARY ON G.O.P. DRY PLANK

'Straddle' Displeases Many On Both Sides of Issue; Ridiculed by Democrats

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(AP.)—Varied comment—some enthusiastic, some harsh—came from members of Congress today on the prohibition plank adopted by the Resolutions Committee of the Republican national convention.

Hearty indorsement came from Senator Watson, Republican leader of the Senate, but some others, both dry and anti-dry, condemned the declaration as a "straddle."

Senator Borah, of Idaho, chief spokesman for the Republican drys, refused temporarily to comment, but indicated the plank was not satisfactory to him. He said he might address the Senate on the subject.

Some of the comment follows:

SENATOR WATSON (Rep.), of Indiana: I cordially indorse it. There is more language than necessary, but the substance doesn't differ very much from the plank adopted by the Indiana convention.

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE (Rep.), of Wisconsin, an anti-prohibitionist: I regard the plank as evasive and ambigious and a straddle on the whole proposition.

SENATOR NORRIS (Rep.) of Nebraska, a supporter of prohibition: It is a straddle, but not quite as respectable.

SENATOR SHEPPARD (Dem.) of Texas, co-author of the Eighteenth Amendment: It is impossible on the first reading to tell what that means. I don't care to comment until I have studied it.

SENATOR BLAINE (Rep.), of Wisconsin, opponent of prohibition: It's a complicated program. I would assume close study of it would show it doesn't mean anything.

SENATOR MOSES (Rep.), of New Hampshire, a critic of prohibition: That's satisfactory to me.

SENATOR GOLDSBOROUGH (Rep.), of Maryland—It was a question of revision or repeal, and the former won. I believe it will be entirely satisfactory.

SENATOR ROBINSON, Democratic leader—It is a marvel of prolixity. It includes contradictory implications of viewpoint designed to attract the support of both the wets and the drys. It is a jumble of ambiguities and inconsistencies.

SENATOR GORE (Dem.), of Oklahoma—Whoever wrote that wet-dry plank was an ambidextrous amphibian. It takes off on dry land, flies through a dry atmosphere, plunges 20 feet into the ocean and then lands in the middle of the Sahara desert.

SENATOR BROOKHART (Rep.), of Iowa—The prohibition plank is about as disgusting a straddle as could be put up.

Life Imprisonment Asked in Kidnaping

KANSAS CITY, June 16.—(AP.)—Prosecutor James R. Page announced today he would recommend a sentence of life imprisonment for Marshall Deputy, alias Martin Depew, confessed leader of the gang that kidnaped Mrs. Nell Donnelly, garment manufacturer, here last December. Deputy indicated he would plead guilty.

Parade for Hoover Faked, Real Cheers Go For Dry Repeal

By CLAUDE G. BOWERS

(Copyright, 1932, by International News Service.)

CHICAGO, June 16.—The second day of the Republican convention will remain the red letter day.

It began with the speech of Representative Snell, the permanent chairman—more effectively delivered than that of the keynoter, and more denunciatory of the Democrats.

It ended early in the morning with the triumph of Herbert Hoover over the straight repealist, with Ogden Mills in the role of the D'Artagnan of the Drys.

It was a day of demonstrations, real and mechanical. The mechanical demonstration followed a reference to Mr. Hoover's "leadership" in the chairman's speech; the real demonstrations were those of the evening session when repeal was the issue, and the fight was on.

Paraders Like Men Scourged to Task

The Hoover demonstration began mildly, by no means rapturously, and then increased in volume. California waved a flag and sang a song. Then some one thought of a parade of standards, and started one; slowly, very slowly, others joined. The parade began.

Seated where the marchers moved directly by me, I studied their faces. That was the fascinating thing about that demonstration. Here and there, there was a glowing face; now and then, a shouter or a singer passed; but most faces were without the light of an inner fire—somber, sober faces, they were, of men scourged to a task. The press section instantly sensed the mechanics of the thing.

A spontaneous demonstration from a great multitude, actually moved, is inspiring; and this was reserved for the evening session and the repeal issue.

Then the air was charged with electricity. The galleries, for the first time crowded. Faces, for the first time, glowing with excitement. All day, Hoover's emissaries had been fighting desperately for a prohibition plank rich in the possibilities of evasion—a plank which Borah thinks dishonest, and Butler had denounced as hypocritical and absurd.

There, fighting for the Hoover plans had stood Ogden Mills, disregarding the clear sentiment of his state, and contemptuously brushing aside the instructions of his delegation.

The revolt was growing. Everyone understood that Hoover wanted no straight repeal; all too many did not care.

At length James R. Garfield, chairman of the Platform Committee, appeared on the stage. He was solemn, stern, alert. He read on and on—one of those interminable platforms Tallyrand must have foreseen when he said that words are given us to conceal our thoughts. On and on with a reiteration of the Dickson speech.

Hypocritical and Confusing Statement

And then at length—"The Eighteenth Amendment."

That was what all were waiting for; all that a goodly portion on the floor cared for; the one thing the crowded galleries waited for. There was a cheer of relief.

And then, clipping his words, Garfield read the laboriously wrought plan conceived by the Cabinet musketeers in close communion with Mr. Hoover, to evade the necessity for a straight repeal: a long, in places, hypocritical, and confusing statement, which sophists can make all things to all men.

Here was an apologetic reiteration of the discredited and despised theory that the federal government must continue interfering with the rights of the states and remain forever the wet nurse of a "noble experiment" that millions hate.

When he concluded, white-haired Senator Bingham, self-possessed and militant, presented the minority plan for a straight, downright, honest, unequivocal repeal. The moment he reached "repeal" he was interrupted with a demonstration that was real—that roared down from the galleries where sat the masses whose votes ultimately will determine the issue.

Drawn-Out Debate Stupidly Arranged

The debate was stupidly arranged to drag in an endless procession of indifferent speakers, for one and two and three minutes. This curtailed the time of the four men, Butler and Bingham for repeal, Garfield and Mills against it; and these should have divided the two hours between them.

Garfield was smug, petulant, contemptuous of the voice of the people in the galleries, oblivious to realities. "Not a political question," he said; and the galleries booed. "The youth of today know nothing about the evils of the saloon," he added; and the galleries, with minds on the speakeasies and the startling increase in drinking among young boys, laughed in disrespect.

Butler's progress to the platform was an ovation. He was deeply moved, evidently hurried, but he alone among all the speakers seemed to grasp the fact that prohibition imperils our political institutions, invites contempt for the Constitution, endangers the morals of the nation. He denounced the Hoover plan as "the worst proposition that has been made for dealing with the subject."

Ranks Party Honesty Over Harmony

Turning upon the majority report he analysed it ruthlessly.

He showed it commends the Eighteenth Amendment and its results.

It refuses power to the people to restore the constitution to its original form and function.

It retains police powers for the federal government and extends them.

He closed with a reminder to his party that "party harmony is desirable, but first comes party honesty," and called upon it to turn from cowardice to courage, from hyprocrisy to straight thinking," and to stop "playing hide and seek with the Constitution."

Senator iBngham, in ringing tones, asked the convention "to vote square and come clean." Gains from prohibition referred to by Garfield? "What gains?"

Mere boys, by the thousands, arrested for intoxication—must these "gains" be retained? Hundreds of millions bushels of grain unused because of prohibition—should this "gain" be guarded?

Ogden Mills, betraying the sentiment of his state, ignoring the instructions of his delegation, made the most passionate protest against straight repeal. He was in fighting mood, spoke fluently, though, in his fervor for the Hoover plan, he tore a passion to tatters.

But it was reserved for McNabb from California, nominator of Hoover four years ago, to brush all subterfuge aside and proclaim the plan adopted as that of the President himself. "Do you want to sustain your President or not?" he demanded. He alone admitted publicly what everyone understood, that the responsibility for the defeat of straight repeal rests on Hoover himself.

The debate ended; the roll was called; and it is not so remarkable that Hoover won, as that the opposition to his plan was so powerful.

Massachusetts—Rhode Island—New York—New Jersey—Illinois—Indiana—Pennsylvania—if McNabb was right, slapped the man to be nominated today in the face.

But the cabinet musketeers, under the leadership of Ogden Mills, won for him what may prove to be a costly victory; and thousands of Republicans filed out into the night disgruntled and disgusted, carrying with them the threat of McNabb that had straight repeal won the day the Republicans would have "disrupted the party."

J. BARLEYCORN UNWELCOME —GIBBONS

Anti-Drys Feel He Didn't Get Fair Break, Hooverites Sorry They Mentioned Him

But it was some party, any way you take it.

That million dollar stadium, all lit up with Klieg lights, spot lights and flood lights—wired with loud speakers and amplifiers, was jammed to the roof when the row started over old John's relationship to the Republican Party.

It was easy to see that the G. O. P. family didn't relish his homecoming. Senator Garfield's resolutions committee—that's the one that made the platform—put him 'way down in the list of the country's problems.

He was mentioned only after kidnapers and gangsters had been read out of the party, the Kellogg pact had been discussed, the League Court settled, the farmers promised relief and ex-soldiers, starving, were told that unless they contracted their troubles in the war, they're out of luck.

GARFIELD'S SHOW

Garfield made a good show of it. After he had listed all the things the country will not have to worry about if Mr. Hoover is re-elected, he just stopped a second, looked the microphone in the eye and said:

"The Eighteenth Amendment."

The Ohioan is short, grayish haired, spare, square-jawed and a typical simple-life liver. You could tell how dry he was by looking at him. You could also tell that he knew he was walking right into the face of the guns when he jerked out those words—"The Eighteenth Amendment."

Those blue-shirted electricians, sweltering in the control boxes, heard it. They jerked back the levers and the spots roared down with the ferocity of noonday sunlight in July.

ANTI-DRYS CHEER

The reading went on. It finished with the plank shipped in excelsior from Washington, with orders to put it over, no matter how.

A roar of boos went up. The anti-dry state: milled and swung the beer pails and steins they had waved in the face of the administration cohorts on the platform.

Senator Bingham, champion of the anti-drys sprang up, white haired and suave, slammed his short absolute repeal plank on the desk and drew cheers. But the wet contingent's enthusiasm was not convincing. They had seen the bear and heard the owl. They had also seen and read the handwriting on the wall. They had been told it was either their necks or Mr. Hoover's. Repeal or victory. Party loyalty or get off the band wagon. They couldn't have both.

'HALF PER CENT' MOIST

And the repealists didn't have both. They voted loudly and bravely—some four hundred of them, for the minority report. But six hundred odd wheelhorses strained in the harness and pulled the administration's one-half-of-one-per-cent-wet plank through to victory.

They knew it before the vote was taken. They knew it when the resolutions committee steam rollered the imported Washington bill through in the afternoon.

Yesterday morning's session of the Chicago convention was held on Pennsylvania avenue in Washington, D. C., as usual. Maybe on the medicine ball court. No, it couldn't have been there. That's too far from the telephone.

You see a lot of delegates made a mistake. They thought the convention was being held here in the Chicago Stadium, and it isn't being held here at all. This is just the light conversation, band music and elecution department of the real convention. That's being held in Washington.

Yes sir. This is the first long distance telephone convention in history. The next one will be held by television.

'BRONX CHEER' RINGS THROUGH STADIUM, SAYS RUNYON

DRY PLANK GETS MUCH RAZZING, LITTLE PRAISE

Tired Delegate Breaks Nap To March for Hoover, Then Resumes His Slumbers

By DAMON RUNYON

CONVENTION STADIUM, CHICAGO, June 16.—"Boo-oo-ooh!"

Sounds familiar.

The gallery at the Chicago Stadium is paying its respects to the prohibition straddle in the Republican platform. Chairman Snell threatens, shaking his first:

"I'll have you thrown out of here!"

The gallery replies:

"Ho-ho-ho-ho! "Boo-oo-oo!"

FIRST ACTION

It is the first time we have had any action in the convention. It takes on a tone of real excitement.

Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, and good old Dr. Nicholas Butler, of New York, put in some stout licks in behalf of a little moisture. They plead in a popular cause. The crowd in the galleries is with 'em.

They want the noble Republican party to stop shilly-shallying on the subject of prohibition and give the customers a chance to vote on the proposition squarely and above board.

BURKE 'MOPS UP'

Mr. James R. Garfield, of Ohio, and Mr. Ogden Mills, of New York, want the platform to go as it lays. Mr. Garfield has a tough time pushing his way through the boos. Mr. Mills does better, because he can outyell anybody in the place.

Senator Bingham and Dr. Butler know they are wasting their wind, of course. They know they are playing against a cold deck. Mr. Hoover rung in the "cooler" on them on this prohibition deal some time ago.

Mr. James Francis Burke, of Pittsburgh, legislative counsel for the Republican National Committee, a frail-looking little man, with a big voice, appears in the role of mop-up man for the administration. One of Hoover's "Boy Scouts," Burke knows all the answers. All the old mahosky.

The boxes flanking the speaker's stand are filled with nicely dressed ladies. It seems that Chicago society is making something of an occasion of the night session. There is no place else to go. Everyone wants to see Alice Roosevelt and Dolly Gann. There is practically no demand for Runyon.

Senator Simeon D. Fess joins a huddle and puts his arms around Burke and Brown. These three, and Garfield, son of the former President of these United States, are among those known as Hoover's Boy Scouts. Lawrence Richey, Hoover's confidential secretary, cuts in on the general chatter.

FUTILE STAMPEDE

The Illinois guy with the "We Want Repeal" sign stirs the folks up by waving his slogan.

Moved by a happy inspiration the delegates start parading his sign along the main aisle. The Illinois standard follows. It is a brief and ill-fated attempt to kick up a bit of a stampede.

It seems to alarm Chairman Snell, who then announces the convention is in order and recognizes James R. Garfield, of Ohio, to read the report of the platform committee. The session is on.

The first boost the platform offers for Herbert Hoover draws a mite of applause. Then the delegates sit listening quietly.

At 10:16, after a long, dull spell of reading, Mr. Garfield suddenly says:

"The Eighteenth Amendment."

BRONX CHEER AGAIN

Presently the good old Bronx cheer is resounding through the land. Some of the delegates and a lot of the spectators do not care for the plank. Mr. Garfield reads on, unmoved. A few loyal would try to overcome the boos with a little hearty cheering.

It takes Mr. Garfield a little over an hour to read the platform. He concludes at 10:35. A bit of applause marks his close. Mr. Garfield says:

"I move you the adoption of the report as read."

Chairman Snell does not ask for a second. He says, pending the vote, he will recognize Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut.

Senator Bingham reads the minority report from the Platform Committee, brief and to the point, favoring the immediate repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. The convention breaks into its first real turmoil.

G. O. P. Parade on Floor Just Sham, Fails to Fool Will Rogers

that Judas Iscariot was the first Democratic floor leader and Al Capone was one of the last.

Well, it was while he was speaking that the delegates got the idea of this "sham" parade. Jimmy Rolph (our Jimmy from California), who is not only a good mayor, a good governor, but a darn good comedian, well, Jimmy sits right down in front of the speakers. Every time he gets tired and wants to stretch, why he waits till they make what might be humorously construed as a "point." He has a big California bear flag and he gets up and waves it. (Now they think he is on the level with this. They dont know that he is just kidding.) So he gets up and starts shaking his flag. And everybody else that is tired gets up and joins him. It's an old trick of his, but these rubes back here don't know it.

STARTS TRICK MARCH

Well, he wanted a drink, so he started marching toward the door. All the others got to following him with their banners. Nobody knew if they was marching for Hoover, Sister Aimee or Jimmy Walker. So what was perhaps the greatest "synthetic" parade that any convention ever had was started by Gov. Jimmy Rolph wanting a drink.

Alice had given about half the convention the whooping cough and was laid up with it herself today. So that meant from a feminine angle the show was hitting on just about half.

The social end of the Republican party give Pat Hurley a big fine banquet last night. I was invited (by Pat) but forget to bring the old blue serge with me so couldn't even get in the hotel, much less the hall. He made a fine speech in which Mr. Hoover didn't get any the worst of it.

Brisbane made one of his noted wisecracks about me in the papers this morning and had the creditors swooping down on me.

They tried to sell seats to this thing for $22 apiece. These Republicans just won't admit there is depression. You couldn't get $22 a seat to see Senator Fess tango with Texas Guinan.

STOCK PROBERS EXCUSE FOX

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(INS.)—William Fox, the film magnate, was excused from testifying today before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee in its investigation of the New York Stock Market after two physicians named by the commitee's special counsel had examined him at a hotel here.

At a stormy meeting of the committee this morning William A. Gray, the special counsel, charged that Fox was deliberately avoiding appearance under a subpena.

A counter charge that Gray had used unfair and bludgeoning tactics in a long private examination of Fox was made by Fox's personal attorney, Benjamin Reass.

Gray had told the committee he would submit evidence showing that Fox manipulated the affairs of his film corporation, to his own advantage, with, he said, a huge loss to stockholders.

LAUSANNE, June 16.—The long-planned and long-heralded European reparations conference opened here impressively today, and almost before the sound of the opening gavel had died away the unrepresented United States was placed in a pivot position.

Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain, presiding, sounded in his opening address a keynote which appeared destined to become the keynote of the entire conference. He said:

"Europe cannot settle the economic crisis without the help of America."

Although not referring directly to the cancellation of all war debts and reparations, a movement for which gained apparent headway in last-minute preconference sessions, MacDonald urged quick action on reparations and "an end to irritating, petty and foggy discussions."

Doctor Flies to Sea To Save Ill Sailor

Debs to Dance for Dimes At Civic Club Sale

A "dime-a-dance" dance hall will augment the benefit rummage sale of the Civic Club of Allegheny County which opened today at 532 Penn avenue.

Beginning tomorrow afternoon—if Mrs. Robert Carson's plans are realized—there will be a lineup of "debs" in the basement of the building housing the rummage sale, ready to dance for each dime donated to charity.

Official permission from Public Safety Director Clark's office has been granted, and when other details are arranged the dance will begin. The rummage sale was opened today with a rush of bargain-hunting women and a few men. For a modest consideration anything from cigarets to furniture may be obtained.

Late this afternoon, "Al Smith" and "Herbert Hoover," two full-bred pups, will be auctioned. The sale will continue through Saturday.

BRITON SEES CONVENTION 'MOB RULE'

Here is how the Republican National Convention appears as viewed through the eyes of a visitor to these shores, Miss Margaret Lane, of the staff of the London Daily Express, and guest writer for International News Service.

By MARGARET LANE

International News Service.

CHICAGO STADIUM, June 16.—Flogging a dead horse doesn't usually do much good, but the Republican organizers have lashed their supporters so indefatigably during the first two days of the convention that they have forced a good show of spirit for the last lap.

It is a fine object lesson—government, not by the masses, but by mass emotion. It convinces an outsider forever that Americans are as primitively emotional as cannibals and roused by much the same things—shouting, stamping and the throb of political tom-toms.

Your Republican is difficult to work up from cold. The cheerleaders know their job, though, and keep it up long enough to make the delegates remember to respond to the name of Hoover as loudly and as spontaneously as a dog responds to have a door slam on its tail.

GALLERY ROARS

To add to the fun, the gallery has realized at last that it can stop the show. Its roaring voices thunder to the platform like Niagara to the rocks, and are as impossible to stem. "The visitors are the guests of the convention!" shouts Snell reprovingly. Comes the cold voice of Garfield. "The delegates will decide what we will do, not the gallery!" But the gallery, worked up to a fine pitch of crazed excitement by the hysteria-propaganda of the last two days, is not to be silenced.

Word went round Chicago that "the big fight is due to come on," and for the first time the Republican box office raked in almost as many dollars as it expected. Certainly, the people got more for their money than before, including three good fights—Garfield versus Gallery, Indiana versus the police and an all-in wrestling bout between a couple of dignified elderly delegates from Washington, one trying to drag the Washington banner into the wet parade, and the other refusing to play. They were finally separated and their knuckles rapped by a bored policeman.

IMPRESSED BY NOISE

Seriously, though, are American politics really like this? Is the history of this country really made by a seething vortex of shouting men struggling over pennants, drowning their speakers with boos and howls, marching insanely in a crazed procession every time a familiar name strikes through to their fogged brains? Occasionally above the welter of mixed hysteria and apathy a face stands out clear and proud, like Senator Bingham dryly smiling down on the surging stream of sweating flag-waggers below him. But for the most part it is the mob that handles the situation, the breath of the mob that obscures the slowly forming features of history in our time.

And why not, you might say? . . When someone like Garfield asserts without a smile that repeal would bring back conditions of drunkenness of which our younger generation knows nothing, it is a pleasure to hear the toughs in the gallery jeer him out of countenance.

Baer Writes Duel For Alice, Dolly

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

CHICAGO, June 16. — When Theodore Roosevelt was patriarch of the land a little girl romped around the White House.

That was more than 30 years ago and Alice Roosevelt Longworth still thinks she is in rompers.

If the flashlights don't deceive us, Alice is a very important personage. Reading from left to right you will always see Alice leading the flying wedge.

She is one of the hundreds of shrill politicians in Chicago of the lingerie sex. They mean something in the ultimate scheme of politics. When any question is to be decided and the nation's fate hangs on the answer it all goes back to the days when the ward leader banged on the table and yelled: "See what the girls in the back room will have."

Alice is as prominent as the handles on a small loving cup.

But she is getting plenty of competition from a lady who knows what she wants and where it is.

You've guessed it. Dolly Chairless Gann has carried that Washington social feud to Chicago and is here to smite Alice hip and thigh.

The girls haven't met yet. When they do we don't want to be in an egg shell between those two ice bergs.

Alice and Dolly have finally something in common. Both of them are carrying the banner for their brothers.

Alice wants her brother Teddy to grab the vice-presidential concession. It aint much, but it entitles the holder to sell souvenir postcards on the White House porch. Teddy is far away in the land of the Igorote, the Tagalog and the Moro and he would like to come home even in political steerage.

Dolly thinks her brother Curtis is entitled to another wild fling in national oblivion. She digits with sisterly pride to his record. And she's right. He hasn't done a thing.

That's perfect.

If by any chance the two gals meet face to powder, you would probably hear something like this:

Alice: Slap my face and reduce my alimony if it aint good old Dolly Gray. Put it thar, stranger.

Dolly: Well, scramble my eggs and cut my throat if it aint little Alice-blue-gown. Shake, pal, and break clean.

Alice: I ain't seen you since that big dinner in Washington. And I didn't see you then. Did you find a seat?

Alice: You must drop in and see us some day.

Dolly: Sorry. I never go across the railroad tracks. Whattcha doing in Chicago?

Alice: I'm arranging the list of guests for the next victory dinner of the starving Chinese. I hope you will be able to be absent, dearie.

Dolly: I'll be out of town if I have to ride a bicycle. What have you been doing with your figure, honey? You look like a bumper wheat crop. I hope you haven't been too sick.

Alice: You're such a lovable character, Dolly. If I had a gun in my hand I'd slap your face. Have you grabbed a seat anywhere recently.

Dolly: Yes, we had a big affair over in the waiting room at the Union Depot. I had a whole bench to myself. How's your brother?

Alice: He went from Porto Rico to the Philippines. He loves to travel.

Dolly: Say, that guy has been on more islands than Napoleon.

Alice: How's that brother of yours? They tell me he wants to be V. P. again so he can send his salary to the conscience fund.

Dolly: Curtis is feeling fine even if nobody asks him. They tell me your brother Teddy made the first sensible speech of his career last week. He asked for another plate of soup.

Alice: Yeah, the boy's getting good. If you ever happen to be in Washington again call in at the White House. Get yourself a delivery wagon and rush the tradesman's entrance. So long, bright-eyes.

Dolly: Till it wilted I wore it. I'll always adore it, my sweet little Alice-blue-gown.

Alice: Goodbye, Dolly. I must leave you, though it breaks my heart to go. Something tells me I am needed at the front to fight the foe.

BELL GRILLED AGAIN AT TRIAL

Denies Trying to Protect Glenn Allum, Helen Hess While Accusing Bledsoe

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 16.—The cross-examination of Tony Bell ended today with a denial by the former county detective that he was trying to protect Glenn Allum, Helen Hess or anyone whose name has figured in the Donohoe murder trial. He sparred with the counsel for R. C. Bledsoe and Cosmo Stengoni, on trial for murder, for more than an hour this morning.

He was pressed for an explanation of the "occupation" of Helen Hess, formerly of Masontown, during his reign as chief of police, but said that his evidence would be entirely hearsay.

CAUSES LAUGHTER

Bell caused laughter in the courtroom when he was asked to explain the code used in a letter he sent to Ten Dawson at the time Bell was being detained in the Butler barracks following his confession. He has used the words "Art-pay en-clay, an-cay, at-pay," which he said meant that Frank Barconovich and Glenn Allum were in jail.

It was a most dramatic setting. Just a few feet from Bell were Cosmo Stengoni and R. C. Bledsoe fighting for their lives and ready to deny participation in a brutal slaying in which Bell confessed a part and yet has been acquitted.

It was a tense moment in the courthouse when Attorney Baer asked in tones loud enough to be heard on the outside corridor:

"Mr. Bell, you are a murderer?"

In tones as loud as his rapidly fading voice would permit, he cried:

"Yes, sir!"

"And a perjurer, too?"

"Yes, that also."

BLEDSOE CONFIDENT

Although it was the worst blow dealt his case, Bledsoe seemed little concerned, feeling confident that his turn was coming.

Mrs. Bell, who since the trial began, has occupied a front seat, has kissed her husband at the close of each session and leans forward so as to catch his every word. Next to her usually sits Miss Ruth Bledsoe, daughter of one of the defendants, and R. C. Bledsoe, Jr., the soldier son home from service in the Panama Canal Zone.

In defense of the perjury he admitted, Bell said:

Weather Conditions.

The most pronounced feature of the weather map this morning is the low pressure area over the West. It developed into a low of considerable intensity since yesterday. Lowest barometer reported is 29.44 inches, at Swift Current, Canada, and in the southern portion of the low, 29.92 inches, at Pueblo, Col. The low is producing showers and thunderstorms at a number of places over the Rocky Mountain states. In the East there is high pressure north of the Great Lakes and over the South the two highs separated by relatively low pressure over the Ohio Valley states and eastward to the coast. There is considerable cloudiness in this area, with showery conditions. Temperature changes were slight.

STATE CHIEF MARTIN SEES OPPORTUNITY TO VOTE ON REPEAL

PARADE FOR HOOVER

When President Hoover was placed in nomination the Pennsylvania standard swung into the parade, which immediately began on the floor. Delegates and alternates pushed through the aisles, but hundreds remained seated. In the Pennsylvania delegation some stayed in their places, appearing to feel there was no need for a demonstration when there was no opposition to the nomination.

The Pennsylvania delegation may give some votes to Hanford MacNider, of Iowa, as a vice presidential candidate if his name is entered against Vice President Curtis.

A huge pipe organ and a band alternated in keeping things stirred up, but what spontiniesty the parade might have had bogged down within a few minutes.

The galleries were taking little part in the demonstration, the same galleries which last night had shouted for prohibition repeal.

Big Republican states such as Pennsylvania, Illinois, New Jersey, Michigan, New York, Wisconsin and Conecticut, fought to the last ditch for a repeal plank, but were bowled over by the influence of the national administration in states where there are few Republican votes, but delegates who are amenable to the control which flows from federal patronage.

STATE FOR REPEAL

Pennsylvania voted 51 to 23 for the repeal plank offered by Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, after two days of uncertainty and numberless caucuses at which different principles were adopted. On the showdown late yesterday, when prohibition came to a final issue at a caucus shortly before the convention met, Pennsylvania went for repeal, with Philadelphia and all of Allegheny County finally swinging to the insistent demand of Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, that the Pennsylvanians were under a mandate of the state to be for repeal because of the anti-prohibition majority secured by Senator James J. Davis in the primary last April.

Throughout the caucuses of the delegation here, Mackrell, actively supported by James H. Duff, of Carnegie; Walter A. Bonitz, Safety Director James M. Clark and Harry McWhinney, tried to force a record vote on the resolution he offered before the state delegates in Philadelphia in May, calling for repeal and modification. In this he was not successful until last night.

DELEGATION COMMITTED

When the Pennsylvanians went to the convention floor last night they were committed by a majority vote for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, satisfied that the Bingham plank could also be used as a medium for modifying the Volstead act.

Duff was selected as the Pennsylvanian to urge adoption of the Bingham plank, and in a short speech from the speaker's platform, asserted he needed no time to discuss a question which asks only whether the people should be given an opportunity by the Republican party to vote for repeal.

Mackrell had been invited by Bingham to speak for his resolution, the Connecticut Senator recognizing the fidelity with which the Pittsburgher has persisted in a demand for repeal. Mackrell, however, stepped aside in favor of Duff, content to have forced Pennsylvania to a clear-cut decision on the issue.

James Francis Burke, serving as delegate-at-large as alternate for Senator David A. Reed, was one of the Hoover spokesmen as the convention fought over the prohibition issue. Burke pleaded for harmony among the delegates, and shouted that no matter whether the Bingham plank, or the indefinite Hoover plank was adopted, all delegates would leave as Republicans, working unitedly for harmony.

BURKE DEFENDS STRADDLE

The Pittsburghers had no apologies for the plank finally adopted over the protests of the repealists, which suggests action on an amendment which would continue liquor control under the federal government. Backers of the Gingham plank insisted repeal was the only question which should be voted on in November, to return to the states self-determination on the prohibition question.

On the insistence of Mackrell, the Philadelphia delegation finally was won to a repeal vote, after it earlier had voted merely for resubmission, the plank finally adopted by the convention. Republican City Chairman James M. Hazlett, of Philadelphia, representing Vare, finally carried his delegation to a straight repeal plank.

Earlier in the week he had been influenced by Burke and State Chairman Edward Martin toward the Hoover plan, but had been forced to recede by the persistence of Mackrell, Bonitz, Duff and Morgan Kaufman, of Scranton, which had resulted in orders from Vare that the Philadelphians go for repeal.

PARTY SUCCESS PERILED

Every repealist who spoke last night warned the convention that adoption of the majority or Hoover plank, endangered party success in November. Bingham shouted:

"The Democrats will be here within 10 days, and they will go on record on this prohibition question."

A voice from the gallery, which throughout last night was disturbingly for straight-out repeal, cried:

"You're darn right they will!"

On more than one occasion Chairman Bertrand N. Snell, of New York, threatened to clear the galleries, but the only response was more hooting.

Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills was hooted when he attempted to defend the Hoover plank, and every person who defended it came in for jeers. John L. McNab, of California, who nominated Hoover four years ago, declared that adoption of the Bingham plank would be repudiation of the President, and the only response was more jeering, with no enthusiasm for the Hoover name.

550 TO RECEIVE SCHOLARSHIPS

Approximately $75,000 in checks for summer school study will be given to 550 Pittsburgh school teachers tonight by the Henry C. Frick Educational Commission at a dinner in the William Penn Hotel ballroom.

It will make the twenty-first year that the summer scholarships have been given to city school teachers. The money is taken from the Frick Trust Fund of $2,500,000, which was set up for the improvement of teaching.

Dr. Thomas E. Finnegan, president of the Eastman Teaching Films Company, will be the principal speaker. The program is in charge of William D. McCoy, statistician of the Board of Education.

Patrol in Collision On Way to E. E. Fire

Fire broke out in the kitchen of Mrs. Mary Rothstein's three-story brick house at 5508 Hays street, Eas End, today, and caused damage estimated by Battalion Chief John Zollinger at $500.

The East End police patrol, driven by James Williams, collided with an auto driven by a woman in hurrying to the fire.

THOUSANDS SEND FOR WASHINGTON CACHET

OPENING SOME OF THE THOUSANDS OF LETTERS ASKING FOR FORT DUQUESNE CACHETS

Ft. Duquesne Covers To Be Remailed On June 24

During the last two months there has been a tremendously big boom among stamp collectors for commemorative cachets. The Washington Bicentennial - Fort Duquesne cachet, sponsored by the Sun-Telegraph, with a mailing date of Friday, June 24, has brought self-addressed stamped envelopes by the thousands to the Sun-Telegraph. Fifty per cent of these envelopes are for airmail. The Sun-Telegraph will affix to all this mail a specially designed historical cachet commemorative of Washington's departure from Winchester to join forces with Gen. Forbes for the movement on Fort Duquesne. Col. Washington started this journey June 24, 1758. Fort Duquesne, however, was evacuated before the forces of Forbes and Washington reached it.

The envelopes already received by the Sun-Telegraph for remailing represent every state in the union with many from Canada, Mexico and foreign countries. The accompanying picture represents the requests of approximately 2,000 stamp collectors with an estimated inclosure of 7,500 self-addressed stamped envelopes.

Readers of the Sun-Telegraph who would like to have one or more of these historical commemorative covers may send self-addressed, stamped envelopes to the Sun-Telegraph, Fort Duquesne Cachet, for remailing with the cachet affixed on June 24. Especially printed envelopes may be obtained through J. D. Hoit, 130 Hoodridge drive, Pittsburgh, at a 5-cent rate for regular and 8-cent rate for airmail. These amounts cover the cost of envelopes and handling.

Seek Missing Father Of Ill Daughter, 3

Mrs. James E. Ellenberger, of 9 Marie Court, asked police to search for her husband, who disappeared May 28. She said her two daughters, Irene, 3, and Gloria, 5, have been crying continuously since their father disappeared. Irene has been sick several weeks.

Ellenberger is five feet three inches tall, weighs 138 pounds, has light brown hair and blue eyes, a mole on his right cheek, has the name "Anna" tattoed on his right arm and was wearing a light tan suit when he disappeared.

2 GET DIVORCES OVER VIOLENCE

Her husband came to her confectionery store, broke all show cases and threw canned goods at her costing her $300 for repairs, and he kicked her downstairs, Anna Boyle, of 135 Howard street, Millvale, told Judge S. J. Snee in Common Pleas Court. She was granted a divorce from Francis Boyle for cruelty and indignities. She said they were married in September, 1923, and three months later he started drinking and has not worked since.

Katherine F. Wooster, of Evergreen avenue, Millvale, struck her husband, William H. Wooster, 33, of 1506 West North avenue, on the head with many a cooking utensil, hit him with her shoes when he was reading and left him February 6, selling part and taking the rest of the furniture with her, he told Judge Harry Rowand, who granted him a divorce. They were married December 28, 1921. Wooster said:

"She told me all she wanted me for was a meal ticket."

STORE CLOSED, COUPLE SUES

Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Ahmler, of Moon Township, filed suit against Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Moses and Ross F. Shaffer, Glenfield constable, in Common Pleas Court, seeking $50,000 damages for the alleged closing of their store at Stoops Ferry under a landlord's warrant.

The Ahmlers claimed they fulfilled every part of their lease of September 14, 1931, from the Moses, landlords, and that they paid their $40 monthly rent. On June 6 a landlord's warrant and levy was executed for satisfaction of rent and notices were posted and their store and gasoline pumps closed, resulting in destruction of goods and a prosperous business, deterioration of gasoline and impairing Mrs. Ahmler's health, the suit charged.

FRANCE NAMED BY OREGONIAN

CHICAGO, June 16.—(AP.)—The vigorous but futile effort which Joseph I. France has made for the Republican presidential nomination today reached the convention floor with his nomination by L. B. Sandblast, of Portland, Ore. France is a former senator from Maryland. Sandblast, from a state where France won the Republican preference primary, said:

"If you nominate this man for the presidency, you will, I believe, advance the interests of the republic through a certain victory next November for the Republican party."

He said that he had been attracted to France by his clear enunciation of vital principles and then read appeals made by France for a return to the spirit of the Constitution. Sandblast said:

"This staunch Republican occupies a unique position in our national life. At times he has been called too radical, at others too conservative. He belongs neither to the right wing of greed nor to the left wing of license. He is as radical as the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States, and as conservative."

Municipal Offices On Summer Schedule

Municipal offices at the City-County Building were being operated today under a revised summer schedule, following a custom of many years. Office hours, until September, will be from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. daylight saving time. Former operating hours were from 8:30 a. m. until 5 p. m.

The only exception to the rule is the City Clerk's office, whose hours will continue to be from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m., because of the press of Councilman business, City Clerk Robert Clark said.

G.O.P. Rum Fight Funny, Ritchie Says

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 16.—(INS.)—To Albert C. Ritchie, Maryland's Governor, the fight in the Republican national convention on the prohibition question appeared today as just a "funny show." He said:

"I was very much amused at the attitude of the convention on the subject of repeal or submission. I have no doubt the Democratic convention will face the issue frankly and fairly."

Today

perate men and women, keen, intelligent faces. Somebody says:

"There is no genius in them."

But if another young Bonaparte sat under the New Mexico banner, the same person would ask:

"Who let in that queer little Mexican, is he really a delegate?"

And if Marconi, or Edison, or Newton himself sat there in modern clothes, no one would question the statement:

"They come from Kansas."

WE RARELY recognize genius or exceptional ability until we see it in history books. In the writings of Leonardo Da Vinci, greatest intellect of his day, you find no mention of Columbus, although that navigator crossed the Atlantic and came back while Leonardo was in his prime. He could not see Columbus' greatness. Columbus would not have seen him.

MR. TEAGLE, head of Standard Oil of New Jersey, adopts a five-day week to give increased employment. Five days' work and pay for many is better than six days for a few. And when prosperity comes creeping back, the five-day week may remain, carrying six days' wages, to remind workers that in all evil there is some good.

TWO FACES on the convention floor are always smiling, with cheerfulness that is genuine. One belongs to Gov. Rolph, of California. Its vitality and fine color are delightful.

You will want to know that he follows daily the prescription of old Dr. Don Francisco, of Los Angeles, "a large glass of orange juice with half a lemon squeezed into it." Different vitamins live in oranges and lemons.

Delegates Re-elect Friend of Hoover

CHICAGO, June 16.—(AP.)—The California delegation to the Republican national convention today re-elected Mark L. Requa, staunch friend of President Hoover for many years, as its national committeeman and Mrs. Edith W. Van de Water, prominent clubwoman of Long Beach, as national committeewoman. Election was by acclamation.

CASSATT FLAYS DRY 'STRADDLE'

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—(AP.)—Robert K. Cassatt, chairman of the executive committee of the Pennsylvania Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, in a formal statement today, characterized the prohibition plank in the Republican national platform as a "miserable, weak, hypocritical, impractical product of a confessed effort to be wet to the wets and dry to the drys." Cassatt said:

"My hat is off to the Pennsylvania delegation which by such a splendid majority stood out for repeal and against the weakest form of straddle ever attempted in a platform by any major party in our history.

"My hope and belief is that the Democratic party will put in its platform an honest, straightforward repeal plank. If the Democratic party does this, it will win in November and the blame will rest on the straddlers who forced through their defeat-courting prohibition plank."

DRYS PREPARED, SAYS PICKETT

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(AP.)—Deets Pickett, secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, today predicted that prohibition would be "vindicated" if and when the suggested new amendment contained in the Republican platform is submitted. He added:

"It must not be thought that the present situation takes informed prohibitionists by surprise. For two years they have foreseen the developments of this month and so far as the church temperance organizations go, plans have been laid with extreme care and with an absolute confidence in the events.

"It must be emphasized that the Republican plank binds no congressman to act against his own conscience, nor to misrepresent his constituency. It is now of first importance that patriotic Democrats take such measures as will ensure that the question of prohibition shall not become a partizan issue."

Mrs. Pratt to Keep Place on Committee

CHICAGO, June 16.—(AP.)—A compromise between the New York state organization, which had demanded the unseating of Ruth Baker Pratt, wealthy New York City member of Congress, and the national administration faction in the New York delegation, today insured the retention of Mrs. Pratt on the National Committee.

Mrs. Pratt had incurred the wrath of district leaders in New York City who claimed she ignored their suggestions regarding federal patronage jobs.

SUN-TELEGRAPH WANT-AD MOVIE LOVERS CONTEST

—CLUES—

CONTEST PICTURE NO. 11

The correct title of this picture is:

Follow These Simple Rules —Read the Prize Lists

(1) The Movie Lovers contest will consist of a series of 60 cartoons to appear in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph—one each day for 60 consecutive publication days—starting Monday, June 6th. The contestants are to find the correct title for each picture from a list of motion picture titles that will be printed every day, scattered among the WANT ADS every day throughout the life of this contest. Mere lists of answers will not be accepted as an entry. The answers must be accompanied by the pictures you think said answers represent. Do not submit any pictures or answers until the entire set of 60 has been printed. Entrants are advised against an elaborate arrangement in submitting entries. Remember, the awards will be made for correctness of identity of the pictures, correct spelling of titles in your entry and neatness. Misspelled titles in your entry will be counted as total errors.

(2) The contest is open to everyone living in Pittsburgh or within 100 miles of Pittsburgh, with the exception of employes of the Sun-Telegraph and of WCAE, Incorporated, or any member of their families.

(3) As explained in the list of prizes herewith printed there are three divisions or classes. It is not necessary to subscribe or send in a subscription to the Sun-Telegraph to compete for one of the Class A prizes. The Class B prizes are open to entrants who send in one six-month subscription for the daily Sun-Telegraph. Class C is open to entrants who send in two six-month subscriptions to the daily Sun-Telegraph.

CLASS "A" If No Subscriptions Accompany List of Titles		CLASS "B" If One Six-Month Subscription Accompanies List of Titles		CLASS "C" If Two Six-Month Subscriptions Accompany List of Titles
First Prize	$100.00	First Prize	$250.00	First Prize	$500.00
Second Prize	75.00	Second Prize	175.00	Second Prize	250.00
Third Prize	25.00	Third Prize	75.00	Third Prize	125.00
3 at $15.00	45.00	3 at $40.00	120.00	3 at $75.00	225.00

10 at $ 5.00	50.00	10 at $12.50	125.00	10 at $25.00	250.00
10 at $ 3.00	30.00	10 at $ 7.50	75.00	10 at $15.00	150.00
15 at $ 2.00	30.00	15 at $ 5.00	75.00	15 at $10.00	150.00
100 at $ 1.00	100.00	100 at $ 2.50	250.00	100 at $ 5.00	500.00
	$525.00		$1320.00		$2500.00

(4) There is a total of 148 prizes in the Sun-Telegraph Movie Lovers contest. The maximum amount to be paid out in prizes is $2,500.00—the smallest amount is $525.00. There will be only one first prize awarded, one second prize, etc. In other words, a contestant submitting the largest and neatest number of correct answers, according to the rules, will receive the first prize regardless of what class he or she is in, but the amount to be paid such prize winner will be determined by the class he or she is in. The same rule applies to each of the 148 prizes. In case of tie, contestant so tied will be paid an equal amount of the prize which they are tied—subject to the above classification rule.

(5) It is not necessary to buy a copy of the Sun-Telegraph in order to compete for these prizes, but it is absolutely necessary that each contestant shall have on file in the office of the Sun-Telegraph an enrollment or registration blank, form of which may be clipped or copied from the Sun-Telegraph. Please pay particular attention to this stipulation. In the meantime, if you prefer, tracings of the contest pictures will be accepted and for this purpose you may have free access to the files of the Sun-Telegraph at the Sun-Telegraph office or at the leading public libraries.

(6) The Contest Editor's decision on all matters pertaining to this contest is absolutely final and legally binding and this is an express condition accepted by the entrant in filling the enrollment or registration blank.

(7) The contest will close at midnight Friday, August 5, 1932. All sets of pictures and lists of answers must be delivered to the office of the Sun-Telegraph by mail or by hand before midnight Friday, August 12th. Entries received later than this date, governed by the postmark or the time of the hand delivery, will not be considered. Address your entry SUN-TELEGRAPH MOVIE LOVERS CONTEST EDITOR, POSTOFFICE BOX 594, PITTSBURGH, PA.

Bear in mind, you must have one of these Registration Blanks, or a copy of it, properly filled in, on file in the office of the Sun-Telegraph. Send in your entry blank today. From time to time you will be mailed helpful hints on the contest.

HOOVER TERMED IDEAL CHIEF BY NOMINATOR

Pictured as Dauntless Pilot Guiding Ship of State Through Fog of Adversity

Scott told delegates to the Republican National Convention that the President was a "past master in that greatest of all branches of engineering that I like to think of as 'human engineering.'"

Hoover was described as a "man who has given and is giving his time, his energy, his whole being to service in behalf of his fellowman."

SPIRIT OF PIONEER

Scott urged his hearers to reflect upon the trials, tribulations and the spirit of the pioneers in this country. He said:

"We have an illustrious example of such a spirit—the spirit of one who, through the last long gruelling four years has stood at the helm as the captain of our ship of state, and has steered the vessel safely through fog and hurrican, and passed the terrors of the lee shore.

"At times upon the ship's bridge he has stood alone with his thoughts—alone with his conscience. He has never lost faith. He has never relinquished his soul for the applause of the moment. He stands today serene and confident in the knowledge that he has kept the faith.

"This man of whom I speak is the ideal standard bearer of the Republican party. In this epoch, he believes in its principles—nor has he been niggardly in appreciation of those patriotic citizens who in the halls of Congress or elsewhere have divested themselves of partisan intolerance and have stood shoulder to shoulder with him in helping to solve the problems of taxation, of budget balancing, of unemployment, and of relief."

UNDAUNTED COURAGE

Scott said that in these days of "stark communism and ill-starred militarism, we had better renew our course by the fixed stars of the eternal principle that fundamentally must live and will live if, with God's help, we do our full duty." He added:

"The President's life typifies the spiritual values and exemplifies the undaunted courage of the real American sprung from the grass roots of the nation."

HOLD PLEDGES KEPT

The Californian told how Lincoln's nomination was greeted with derision by half the states and added that "today the skeptic and cynic are still around and about us." He stated:

"The weapons of contemptuous assault and scurrilous innuendo are at work today throughout the land in vain effort to besmirch the character of a great American.

"He has been weighed in the balance and has not been found wanting, because modestly and fervently he has fulfilled his pledges."

"He has come back to us with his shield untarnished and his head unbowed. He has taught us to strain our individual selves to the limit rather than cowardly to lie down under a paternal government, because he knows that rewards come to those who bear the burden of the heat of the day.

PROUD OF RECORD

"With hearts full of gratitude and fidelity, we of his own state of California—the state of our love and devotion—proudly present this homespun American, a man in the best acceptation of that term, to lead us to victory in November as the next Presiden of the United States.

"I nominate and I give to you as your candidate our great Californian—Herbert Hoover."

"We of the Republican party are proud that he has justified the trusteeship that we so confidently committed to his hands. He has remembered the words of the Good Book that righteousness comes before peace and that not to him who inflicteth but to him that endureth shall come the victory."

Fidac Peace Move Described by Spear

Efforts of the Federation Interalliee des Anciens Combattants, generally referred to as FIDAC, towards fostering world peace were described before the South Hills American Legion Post by Nathaniel Spear, Jr., state foreign relations chairman of the Legion. Mr. Spear explained the Legion represented FIDAC in the United States and each Legionnaire automatically became a member of the group of veterans representing 10 Allied nations.

Cute Poem

Cute baby clothes, cute battleships,
Cute eggs and onions, legs and lips,
Cute frogs and fritters, hogs and ants,
Cute pins and puns and pearls and pants,
Cute dogs, cute dames, cute dynamo,
Cute eanie, meanie, mynamo,
Cute paintings, sculptures, music, etchings,
Cute devotees, inducing retchings—
All things a wave of cuteness swallows,
And all the world in cuteness wallows . . . .

Who started it, the dumb galoot?
He must be someone sort of cute!

Gag

The Broadway banter-swappers are having themselves a time with this silly. A group of racetrack gamblers, who went daffy seeking a break in luck, were finally confined in an insane asylum, where they continued making bets on anything.

The warden and keepers decided to humor them all and permitted the dippy ones to make believe. Instead of money they played for pebbles. Suddenly one lunatic came in with a huge rock on his shoulder.

"Nothin' doin'," snapped the guy who was playing cashier, "you must know somethin'!"

Izzy Elinsonisms

The depression has taught me one lesson I'll never forget, at any rate. That the "e" comes before the "i" in the word receiver.

Well, anyway, empty theaters are a break for the acrobats. Fewer people can walk out on them.

Ouch!

At the premiere of a mediocre show the other evening, one of the authors cornered friends on the pavement between acts and offered alibis.

"If the show," he began, "had been run the way I laid it out—it would have been a sensation!"

"I know," stifled Dayton Stoddart, the editor, "and if you had been laid out long ago we wouldn't have had to sit through it."

To which Dave Stamper, another "critic," snarled:

It's just as easy to write good stuff?"

On the Other Hand

They were twitting critics away back in 400 B. C. That is, Aristonymus, a clown poet contemporary of Aristophanes, had this to chirp about the lads who defended the drama:

"Life is like the theater—for the greatest knaves often sit in the best seats."

Oop!

Then there's Rob Wagner's report on a quip relayed by James Agate, one of London's better drama defenders. Agate was sitting next to Lilian Braithwaite at a dinner one eventide. He informed her that she was, in his opinion, the second most beautiful woman in all England.

Instead of inquiring who the other might be, Lil sweetly said:

Not in the Cards

"Dear Walter," reports Jerry Donahue, of Cleveland, "the other Monday night five young fellows were playing rummy for a nickel a hand in a hotel here. Just ordinary guys, Walter, seeking diversion. Finally one of them got up and said: 'I'm broke, boys, guess I'll be going.' They urged him to stay, and when he refused, they handed him carfare home. As he left the room they said: 'Better luck next time.'

"As the 'loser' stepped into the street, there was a terrific explosion, and a moment later the hotel was an inferno. It was a gas blast and the folks inside didn't have the slightest chance. The inclosed pictures show the police and firemen carrying the bodies out.

"They haven't found the 'lucky' guy's buddies yet, but somewhere in that twisted steel and brick a fireman will see some burnt playing cards and that's where they'll be. Can't you hear the 'loser' mumbling to himself as he left the room: 'Just my luck, always losin'?' Yet it was the best break he had—coming out of that game the only winner!"

By Way of Report

Among other little novelties is the one dealing with Clyde E. Pangborn, who, with Hugh Herndon first spanned the Pacific by air. The gold didn't materialize. The affair was a financial flop.

Clyde, a nationally known barnstomer, did another 20,000 miles in the skies searching for glory, from which he hoped to extract gold. But no dice. While Clyde was wasting his time, his brother, Percy, a jeweler and well known marksman, remained close to home at Wenatchee, Wash., fussing around in an old gold mine he had purchased.

Clyde still gropes for headline honors and applause, while Percy keeps digging ore which assays from $50 to $700 a ton.

Actress Who Died Young Lives in Son's Fame After 121 Years

By GEORGE SEIBEL

She was only an actress, poor as a church-mouse, and died at the age of 24, but her son was called by Tennyson "the chief literary glory of America."

Elizabeth Arnold, mother of Edgar Allan Poe, is buried in the churchyard of St. John's in Richmond, Va., outside the church where Patrick Henry cried: "Give me liberty or give me death!"

I visited that grave the other day. It now has the finest gravestone in the churchyard, erected by sisters of her profession. The medallion portrait of Elizabeth Arnold's beautiful face is on one side of the white marble; on the other side is a quotation from her immortal son:

Mr. Seibel

"The actor of talent is poor at heart, indeed, if he do not look with contempt upon the mediocrity even of a king. The writer of this article is himself the son of an actress—has invariably made it his boast—and no earl was ever prouder of his earldom than he of his descent from a woman who, although well born, hesitated not to consecrate to the drama her brief career of genius and of beauty."

PLAYED ARIEL AND JULIET

These words of Edgar Allan Poe about his mother brought to mind the fact that on our early stage Elizabeth Arnold had been a favorite not only as Ariel, but as Juliet, as Ophelia, as Cordelia, loveliest of Shakespeare's heroines. She must have been such a girl as Shakespeare would have chosen to play these roles—but of course in Shakespeare's day the female parts were played by boys. Robert Goffe was the first Juliet, "whose beauty hung upon the cheek of night like a rich jewel in an Ethiop's ear."

A description of Elizabeth Arnold written by a Virginia judge in 1835 tells of "the childish figure, the great wide-open mysterious eyes, the abundant curling hair confined in the quaint bonnet of a hundred years ago and shadowing the brow in raven masses, the high waist and attenuated arms clasped in an Empire robe of faint flowered design, the tiny but rounded neck and shoulders, the head proudly erect. It is the face of an elf, a sprite, an Undine who was to be the mother of the most elfish, the most unearthly of poets."

ANOTHER POET'S MOTHER

One of her first appearances on the stage was at Portland, Me., when she was only nine years old. In the audience that evening was a girl of 18 named Zilpah Wadsworth, who was to become the mother of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. It is a coincidence with a point to it—showing how the drama is the altar flame from which the poet's heart is set afire.

Elizabeth Arnold was already once a widow when she was married to David Poe, a son of the David Poe known to Revolutionary history as "the man who furnished Lafayette $500 to clothe his troops, while his wife cut out 500 pairs of pantaloons with her own hands." Almost half a century later Lafayette visited the grave, knelt and kissed the turf, crying out: "Here lies a noble heart!"

A RUNAWAY MARRIAGE

The son of that noble heart ran away from his law office to go on the stage in order to be near Elizabeth Arnold. Their wedded life was clouded by poverty and buffeted by storm. Their second child—Edgar Poe—was born in Boston while the parents were playing there. The mother had appeared as a peasant in a pantomine early in January—on January 19, in cold and bitter and stormy weather, Edgar was born. By February 10 she was on the stage again, with all her old spirit and charm. In April a benefit was played for her, and the leading man, to whose Romeo she had played Juliet, was 17-year-old John Howard Payne. Payne, at that time a boy prodigy as an actor, later wrote the most popular song America has ever given to the world—"Home Sweet Home." It occurs in his play, "Clari, the Maid of Milan."

DIED AS A PAUPER

One of the historians of Richmond, telling about the Placide Stock company of 1811, says that "a star of this company was the young widow, Elizabeth Arnold Poe, whose appearance on the street, accompanied by her two pretty children, heightened interest in her charming singing, dancing and acting."

She played on October 11, being one of the Graces in a pantomine of "Cinderella"—she died on December 8, and was buried in a nameless grave, because even in the hospitable South there was doubt as to whether an actress, a vagabond and outcast, ought to be buried in consecrated ground.

Times have changed. Today we know that the mother of Edgar Allan Poe would consecrate any ground she was buried in.

A miniature of herself and a packet of letters was all she could leave to little Edgar, and an empty jewel box was all for Baby Rosalie.

The actors of the company would have taken care of the three orphans, but three weeks after her death one of the worst tragedies in American theatrical history occurred — the Richmond theater burned down and about a hundred people lost their lives, including the Governor of Virginia. A memorial church now stands on that site, and in one of its pews, years later, young Edgar Allan Poe often sat with the Allan family who had adopted him, and whose name furnished the middle name in Edgar Allan Poe.

'Lena Rivers' In Sheridan

By EDWARD W. GOSS

Although mildly entertaining, "Lena Rivers," showing on the Sheridan Square screen, will never cause any great splash in the world of movies.

It leaves the customer with the feeling that he has witnessed the filming of a Horatio Alger story or one of those melodramas the graybeards talk about. If the squire's daughter had stuck a vicious hatpin into the poor and proud orphan gal "Lena Rivers" would be a robust example of ante-bellum theatrical fare.

The story opens in New England, where Lena, played by Charlotte Henry, is born. Her mother dies and Lena's father is not known. The child is raised by her grandparents. After the death of her grandfather, Lena and her grandmother move in on a relative who lives on a big estate in Kentucky. In Kentucky the real drama unfolds. There's a horse-race, a romance, an automobile accident and Negro comedy relief. The comedy relief is more enjoyable than the main theme.

The players do a good job with the story. They display good judgment by not putting too much "heart" into their work. The story couldn't stand too much "heart."

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

The Gods Laugh Last

HERE IS ONE of those homely and seemingly impossible stories that can happen only in true life. It concerns a poor German woman who was stricken with paralysis some 12 years ago. The type of paralysis and the exact nature of the trouble was never too clearly understood by the woman. Great specialists were entirely out of the question. So all that the woman knew was that, when she awakened on that terrible morning she had been unable to walk. And the years had failed to improve her.

She had one child, a girl of 12. With the father dead it was up to the child to see that her mother was made as comfortable as possible. They lived in a small flat on the lower East Side of New York and managed to get by on the small sum that was sent to them each week by a brother of the deceased husband.

As is natural, I suppose, the paralyzed woman became increasingly cranky through the years. She sat at her window and looked with hatred upon those who were able to walk without effort in the streets below. The few who came to cheer her during the early days of her illness left with the stamp of her bitterness upon them. Very soon, then, she had no visitors at all.

You must, of course, feel sorry for the woman. But I'm inclined to feel even more deeply for the daughter. As that kid grew, she found that her environment made her different from other children. Other girls played in the streets while this one had to wait upon her mother. It was the same routine, day in and day out. The girl had to suppress her normal instincts. Her mother needed her—and there she had to be.

The paralyzed woman displayed no sense of appreciation whatsoever. Tell her she was stifling this child's soul by tying her down so completely and she would have cursed you from here to the Suez Canal. She undoubtedly felt that, since so much had been taken from her, this daughter was hers to do with as she pleased.

It was not until six years had elapsed that the girl's spirit began to rebel. She was 18 then, and it dawned on her one morning that she had nothing in life to which she could look forward. She loved her mother devotedly and she was more than willing to watch out for her until one of them bowed to the inevitable.

So, after thinking it over carefully, she spoke her little piece. She told her mother that the Fredericks boy, in the next house, had asked her to go to a moving picture that night. She'd be home very early. It would be all right, wouldn't it?

Then came the fireworks. Her mother cried and whistled and moaned and cursed.

"Suppose I died while you were looking at a show?" she screamed. "Then what? God might do that to me just to punish you for the rest of your years. And he would be right.

"Is it nothing to you that your poor mother must suffer. Evidently not. While I am in agony what is going through your mind? Picture shows!

"Go if you want. Go ahead. But God will punish you some days. Mark my words. No child can leave a paralyzed mother in pain and hope to escape punishment. Go if you must. But I warn you I'll pray to die while you're gone."

That outburst—and it contained plenty more, I assure you, that is unprintable—sufficed to keep the daughter at home for two additional years. Two more years of the same harsh routine. Two more years of the same invectives. Two more years of martyrdom to a hopeless cause.

Then the girl went out for an evening. She said nothing about it this time; she just left. Wasn't a person in the entire world who would have blamed her—except her mother. But since her mother had always constituted her entire world, that was enough. There was a dreadful scene when the girl returned. But on this occasion, for the first time in her life, the daughter said a few words on her own behalf.

"Mamma," she asserted simply, "I don't have much more fun out of life than you do. I'm young, and I need a little pleasure. I love you more than anything else in the world and we're going on just the same as before. But I can't see that I've done anything wrong.

"I like that Fredericks boy. He's a gentleman. I'm going out with him again. Next week, maybe. And if I'm going to be punished for doing something that I know isn't wrong—well, I'm willing to be punished."

Good for you, girlie . . .

We skip the next four years and carry our story to an early morning a few weeks ago. No change in the old lady's condition, mental or physical. But a definite change in the daughter. The girl is deeply and definitely in love. And that's enough to change any daughter.

The girl stood beside her mother and handed out the news as gently as possible.

"Mamma," she said, "I don't want you to carry on because it's not going to do any good. Joe Fredericks and I are going to be married this week. We're going to Atlantic City for a short honeymoon, and Mrs. Josephs will take care of you while we're away.

"When we get back, you're going to live with Joe and me. He wants it that way, and so do I. Will you give us your blessings?"

Blessings? Not quite. The mother did everything but froth at the mouth. She cursed her daughter, the man in the case, and herself.

"If you marry that man," she shrieked, "I'll not wait to die. I'll kill myself. I swear I'll kill myself. I'll do it, I tell you. Do you hear me? I'll kill myself!"

The girl looked down at her mother. She shivered. She started to say something. She stopped. She walked rapidly from the room. And an hour later her mother received a note.

"I'm married, mamma," it said. "Joe and I are leaving right away for Atlantic City. Mrs. oJsephs will be over to take care of you.

"Don't be angry. I love you. And if you love me, please let me have my little hour of happines . . ."

I don't know exactly how she accomplished it, but that paralyzed woman managed to attempt suicide a few minutes after she received the note. She must have tumbled from the bed and pulled herself along the floor. She pushed a towel under the door and turned on the gas in the tiny kitchen.

They found her there several hours later. The ambulance came clanging up and the doctors went to work on her. If she recovered it would be something of a miracle. But the miracle came to pass. A short time later, in the hospital they had her out of danger.

She was released from the hospital a few days ago. And how the gods must have laughed as they saw that release! For the woman walked out. She was using her legs for the first time in 12 years. The gas in the suicide attempt, and the subsequent reaction, had cured the paralyzed area! . .

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

With the showing of today's programs in the Penn and Stanley Theaters the stage presentation will be no more—for a time. The change is announced for the summer only, but there has been a general decline of "flesh" in favor of all-shadow shows throughout the country, so the passing of stage acts possibly will be for a longer term than just a couple of months. This will be the first time (except once, due to pay negotiations) since either theater was built that acts have been missing from their stages. Dick Powell, master of ceremonies in the Stanley and a strong favorite in Pittsburgh for several years, will go to the Mastbaum Theater in Philadelphia for two weeks, after which he will go to Hollywood. Several weeks ago he returned from the movie center, where he appeared in a photoplay. Evidently his work was satisfactory, inasmuch as he has been rewarded with a contract, said to be for a long term. S'long, Dick, and good luck.

* * *

Ethel Barrymore will play the role of the czarina in "Rasputin," the Russian tale that takes its title from the name of the weird notorious character who is said to have dominated the Russian royal family, through the czarina, prior to the revolution. Lionel Barrymore will play the title role of the Mad Monk, while Brother John will be Prince Yussupoff, the assassin. Miss Barrymore has taken a home in Hollywood, where she and her son, John Drew Colt, will be joined this week by her daughter, Ethel Barrymore Colt. Another son, Samuel Colt, may appear in "Rasputin," which will be Miss Barrymore's first talkie. A number of years ago she appeared in a series of silent pictures.

* * *

Paul Green, author of "The House of Connelly," "In Abraham's Bosom" and other plays; Lynn Riggs, author of "Green Grown the Lilacs;" Albert Maltz and George Sklar, who wrote "Merry-Go-Round," and Albert Bein, writer of "Little Boy," will work with the Group Theater in the production of its summer plays at Dover Furnace, N. Y.

FRENCH FORMULA REDUCES HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE!
ATTACKS BASIC CAUSES

For many years, a distinguished French doctor successfully treated his patients afflicted with high blood pressure with a formula of botanic and marine herbs. He relieved such symptoms as fullness and pains in the head, dizziness, hot flashes, ringing in the ears, heart flutterings, inability to concentrate the mind, exhaustion after slight effort, etc. Now you can take his remarkably effective treatment right in your own home at the trifling cost of 7c a day. If you feel any of these symptoms, indicating that your blood pressure is too high, ask your druggist for Dr. Morel's No. 9 (in the green box). It quickly attacks the basic causes of this dangerous condition and soon you are aware of a wonderful improvement. Sold by all well-stocked druggists. Any druggist can quickly get it for you.

GOODYEAR PATHFINDER

SIX "PLIES"?
You can count six layers of fabric here, but the first two under the tread in this tire (or in any so-called "six ply" tire built this way) do not run from bead to bead. Some tire-makers call these "plies," but they're really "breaker strips," so we call them that.

YOU KNOW a bargain when you see it. Cast a thrifty eye on what you are offered here.

Goodyear builds these Speedway Tires with patented Supertwist, that famous cord material which gives tires longer life. And every one of these tires has a lifetime guarantee.

You can get such amazing values because Goodyear builds millions more tires than any other rubber company.

And if you stop to wonder why Goodyear builds more tires—here's the answer: more people want Goodyear Tires, more people buy them, because experience shows they're the best tires on the road.

That makes it easy for you to get the best tire for your money. Just ask yourself: Why buy any second-choice tire when FIRST-CHOICE costs no more?

Hunter Tells Jungle Thrills, Walter Winchell Returns On WCAE Tonight

Frank "Bring-'Em-Back-Alive" Buck, famous jungle hunter who supplied zoos with wild animals and deadly reptiles, tells some of his unusual experiences on his recent expedition into the heart of the Malay Peninsula during a broadcast over an NBC network, including WCAE, tonight at 11. During the program, Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of the New York Zoological Park and world's leading authority on snakes, also speaks.

Mr. Buck

Dramatizing his experience with an orang-utan, which, recently captured, broke away from its handlers on shipboard and rushed at Buck, its teeth bared for his jugular vein, Buck tells tonight how he saved his life with a scientific right hook to the jaw.

Walter Winchell, returning to the air for the first time since his recent illness, occupies the headline spot on the cigaret dance hour over an NBC network, including WCAE tonight at 10, with Walter O'Keefe, the new master of ceremonies. O'Keefe pilots the "magic carpet" to San Francisco to pick up Anson Weeks' tunes, and back to New York for Joe Moss and his orchestra.

A new program, originating in the studios of KDKA, is introduced to National Broadcasting fans today at 4. The program, "Silhouettes," features the KDKA orchestra under the baton of Zoel Parenteau, and Alexander Roy, tenor, who was one of the finalists in the Pittsburgh "Youth of America" auditions held by Paul Whiteman, as guest soloist.

Program Pointers

"Heart Speaks to Heart," a setting of a melody from Wagner's "Lohengrin," for which Frank Luther wrote the lyrics, is sung by the tenor as one of his solos on the Hollywood Nights program on KDKA tonight at 10:30. The orchestra is directed by Gene Rodemich. . . . The Dance Gypsies present a varied program including the melodic "Auf Wiedersehen" on KDKA tonight at 10.

Mr. Luther

Frederic Lotz, organist, presents his regular weekly recital of organ music by the masters on WWSW tonight at 7.

The Westinghouse Musical Maids program on KDKA at 6:15 with the So and So Trio and an orchestra directed by Zoel Parenteau, is dedicated to the professional and businessmen of Pittsburgh who are making a Tableland tour through West Virgina, Maryland and Southern Pennsylvania.

Barring foul play or a change of heart, Joe Palooka and Mac Schmelling-Saltz meet in their heavyweight battle for the world title on WJAS tonight at 8:45.

An unusual string trio consisting of a bass viol and two guitars —the Paramount Boys — present another of their late programs on WJAS at 11:30.

Celebrating the hundredth anniversary of the year of Goethe's death and the birthday of Gounod, the Thompkins Corners folks present "Faust" on KDKA at 9:30.

"A Musical Menu," with Alicia Fuller, organist, as the chef and Ted Kaye as the head waiter, is presented on KQV at 4:30. The continuity is in rhyme, and the menu includes chicken a la Maryland, corn fritters, Russian salad and home-made apple pie.

Uncle Bob and Betty On Air at 5:45

Due to a broadcast of convention highlights at 6 tonight, Uncle Bob and Betty again come to the WCAE microphone 15 minutes earlier —at 5:45—today for another quarter-hour of fun and chatter when they read the Sun-Telegraph comic page.

News broadcasts direct from the Sun-Telegraph editorial room are given by Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

Peggy tips Pittsburgh shoppers on the city's outstanding values during her "Peggy's Tips" broadcast from WCAE tomorrow morning at 9.

Fan Fare

Aileen Clark is one of radio's luckiest girls. . . . She is probably the only person in radio to win a highly remunerative contract within 24 hours of her only radio audition . . . She is 24, was born in St. Louis and made her debut with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra when she was 17 . . . Her ambition is to appear wth the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Miss Clark

WHARF PARKING PROTEST FILED

Continued competition by the city with garage owners in operating public parking stations at the river wharves is paralyzing business, Council's Committee on Hearings was told yesterday by representatives of the Pittsburgh Garage Men's Association.

The association asked Council to eliminate the competition by abolishing the public stations. A fee of 10 cents per day is claimed by the City Treasurer's office for parking privileges on the river fronts. That charged by the garages is much higher.

Pointing out that the association members pay $473,500 in taxes yearly to the city, the spokesmen stressed the point that one garage pays more than the city collects for an entire year as revenue from the wharf sites.

With the prospects of a continued depression the city would be the loser in the end, should garage owners be forced from business, Council took the protests under advisement.

Polish Council To Hold Tag Day

The Central Council of Polish Organizations in Pittsburgh will sponsor a tag day Saturday, June 25. The proceeds will augment the donations of Polish organizations for the initiation of a boys' guidance bureau and general social service. The bureau will operate with accredited social agencies in the city. Victor L. Alski is general chairman of the tag day.

Husband Ends Life Following Quarrel

As the aftermath of a quarrel with his wife over a drink of liquor, according to police, Henry Kreinfield, 36, of 195 Dakota street, Bellevue, shot himself in the right temple. He died a short time later in the Suburban General Hospital. Kreinfield was found by his wife.

SCOUTS TO END TOUR HERE

A visit to Pittsburgh will end the tour Friday for four Akron Boy Scouts awarded a vacation trip by P. W. Litchfield, president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, for maintaining the highest records in their troops.

The Scouts, Robert Hendorf, Jack Mostyn, Jesse Darnell and James Renfrew, representing four troops composed of sons of Goodyear company employes, in company with Scoutmaster Paul Irwin, are traveling by motor. They will reach here from a tour of West Virginia and will visit A. E. Hertzig, manager of the local branch. Mr. Litchfield inaugurated the trips three years ago.

Police Seek Suicide, Discover Still

G. E. Miller's bad luck was that somebody else apparently tried to commit suicide. Miller, 32, was surprised when Carrick police rushed into his home at 149½ Merritt street and wanted to know who had tried to "end it all." It developed the police were in the wrong house, but they reported finding a 50-gallon still and three gallons of moonshine, so they arrested Miller, who was fined $50 in South Side Police Court today.

Two Wall Hotels Raided by Drys

Beer and whisky was confiscated by prohibition agents who raided the Wall and Old Norman hotels in Wall yesterday. Two arrests were made. A one-story distillery on Brant School road, near Ingomar, also raided, yielded a 125-gallon still and mash and moonshine. Three persons were arrested.

"Her Nerves are Ragged . . . She Can't Face Another Day of Work"

"I can't go through another day . . . oh, what is the matter? What shall I do"? Did you ever feel this way yourself?

Nearly Nervous Prostration

DO you know her . . . this poor woman who wakes up as tired as she went to bed?

Her head is still aching . . . her nerves are ragged . . . she's on the verge of tears as she faces another day of work.

"I can't go through it again . . . I can't. Oh, what is the matter? What shall I do?" she cries.

How many young women are fast approaching a nervous breakdown because they let suffering due to female weakness rob them of their strength and health.

In offices or in their homes, they drive themselves, working "on their nerve." Hoping against hope that tomorrow they will feel better . . . but instead they become more and more prostrated.

It is a double tragedy because it is so unnecessary.

Nature did not mean women to suffer so cruelly. If they would only try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound! It has befriended women against their "peculiar" troubles for over 50 years.

It brings soothing, comforting relief . . . gently corrects through its strengthening tonic action the cause of the headaches and backaches that wear you out. Drives away the awful lassitude that kills ambition and makes life a burden.

This simple, safe remedy has justly earned its place in the Family Medicine Cabinet.

Won't you listen to the testimony of thousands of women who use it?

We Should Not Monopolize Friendship of Others

Do you think you own your friends?

Do you want to monopolize their every interest?

Lael did; and when she found that her Girl Friend was a socialable soul, who could enjoy more than one human, what did Lael do?

Plenty!

Read it for yourself. Then, maybe, take it to yourself. For perhaps you've been just such another selfish little lady, and refused to play unless you could have everything your own way.

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I have always read your column and felt that your advice was timely and helpful, and now, dear Lady Solomon, I have a problem of my own for you to help me solve.

ANOTHER FRIEND

"I have a very dear chum whom I adored. We had been perfect pals and inseparable comrades for years. If Matalie went to a show, I also went. There was no such thing as a single or a couple in our lives. It was always a foursome, for prom or a dinner or a party. We were always honest with each other. If I thought she was getting too giddy at a party, I wouldn't hesitate to say, Mat, calm down,' softly into her ear. She, in turn, would warn me the same way. I can't tell half of the lovely times we've had together.

"Then I went to Florida for a year and met truly marvelous girls, some who reminded me of Mat—and I think I liked them especially because they did. Then I came home.

And my first thought was to see Mat. Even my fiance was second in my thoughts. She seemed overjoyed to see me, but when we met she had another girl with her—a total stranger to me—and this stranger seemed to have gained all my lost ground in Mat's heart.

REGULAR COMPANION

"Mat invited me to dinner and 'Miss X' was there. Every place Mat went there was Miss X. I grew sick of this. Miss X was entirely out of my class. I don't want to appear a prig or a snob, but I come of a good family and am a college girl, as also is Mat, and this new girl is common.

"But it seemed to me that she exercises more power over Mat than I could ever hope to, so I just faded out of the picture, gallantly.

"I know I'll always love Mat as a friend, but still I tell myself that I despise such a weak-backboned jellyfish as she is. Do you think she 'reverted to type' when she fell in with this ordinary person? Or do you think that she never was and never will be capable of a deep affection? I'd like to have your answer. LAEL."

My! My! What a silly little girl it is! Yep, I mean you, young lady!

For any little girl is a silly little girl, and a mighty selfish one, if she can't be a friend unless she's the whole show. And that's just the picture you've painted of yourself, sissy! And honestly now, when you think it over, is it a pretty picture?

SELFISH ATTITUDE

Supposing you were fond of Mat? Supposing you were once inseparable. That doesn't give you a right to expect that Mat never would have any intimate friends besides yourself. It doesn't give you any right to "despise" or criticize her, or to feel hurt because some other human has come into her life and she likes her.

The fact that we love someone else doesn't allow us to own her or him.

A "love" like that is selfish and unhealthy. If you had really loved your friend, you would have been glad that someone else loved her too, and you wouldn't have tried to be a dog in the manger. You wouldn't have gone off in a sulk. For that is just what you did, Lael; and then you tried to hide your own jealousy and conceit from yourself by calling this new friend "common" and unworthy.

Snap out of it! Come down off your high horse! Be a real enough friend to let Mat be herself, and a real enough woman to realize that there are plenty of fine people outside of good families and colleges.

High Standard of Living Is in Character, Not the Cost, Says Fay King

SANDWICHES 5¢
IT IS CHARACTER THAT COUNTS
FAY KING
I CAN'T STAND IT!
SOME OF THE "HIGH-LIVERS" HAVE TAKEN THEIR "ECONOMY" HARDER THAN THE POOR.
A REAL HOME-MAKER

By FAY KING

We hear and read these days that "our standard of living must not be lowered."

So far as character is concerned I don't think our standard has been so high lately.

We have preferred excitement and dissipation to common decency.

We have thought entirely too much about marcels and manicures and not enough about real home-making.

And we have seen how forced economy has affected those who had none of the more important high standards of living which alone sustain one in the hours of adversity.

The high standard of living is not in the cost but in the character, and the standard can rise only with the improvement in character.

A "crook" can live "high," but his standard is low!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

New Injection Treatment for Varicose Veins

Many inquiries have come to me recently concerning a new injection method of treating varicose veins, which has been in use for about five years. It has received nation-wide approval by physicians and surgeons, and in a recent review of more than 50,000 cases the results reported were most satisfactory.

Dr. Copeland

In former years the treatment for varicose veins was unsatisfactory. Rubber stockings and other mechanical appliances were worn with little if any relief, and in severe cases operation was advised. In this operation the veins were actually removed from the leg, and the patient remained an invalid for many weeks and required a good deal of attention. Operative scars resulted, which were unsightly, and were sources of pain, particularly on damp days.

It is not necessary to go to a hospital under the present method of treatment. It is given in the doctor's office, and the patient can return to his work. It leaves no scars or other permanent discomforts. Treatments are given at weekly intervals, and the time required for a complete cure depends upon the extent of the trouble.

In this treatment a substance called a "sclerosing agent" is injected directly into the vein, and produces hardening and collapse of the distended vein. Various substances have been used for this purpose, but glucose, sodium salicylate, quinine and urethane have given the most satisfactory results.

Varicose veins are unduly large and swollen veins. The local circulation of blood is slow, because there is a loss of elasticity in the afflicted vein. This condition is most frequently found in stout persons, particularly those who stand on their feet for any length of time. Some persons are much more liable to this condition than others, and it is believed by some authorities that the tendency is hereditary, for it is frequently found in several in the same family.

The disturbance is often observed in pregnancy, when marked increase in weight and the pressure placed on the veins cause them to swell, to lose their elasticity and to become varicose. These veins should never be treated during the period of pregnancy, for the complaint is likely to disappear after childbirth without any treatment.

In certain cases varicose veins should not receive the injection treatment. For example, it should never be given if "phlebitis," or inflammation of the veins, is present. Such cases should wait at least six months until the acute inflammation has subsided. Persons with advanced heart and kidney disease should not be subjected to this treatment. If diabetes is present the injection method can be given, provided the patient is on diet and receiving insulin, if necessary.

Answers to Health Queries

Mary G. Q.—I am a girl 13 years old, 4 feet 11 inches tall. How much should I weigh?

A.—You should weigh about 104 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of your age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons.

* * *

K. S. Q.—What will reduce the ankles?

A.—It is difficult to reduce weight in any part of the body without reducing the weight in general. Exercise, such as walking, dancing and skating may prove helpful.

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

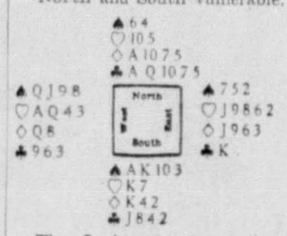
An Unusual Safety Play

In the play of a hand the Declarer is often faced with the question of whether or not a trick that might possibly be gained should be given up in the interests of safety. This question occurs when it is important to prevent one opponent from obtaining the lead in order that he may not be in a position to lead through a lightly-guarded suit, while the other opponent may be permitted to win the trick with no greater loss than the sacrifice of one immaterial trick and still leave probable the realization of the contract.

This principle was interestingly illustrated in a recent hand played in a rubber game at the Cavendish Club in New York. The Declarer, seated South, by following this policy and refusing to play the hand in a wooden manner, averted the set of 2 tricks and made game instead.

North—Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.



The final contract was three no-trump, with South as Declarer.

West chose as his Opening lead the spade Queen, which, while conventional—even though South had bid spades during the contracting—was possibly not his best lead. South won with the Ace, and it was at once apparent to the Declarer that if he were to realize his contract, the club suit must be established, and East, if possible, must be prevented from obtaining the lead to guard against a heart lead through his singly-guarded King. If it had not been for the heart situation, the safe method of developing the hand would have been to lead a club and finesse the suit. However, South went further in his study of the hand. If West held the King of clubs, it could be permitted to make, and South would still have the end-play for his contract. If East held the club King, unless it was a singleton, game probably could not be made. While it was not probable that East held the club King as a singleton, game could not be lost by playing the hand to concede a track to West, if he held that card, and if East held the guarded club King, then defeat impended if the dreaded heart shift came.

Thus reasoned, South refused to finesse the club suit, played the Ace, and dropped the singleton King. This play assured him of game, and then his only problem was the making of overtricks. He ran down 5 club tricks, then led a small diamond from Dummy. If East played a small diamond, South planned to permit the trick to run to West, but East foiled this by playing the 9, so South played the King and returned a small diamond. On this trick, West was forced to play the Queen, and was permitted to hold the trick. West's hand was now void of both clubs and diamonds, and the safety play gave the Declarer an overtrick.

Today's Question:

South is Dealer. North and South are vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	4♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

What should West lead, holding: ♠J62 ♡87 ◇J832 ♣Q643

Answer: 3 of Clubs. When leading a weak suit against a trump declaration, it is better to lead from a Queen than from a Knave, since the former offers a better opportunity to establish a trick if partner returns the suit.

This is the time of year when school activities are at their height, with the alumnae of the various fashionable schools holding their annual teas, luncheon and dances. Yesterday the Federation of Girls Schools Societies held its annual tea in conjunction with the Harmarvilel Convalescent Home's open house day at the home.

The National Park alumnae were the aides at the tea. There was a bazar, too, with exhibits of needlework, in charge of Miss Adelaide McCloskey, teacher of occupational therapy, and Mrs. J. A. George Kahl, chairman of occupational therapy. Mrs. Kahl wore an eyelet frock of brown and white lawn with a white hat, and Miss McCloskey chose white crepe, having godets in the skirt, brown and white polka dotted crepe, with a jacket of brown.

Aiding with the tea were Mrs. Harry Hunt, in a yellow boucle suit with a white straw turban, and Mrs. R. M. Entwisle, whose costume was of fine red and white striped sheer silk, with the three-quarter sleeves featuring a pleated insert. Her hat was of embroidered cotton.

Aiding At Tea

Also aiding with the tea were Mrs. Frederick T. Billings in blue and white plaid silk, with a blue turban, and Mrs. George Singer Ebbert, wearing a blue and white printed crepe frock, having the bodice of white, with which she wore a white straw turban.

Looking at the needlework exhibit were Mrs. W. C. Stoehr, in brown pique with a white hat, and Mrs. Robert E. Webster, in an ensemble of beige summer tweed with a beige felt hat.

Strolling about the grounds I saw Mrs. W. C. Reitz in white crepe with a jacket, and white hat, and Mrs. Dircy McClung, who wore shell pink georgette and beige lace, with a smart military jacket of georgette.

CURRENT FASHIONS SHOW SIMPLICITY
—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, June 16.—Thrifty fashions are often the smartest ones—at least that is the contention of a good many of the most important French dressmakers. Current French fashions, as illustrated by the style shows now going on in Paris, show a marked tendency toward more simple clothes and toward a general practicality. Fashion houses which for years have been on the "exclusive" list are sending out their mannequins to show clients how a single coat may be worn with several dresses instead of being a companion to only one frock.

* * *

ONE OF THE favorite examples of these new thrifty fashions is the suit whose jacket portion is a three-quarter coat. A coat of this type is considered neither an out-and-out jacket nor is it listed among the topcoats—so it results in sharing the advantages of each.

* * *

TODAY'S SKETCH shows how effectively a coat of this type may be adapted to different uses. Worn with a tailored skirt of the same material, as shown in the sketch, this coat becomes the jacket of a skirt-and-coat combination. Yet it may be worn equally appropriately with a silk dress of the same color, thus forming a coat-and-dress ensemble.

* * *

THIS PARTICULAR combination is done in a grayed flame color—a favorite tone of its designer, Capt. Molyneux. The three-quarter coat and skirt are of soft diagonal tweed, severely simple. The coat has the new single-breasted fastening, and its collar, cuffs and room pockets are marked with visible stitching.

Wilson College For Girls Lifts Smoking Ban

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., June 16.—(AP.)—The prohibition of smoking, among its students, one of the traditional bans of Wilson College, no longer exists in the written code of the institution.

Dr. E. D. Warfield, president of the girls' college, has announced that the provision that the students "shall not smoke" has been "excided" from the student government code. The action was approved by the faculty and trustees.

The formal decision, Dr. Warfield said, was taken in view of the fact that "there is a growing realization that parents are recognizing that college students are no longer school girls and that they must be increasingly trusted for their own standards of conduct."

TEXT OF PLATFORM ADOPTED BY REPUBLICAN PARTY

Party's Aims Stated And Achievements Outlined

Introduction

We, the representatives of the Republican party, in convention assembled, renew our pledge to the principles and traditions of our party and dedicate it anew to the service of the nation.

We meet in a period of widespread distress and of an economic depression that has swept the world. The emergency is second only to that of a great war. The human suffering occasioned may well exceed that of a period of actual conflict.

The supremely important problem that challenges our citizens and government alike is to break the back of the depression, to restore the economic life of the nation and to bring encouragement and relief to the thousands of American families that are sorely afflicted.

To that task we pledge all that our party possesses in capacity, leadership, resourcefulness and ability. When victory comes, as it will, this generation will hand on to the next a great heritage unimpaired.

Leadership Praised

This will be due in large measure to the quality of the leadership that this country has had during this crisis. We have had in the White House a leader wise, courageous, patient, understanding, resourceful, ever-present at his post of duty, tireless in his efforts, and unswervingly faithful to American principles and ideals.

At the outset of the depression the President succeeded in averting much distress by securing agreement between industry and labor to maintain wages and by stimulating programs of private and governmental construction. Throughout the depression unemployment has been limited by the systematic use of part-time employment as a substitute for the general discharge of employes. Wage scales have not been reduced except under compelling necessity. As a result there have been fewer strikes and less social disturbances than during any similar period of hard times.

By the spring of 1931 the possibility of a business upturn in the United States was clearly discernible when, suddenly, a train of events was set in motion in Central Europe which moved forward with extraordinary rapidity and violence, threatening the credit structure of the world, and eventually dealing a serious blow to this country.

The President foresaw the danger. He sought to avert it by proposing a suspension of intergovernmental debt payments for one year, with the purpose of relieving the pressure at the point of greatest intensity. But the credit machinery of the nations of Central Europe could not withstand the strain, and the forces of disintegration continued to gain momentum until in September Great Britain was forced to depart from the gold standard. This momentous event, followed by a tremendous raid on the dollar, resulted in a series of bank suspensions in this country, and the hoarding of currency on a large scale.

Banking Aid Cited

Again the President acted. Under his leadership the National Credit Association came into being. It mobilized our banking resources, saved scores of banks from failure, helped restore confidence, and proved of inestimable value in strengthening the credit structure.

In his message to Congress, the President outlined a constructive and definite program which in the main has been carried out; other portions may yet be carried out.

The Railroad Credit Corporation was created. The capital of the Federal Reserve Land Banks was increased. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation came into being, and brought protection to millions of depositors, policy holders and others.

An earlier distribution to depositors in closed banks has been brought about through the action of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Above all, the national credit has been placed in an impregnable position by provision for adequate revenue and a program of drastic curtailment of expenditures.

Wider Powers Sought

The President has recently supplemented his original program. To provide for distress, to stimulate the revival of business and employment, and to improve the agricultural situation, he recommended extending the authority of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to enable it:

(A)—To make loans to political subdivisions of public bodies or private corporations for the purpose of starting construction of income-producing or self-liquidating projects which will at once increase employment;

(B)—To make loans upon security of agricultural commodities, and thus stabilize their loan value and price levels;

(C)—To make loans to the Federal Farm Board to enable extension of loans to farm cooperatives and loans for export of agricultural commodities to quarters unable otherwise to purchase them;

(D)—To loan up to $300,000,000 to such states as are unable to meet the calls made on them by their citizens for distress relief.

The President's program contemplates an attack on a broad front, with far-reaching objectives, but entailing no danger to the budget. The Democratic program, on the other hand, contemplates a heavy expenditure of public funds, a budget unbalanced on a large scale, with a doubtful attainment of at best a strictly limited objective.

We strongly indorse the President's program.

To provide against the possible failure of local and state agencies, the President has urged the Congress to create an emergency relief fund to be loaned temporarily to any state on a showing of actual need and temporary failure of its financial resources.

The Republican party indorses this record and policy and is opposed to the federal government entering directly into the field of private charity and direct relief to the individual.

Public Economy

Constructive plans for financial stabilization cannot be completely organized until our national, state and municipal governments not only balance their budgets, but curtail their current expenses as well to a level which can be steadily and economically maintained for some years to come.

We urge prompt and drastic reduction of public expenditure and resistance to every appropriation not demonstrably necessary to the performance of the essential functions of government, national or local.

The Republican party established and will continue to uphold the gold standard and will oppose any measure which will undermine the government's credit or impair the integrity of our national currency.

Banks and Banking System

The efficient functioning of our economic machinery depends in no small measure on the aid rendered to trade and industry by our banking system. There is need of revising the banking laws so as to place our banking structure on a sounder basis generally for all concerned.

One of the serious problems affecting our banking system has arisen from the practice of organizing separate corporations from under and controlled by the same interests as banks, but participating in operations which the banks themselves are not permitted legally to undertake. We favor requiring reports of and subjecting to thorough and periodic examination all such affiliates of member banks until adequate information has been acquired on the basis of which this problem may definitely be solved in a permanent manner.

International Conference

We favor the participation by the United States in an international conference to consider matters relating to monetary questions, including the position of silver, exchange problems, and commodity proces, and possible co-operative action concerning them.

Home Loan Discount Bank

The present Republican administration has initiated legislation for the creation of a system of federally supervised home loan discount banks, designed to serve the home owners of all parts of the country and to encourage home ownership by making possible long term credits for homes on more stable and more favorable terms.

There has arisen in the last few years a disturbing trend away from home ownership. We believe that everthing possible should be done by governmental agencies, national, state and local, to reverse this tendency. We pledge that the measures creating a home loan discount system will be pressed in Congress until adopted.

Agriculture

Farm distress in America has its root in the enormous expansion of agricultuxal production during the war, the deflation of 1919, 1920, and the dislocation of markets after the war. There followed, under Republican administrations, a long record of legislation in aid of the co-operative organization of farmers and in providing farm credit. The position of agriculture was gradually improved.

In 1928 the Republican party pledged further measures in aid of agriculture, principally tariff protection from agricultural products and the creation of a Federal Farm Board "clothed with the necessary power to promote the establishment of a farm marketing system of farmer-owned and controlled stabilization corporations."

Almost the first official act of President Hoover was the calling of a special session of Congress to redeem these party pledges. They have been redeemed.

Due to the 1930 tariff act and the agricultural marketing act, it can truthfully be stated that the prices received by the American farmer for his wheat, corn, rye, barley, oats, flaxseed, cattle, butter and many other products, cruelly low though they are, are higher than the prices received by the farmers of any competing nation for the same products.

The Republican party pledges itself to the principle of assistance to co-operative marketing associations, owned and controlled by the farmers themselves, through the provisions of the agricultural marketing act, which will be promptly amended or modified as experience shows to be necessary to accomplish the objects set forth in the preamble of that act.

Tariff and Marketing Act

The party pledges itself to make such revision of tariff schedules as economic changes require to maintain the parity of protection to agriculture with other industry.

The American farmer is entitled not only to tariff schedules on his products, but to protection from substitutes therefor.

The party pledges itself to make such revision of tariff schedules as economic changes require to maintain the parity of protection to agriculture with other industry.

The Tariff

The Republican party has always been the staunch supporter of the American system of a protective tariff. It believes that the home market, built up under that policy, the greatest and richest market in the world, belongs first to American agriculture, industry and labor.

Because many foreign countries have recently abandoned the gold standard, as a result of which the costs of many commodities produced in such countries have, at least for the time being, fallen materially in terms of American currency, adequate tariff protection is today particularly essential to the welfare of the American people.

The Tariff Commission should promptly investigate individual commodities so affected by currency depreciation, and report to the President any increase in duties found necessary to equalize domestic with foreign costs of production.

To fix the duties on some thousands of commodities, subject to highly complex conditions, is necessarily a difficult technical task. It is unavoidable that some of the rates established by legislation should, even at the time of their enactment, be too low or too high. The Republican party has, therefore, long supported the policy of a flexible tariff, giving power to the President, after investigation by an impartial commission and in accordance with prescribed principles, to modify the rates named by the Congress.

We favor the extension of the general Republican principle of tariff protection to our natural resource industries, including the products of our farms, forests, mines and oil wells, with compensatory duties on the manufactured and refined products thereof.

Veterans

Our country is honored whenever it bestows relief on those who have faithfully served its flag. The Republican party, appreciative of this solemn obligation and honor, has made its sentiments evident in Congress.

Increased hospital facilities have been provided, payments in compensation have been more than doubled, and in the matter of rehabilitations, pensions and insurance, generous provision has been made. In administration of laws dealing with the relief of veterans and their dependents has been a difficult task, but every effort has been made to carry service to the veteran and bring about not only a better and generous interpretation of the law, but a sympathetic consideration of the many problems of the veteran.

We believe that every veteran incapacitated in any degree by reason of illness or injuries attributable to service in defense of his country should be cared for and compensated, so far as compensation is possible, by a grateful nation, and that the dependents of those who lost their lives in war or whose death since the war in which service was rendered is traceable to service cause, should be provided for adequately. Legislation should be in accord with this principle.

Disability from causes subsequent and not attributable to war and the support of dependents of deceased veterans whose death is unconnected with war, have been to some measure accepted obligations of the nation as a part of the debt due.

A careful study should be made of existing veterans legislation with a view to eliminating inequalities and injustices and effecting all possible economies, but without departing from our purpose to provide on a sound basis full and adequate relief for our service disabled men, their widows and orphans.

Foreign Affairs

Our relations with foreign nations have been carried on by President Hoover with consistency and firmness but with mutual understanding and peace with all nations.

The party will continue to maintain its attitude of protecting our national interests and policies wherever threatened but at the same time promoting common understanding of the varying needs and aspirations of other nations and going forward in harmony with other peoples without alliances or foreign partnerships. The facilitation of world intercourse, the freeing of commerce from unnecessary impediments, the settlement of international difficulties by conciliation and the methods of law, and the elimination of war as a resort of national policy have been and will be our party program.

Friendship and Commerce

We believe in and look forward to the steady enlargement of the principles of equality of treatment between nations great and small, the concession of sovereignty and self-administration to every nation which is capable of carrying on stable government and conducting sound and orderly relationships with other peoples, and the cultivation of trade and intercourse on the basis of uniformity of opportunity of all nations.

In pursuance of these principles, which have steadily gained favor in the world, the administration has asked no special favors in commerce, has protested discriminations whenever they arose, and has steadily cemented this procedure by reciprocal treaties guaranteeing equality for trade and residence.

We favor enactment by Congress of a measure that will authorize our government to call or participate in an international conference in case of any threat of non-fulfillment of Article 2 of the treaty of Paris (Kellogg-Briand Pact).

Conditions on Pacific

Events in the Far East, involving the employment of arms on a large scale in a controversy between Japan and China, have caused world-wide concern in the past year. The controversy has not only threatened the security of the nations bordering the Pacific, but has challenged the maintenance of the policy of the open door in China and the administrative and political integrity of that people.

The President and his Secretary of State have maintained throughout the controversy a just balance between Japan and China, taking always a firm position to avoid entanglement in the dispute but consistently upholding the established international policies and the treaty rights and interests of the United States, and never condoning developments that endangered the obligation of treaties or the peace of the world.

In the application of the principles of the Kellogg pact the American government has taken the lead.

As a further step the Secretary of State, upon the instruction of the President, adopted the principle later enlarged upon in his letter to the chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate that this government would not recognize any situation, treaty or agreement brought about between Japan and China by force and in defiance of the covenants of the Kellogg pact. This principle was later adopted by the assembly of the nations at Geneva as a rule for the conduct of all those governments.

Latin America

We have aided Nicaragua in the solution of its troubles and our Marines are remaining in that country, in greatly reduced numbers, at the request of the Nicaraguan government only to supervise the coming election.

After that they will all be returned to the United States. In Haiti, in accord with the recommendations of the Forbes commission, appointed by the President, the various services of supervision are being rapidly withdrawn and only those will be retained which are mandatory under the treaties. Throughout Latin-America the policy of the government of the United States has been and will, under Republican leadership, continue to be one of frank and friendly understanding.

World Court

The acceptance by America of membership in the World Court has been approved by three successive Republican presidents and we commend this attitude of supporting in this form the settlement of international disputes by the rule of law. America should join its influence and gain a voice in this institution, which would offer us a safer, more judicial and expeditious instrument for the constantly recurring questions between us and other nations than is now available by arbitration.

Reduction of Armament

Conscious that the limitation of armament will contribute to security against war, and that the financial burdens of military preparation have been shamefully increased throughout the world, the administration under President Hoover has made steady efforts and marked progress in the direction of proportional reduction of arms by agreement with other nations.

In the Geneva disarmament conference now in progress America is an active participant, and a representative delegation of our citizens is laboring for further progress in a cause to which this country has been an earnest contributor. This policy will be pursued.

Meanwhile, maintenance of our Navy on the basis of parity with any nation is a fundamental policy to which the Republican party is committed.

National Defense

Armaments are relative and, therefore, flexible and subject to change as necessity demands. We believe that in time of war every material resource in the nation should bear its proportionate share of the burdens occasioned by the public need and that it is a duty of government to perfect plans in time of peace whereby this objective may be attained in war. We support the essential principles of the national defense act as amended in 1930 and by the air corps act of 1926, and believe that the Army of the United States has through successive reductions, accomplished in the last 12 years, reached the irreducible minimum consistent with the self-reliance, self-respect, and security of this country.

Wages and Work

We believe in the principle of high wages.

We favor the principle of the shorter work week and shorter work day with its application to government as well as to private employment, as rapidly and as constructively as conditions will warrant.

Immigration

The restriction if immigration is a Republican policy. Our party formulated and enacted into law the quota system which for the first time has made possible an adequate control of foreign immigration.

We favor the continuance and strict enforcement of our present laws upon this subject.

Labor

Collective bargaining by responsible representatives of employers and employes of their own choice without the interference of anyone is recognized and approved.

Legislation such as laws prohibiting alien contract labor, peonage labor, and the "shanghai-ing" of sailors, the eight-hour labor law on government contracts, and in government employment; provision for railroad safety devices, of methods of conciliation, mediation and arbitration in industrial labor disputes, including the adjustment of railroad disputes, the providing of compensation for injury to government employes and other laws to aid and protect labor are of Republican origin, and have had and will continue to have the unswerving support of the party.

Freedom of Speech

Freedom of speech, press and assemblage, are fundamental principles upon which our form of government rests. These vital principles should be preserved and protected.

Public Utilities

Supervision, regulation and control of interstate public utilities in the interest of the public is an established policy of the Republican party to the credit of which stands the creation of the Interstate Commerce Commission with its authority to assure reasonable transportation rates, sound railway finance and adequate service.

As proof of the progress made by the Republican party in government control of public utilities, we cite the reorganization under this administration of the Federal Power Commission with authority to administer the Federal Water Power Act. We urge legislation to authorize this commission to regulate the charges for electric current when transmitted across state lines.

Transportation

The promotion of agriculture, commerce and industry requires co-ordination of transportation by rail, highway, air and water. All should be subjected to appropriate and constructive regulation.

The public will of course select the form of transportation best fitted to its particular service, but the terms of competition fixed by public authority should operate without discrimination, so that all common carriers by rail, highway, air and water shall operate under conditions of equality.

The railroads constitute the backbone of our transportation system and perform an essential service for the country. The restoration of their credit and the maintenance of their ability to render adequate service are of paramount importance to the public.

We should continue to encourage the further development of the merchant marine under American registry and ownership.

By the gradual retirement of the government from the field of ship operations, and marked economies in costs, the United States Shipping Board will require no appropriation for the fiscal year of 1933 for ship operations.

Saint Lawrence Seaway

The Republican party stands committed to the development of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Seaway. Under the direction of President Hoover negotiation of a treaty with Canada for this development is now at a favorable point.

Highways

The federal policy to co-operate with the states in the building of roads was thoroughly established when the federal highway act of 1921 was adopted under a Republican Congress. Each year since that time appropriations have been made which have greatly increased the economic value of highway transportation.

We pledge our support to the continuation of this policy in accordance with our needs and resources.

Crime

We favor the enactment of rigid penal laws that will aid the states in stamping out the activities of gangsters, racketeers and kidnapers. We commend the intensive and effective drive made upon these public enemies by President Hoover and pledge our party to further efforts to the same purpose.

Narcotics

The Republican party pledges itself to continue the present relentless warfare against the illicit narcotic traffic and the spread of the curse of drug addiction among our people. This administration has by treaty greatly strengthened our power to deal with this traffic.

Civil Service

The merit system has been amply justified since the organization of the civil service by the Republican party. As a part of our governmental system it is now unassailable. We believe it should remain.

Conservation

The wise use of all natural resources freed from monopolistic control is a Republican policy. Forestry and all other conservation activities have been supported and enlarged.

The conservation of oil is a major problem to the industry and the nation. The administration has sought to bring co-ordination of effort throgh the states, the producers and the federal government. Progress has been made and the effort will continue.

Negro

For seventy years the Republican party has been the friend of the American Negro. Vindication of the right of the Negro citizen to enjoy the full benefits of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness is traditional in the Republican party, and our party stands pledged to maintain equal opportunity and rights for our Negro citizens. We do not propose to depart from that tradition nor to alter the spirit or letter of that pledge.

Welfare Work and Children

Child welfare and protection has been a major effort of this administration. The organization of the White House conference on child health and protection is regarded as one of the outstanding accomplishment of this administration.

Welfare work in all its phases has had the support of the President and aid of the administration. We approve and pledge a continuation of that policy.

Reorganization of Bureaus

Efficiency and economy demand reorganization of government bureaus. The problem is nonpartisan and must be so treated if it is to be solved. As a result of years of study and personal contact with conflicting activities and wasteful duplication of effort, the President is particularly fitted to direct measures to correct the situation. We favor legislation by Congress which will give him the required authority.

Conclusion

In contrast with the Republican policies and record, we contrast those of the Democratic as evidenced by the action of the House of Representatives under Democratic leadership and control, which includes,

1. The issuance of fiat currency;
2. Instructions to the Federal Reserve Board and the Secretary of the Treasury to attempt to manipulate commodity prices;
3. The guarantee of bank credits;
4. The squandering of the public resources and the unbalancing of the budget through pork-barrel appropriations which bear little relation to distress and would tend through delayed business revival to decrease rather than increase employment.

Generally on economic matters we pledge the Republican party:

1. To maintain unimpaired the national credit.
2. To defend and preserve a sound currency and an honest dollar.
3. To stand steadfastly by the principle of a balanced budget.
4. To devote ourselves fearlessly and unremittingly to the task of eliminating abuses and extravagance and of drastically cutting the cost of government so as to reduce the heavy burden of taxation.
5. To use all available means consistent with sound financial and economic principles to promote an expansion of credit, to stimulate business and relieve unemployment.
6. To a thorough study of the conditions which permitted the credit and the credit machinery of the country to be made available without adequate check for wholesale speculation in securities, resulting in ruinous consequences to millions of our citizens and to the national economy, and to correct those conditions so that they shall not recur.

Hawaii

We believe that the existing status of self-government which for many years has been enjoyed by the citizens of the Territory of Hawaii should be maintained, and that officials appointed to administer the government should be bonafide residents of the territory.

Democratic Failure

The vagaries of the present Democratic House of Representatives offer characteristic and appalling proof of the existing incapacity of that party for leadership in a national crisis. Individualism running amuck has displaced party discipline and has trampled underfoot party leadership. A bewildered electorate has viewed the spectable with profound dismay and deep misgivings.

Goaded to desperation by their confessed failure, the party leaders have resorted to "pork barrel" legislation to obtain a unity of action which could not otherwise be achieved. A Republican President stands resolutely between the helpless citizen and the disasters threatened by such measures.

Party Government

The delays and differences which recently hampered efforts to obtain legislation imperatively demanded by prevailing critical conditions strikingly illustrate the menace to self-government brought about by the weakening of party ties and party fealty.

Experience has demonstrated that coherent political parties are indispensable agencies for the prompt and effective operation of the functions of our government under the constitution. Only by united party action can consistent, well planned and wholesome legislative programs be enacted.

Recognizing that real relief to unemployment must come through a revival of industrial activity and agriculture to the promotion of which our every effort must be directed, our party in state and nation undertakes to do all in its power that is humanly possible to see that distress is fully relieved in accordance with American principles and traditions.

No successful solution of the problems before the country today can be expected from a Congress and a President separated by partisan lines, or opposed in purposes and principles. Responsibility cannot be placed unless a clear mandate is given by returning to Washington a Congress and a Chief Executive united in principles and program.

The return to power of the Republican party with that mandate is the duty of every voter who believes in the doctrine of the party and its program as herein stated. Nothing less, we believe, will insure the orderly recovery of the country and that return to prosperous days, which every American so ardntly desires.

The Republican party faces the future unafraid!

With courage and confidence in ultimate success, we will strive against the forces that strike at our social and economic ideals, our political institutions.

Runaway Girl, Man Held for Hearing

A Turtle Creek girl, described by her foster father as a runaway, and her alleged escort were in Forty-third Street Police Station today, awaiting a hearing in Morals Court on suspicious person charges. The pair, Charlotte Loomis, 18, of 401 Penn avenue, Turtle Creek, and Edward Gross, 28, of St. James Hotel, were arrested in a downtown hotel. The arrests followed a broadcast description of an automobile in which the girl's foster father, Charles Thompson, said he had seen her riding in Main street, Pittsburgh, late last night.

'ACHING HEART' SONG SUITS G. O. P., BRISBANE SAYS

CURTIS LIKELY TO WIN DESPITE LACK OF PIPE AND 'CUSS WORDS'

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

CONVENTION STADIUM, CHICAGO, June 15.—Ten-forty a. m. The convention should start its second day in 20 minutes. It actually started 50 minutes late. The band had been playing soft music to soothe the rather small crowd.

Many empty seats. You must buy your seat this year and many in Chicago can think of something better to buy.

A serious glee club sings, and tries to sound martial. Senator Dickinson will presently tell the convention it is open. The Rt. Rev. Thomas P. Bona, of Chicago, will pray for the Republicans. Then committee reports will be read. Bertram H. Snell, of New York, as permanent chairman, will speak.

The singers' sweet voices say "the gang's all here." If so it is a small gang. More than half the seats are empty.

President Hoover, Will Rogers and nearly all of the West want Vice President Curtis to stay on the ticket. And that, probably, will happen. The nerves of Wall street "strong men" are shaken. They dream dreams and see visions, Stalin, of Russia, rewriting our constitution, no one allowed to have a million dollars, except Stalin, all sorts of horrors.

Advertising Is Powerful

The situation at first seemed difficult for Mr. Curtis. He is a good American, has been a model Vice President, and for the usual American purposes would make a good President.

But he has not commanded an army, has no short pipe, that can be smoked upside down, and knows as little about cussing as a weanling child. "Darn," is about all he knows, and he never says it.

But, first Mr. Dawes again says plainly that he doesn't want any vice presidential nomination.

Second, President Hoover, who knows how to exercise pressure in politices, is exercising it for Mr. Curtis and the ticket will probably be "Hoover and Curtis."

Appropriate Song

The singers, trying to make the crowd contented, in spite of a late convention, start singing "The Curse of an Aching Heart," highly appropriate.

The Right Reverend Monsignor Thomas P. Bona, who is about to pray for the Republicans, is resident prelate of Mary of Perpetual Help rectory, in Chicago. Republicans should take that as a good omen. If they ever needed help, they need it now.

Monsignor Bona beginning his prayer at noon, expressed "deep concern about the country and its welfare."

"The rich are poor and the poor are without bread."

Next comes a discussion concerning the South Carolina delegation. It is "soft pedaled," referred to a committee. Louis Seibold says that every "lily white" discussion disturbes Republicans this year. They need the two hundred thousand colored votes in New York, and the other thousands in Chicago, and elsewhere.

He Fears No Foe

Up comes Bertrand H. Snell, leader of the Republicans in the House of Representatives. He possesses the faculty of seeming to believe what he says, announces that he is going to "name the next president of the United States." And he wants you to know that "the Republican party is accustomed to victory."

Republicans, says he, do not become stampeded, or suggest quack remedies in emergencies. He knows the advice of the ancient Greek orator "To convince others, be yourself convinced."

Old Fashioned Cheers

He actually starts cheering of the old fashioned kind. Men get red in the face. Gov. Rolph, of California, waves his state flag with a big bear and star on it.

A splendid advertisement for California's climate and citrus vitamines is Rolph. Face pink, eyes bright, always flying, when a plane is to be had.

A lady near Rolph, dressed in silk that looks like leopard skin, starts "Glory, Glory, Hallelujah," and sings it with variations and war whoops, inserted. How wide open her mouth is, how lovely her teeth. Such a lady should never die, as the French cab driver at Nice said of James Gordon Bennett.

The band plays "California, Here I Come," and Texas starts a parade of delegations around the hall. A lady in a blue dress, speckled with white, carries the Texas banner. She has no hat, no marcel wave or makeup. The lady delegates as a rule can cook, run a house and know beauty parlors only from the outside. They need no beauty parlors.

Fine While It Lasted

Violently, with his gavel, Mr. Snell seems to be trying to stop, but really stimulating the howling that he started by mentioning the name of Hoover. The Texas banner is taken to the platform and waved—renewed howls of glee.

Then the Wisconsin banner appears on the platform. The Republicans "have been at war with them people," and that waving banner delights the yelling delegates. If only young Mr. La Follette had brought the banner up, but he did not.

What sounds like a gigantic band is really an ingenious mechanical instrument playing, its sound much amplified. Artificial music, but the enthusiasm is genuine, while it lasts.

Who Will Be Senator?

The wise Mr. Seibold says Mr. Snell's speech is, among other things, a bid for the New York senatorship. It's a good bid. Republicans should be grateful to him for bringing this convention to life. But, these are wet days, and in the fall when New York elects a senator, public opinion will be wetter.

James Wadsworth, who was senator before and went out when prohibition came in, may establish a prior lien on New York. IF Senator Wagner can be beaten, which at present is improbable.

Adjournment Soon

Finally, Mr. Snell is for the gold standard and PROSPERITY. We have the gold standard. How shall we recover prosperity? Only generalities about that.

In a little while, the convention will adjourn until 9 o'clock this evening. During the afternoon, the state delegations will be asked to consider the prohibition plank now ready. This has never been done before. The custom is to hand the platform ready-made and invite delegates to swallow it. You will read the plank elsewhere.

Will Rogers Not So Rich

It's a mistake about Will Rogers being so rich. His royalties, rents, syndicate profits, interest on bank balances have all suffered, as with the rest of us.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., recently in Chicago, is much richer than Mr. Rogers, who if you asked him "where is your next million coming from," would have to answer:

"From Louis Mayer, I suppose, but I really don't know. These are terrible times."

The Night Session

Half past nine in the evening. The convention is called to order, the delegates having all read the Republican prohibition plank, are listening now to the reading of the platform. See it in other columns. James R. Garfield, son of President Garfield, is reading it.

The prohibition plank, which comes near the end, does not please the wettest Republicans and it maddens the dry ones. But it does admit, with much hemming and hawing that prohibition needs changing, that the people, even the Republicans, to whom the dry votes belong, demand a change.

Preserve What?

Resubmission to the people, the plank says, truly, would mean nothing. If every voter in the United States voted to cancel the Eighteenth Amendment, that would not have any effect. The constitution can be changed by only constitutional procedure.

What the plank suggests not too clearly, is that each state be allowed to make its own prohibition law. The national government undertaking to protect all dry states in their dryness.

The plank says that things gained by prohibition must not be lost. What things are meant, do you suppose?

Prohibition has brought bootlegging and made of it an industry of billions. The only industry now really prosperous in the country.

Prohibition has brought whisky and gin drinking by high school children, with increased drunkenness and insanity, and has made it necessary to enlarge old prisons and insane asylums and build new ones.

Republicans would not want to preserve any of these things "gained by prohibition."

Saloons and Speakeasies

The plank congratulates prohibition on abolishing the saloon, but says nothing of speakeasies, that in big cities have replaced saloons. Five speakeasies for every saloon closed. Each speakeasy more dangerous than the old-fashioned saloon.

However, no matter how reluctantly the Republican party admits that a change must come, it will come. Slowly, perhaps, at the hands of Republicans. More swiftly and drastically, at the hands of Democrats.

The plank upholding the gold standard is applauded loudly. Not one in one hundred here could tell what the gold standard really means, or how you can have a gold standard, when all the gold in America would not pay off, in gold, the savings bank depositors of New York state alone. The big hall is full, this evening, no seats vacant.

President Hoover will be renominated tomorrow, the vice presidential candidate also, perhaps.

A Wet Crowd

A little later, 10:45 p. m. Chicago time.

Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, with a fine voice and snow-white hair, has submitted the minority report on the Eighteenth Amendment. It demands repeal of the amendment and every Republican in the hall knows that the crowd is for absolute repeal. Mr. Bingham, by profession an archeologist and a fine flier in the war, knows how to reach the public mind.

Mr. Garfield, reading the pussyfooting plank of the majority party, was booed savagely and impolitely and told the crowd:

"Gentlemen, the delegates on the floor will decide what shall be done, not the people in the galleries."

The answer from the galleries was:

Two Hours Debate

The chosen orators will debate the prohibition amendment for the next two hours—one hour for it, one hour against it.

Mr. Bingham asks the questions asked earlier in the article.

"What ARE the things achieved by prohibition that the Republican party would preserve."

He quotes statistics of thousands of young people arrested for drunkenness. Tells of men and women that were 12 years old and younger when prohibition was adopted "children that were never to know anything about alcohol, and are now arrested for drunkenness in thousands."

He wants to know whether Republicans would preserve bootlegging, crime-wave speakeasies, all born of prohibition. Senator Bingham is a clergyman's son and is followed by Mr. Garfield, son of an American President. The debate will end about 1 in the morning. Dr. Butler, of Columbia, is one of many waiting to speak. Already there has been one fight on the floor, among delegates not much more than a scuffle.

Beer Appears

A parade of states, after Mr. Bingham's out-and-out repeal plank had been heard, included many gentlemen carrying tin beer pails, known in old days as "growlers;" one or two big beer glasses containing beer, real or near. The crowd refuses to hear Mr. Garfield, in spite of the chairman's pounding.

This cross section of a great nation, settling its problems, would interest you. The chairman threatens to clear the galleries, if "guests will not allow the speaker to proceed." The "guests" of whom a majority have paid for their seats, hoot the chairman.

They will not allow Mr. Garfield to tell them "the young people of today know nothing about the drinking conditions of former days." Mr. Garfield, earnest, sincere and dignified, evidently does not know the young people of today, as well as the galleries know them.

!IURT IN BLAST, BLAMES NORTH PARK WATER

Laden With Explosive Gas, Mechanic Says, Suing County for $50,000

Charging that the water at North Park is filled with an explosive gas and that Director Paul B. Riis and others were aware of it, Wilbur L. Poland, of 209 Railroad avenue, Carnegie, mechanic employed by the Standard Engineering and Contracting Company, filed suit in Common Pleas Court against Allegheny County, seeking $50,000 damages for injuries he says he suffered in an explosion while he was repairing water tanks.

The water system at North Park, providing water for domestic use, drinking and watering the golf course, originates in a deep well and the system of pumps carries the water to two tanks on a high level at the golf course, where tanks almost buried in the ground rest in concrete rooms, the suit stated.

Poland charged that while replacing valves in the rooms January 6 an explosion resulted from the gas-laden water and he was burned, maimed and disfigured for life. He named Director Riis, William Sellers, engineer, and J. H. Sanford, Jr., as having planned and laid out a dangerous water system from a well under which the gas and oil laden strata traversed the water and that the water system was dangerous and not built in accordance with approved standards of installation.

GARAGE GROUP URGES BONDS

Appeals throughout the country continue to be made for federal aid to relieve unemployment with the Greater Pittsburgh Garage Association today adding its support for a $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan to create employment through construction of public works.

Mr. Fisher

Representing independent garage owners in the district, the association's directors adopted a memorial to Congress. President William Fisher cited the urgent need for passage of a federal aid measure.

Pointing out the lost purchasing power of the 8,000,000 unemployed workers in the nation, including over 1,000,000 in the state and 180,000 in Allegheny County, the memorial being sent to Pennsylvania Senators and Congressmen from this district declares:

"This condition reflects into the garage business with equal costly expense and loss as it does through all industry and trade. No relief has been developed through localized efforts to revive business and cannot, when one community is unable to get trade support from any other community."

Woman Optician's Hearing Saturday

Miss Anna O. Cofsky, Smithfield street optician, reputed wealthy, will remain a prisoner in jail until Saturday, at least. That date has been set by Judge Elder W. Marshall to hear her objections to costs of $276 imposed on her by a Criminal Court jury, and which she refused to pay, saying, it is alleged, that she would die in jail before she would pay. The costs were put on Miss Cofsky when she lost a suit charging embezzlement which she brought against her sister-in-law, Mrs. Bessie Yatkofsky.

Penna. Committee Will Face Dry Law Test

By MARK SHIELDS

Mr. Shields

CHICAGO, June 16.—The Republican state committee of Pennsylvania will be put on record as to its attitude toward repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and modification of the Volstead Act before the November election. State Chairman Edward Martin today said he had informed the state committee at its meeting last month in Philadelphia that it would be reconvened after the national convention to draw up a platform.

At that time, probably early in the fall, the resolution of the delegates to the national convention adopted yesterday will come up for action. It recommends as the opinion of the national delegates that the state committee declare Pennsylvania favors repeal and modification.

Allegheny County delegates are expected to appear before the state committee meeting and insist upon a straight-out wet declaration. Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, who fought for repeal at the caucus in May, and who consistently demanded that an expression of that principle by Pennsylvanians throughout the convention here, undoubtedly will attend the state committee meeting.

The Pennsylvania caucus vote of 51 for repeal, as expressed in the suggestion of Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, on the convention floor last night, is taken as indicative of the sentiment of the state committee. It is probable there will be an effort by the Hoover administration to subdue an expression, but the question cannot be downed.

* * *

G. O. P. Fears Loss Of Congress Seats

In many congressional districts of the state there are fears that Republican seats will be lost unless there is an unequivocal stand by the candidates on prohibition. In Westmoreland County district it is no secret that there are fears that Congressman Adam Wyant, who upon two recent occasions in Washington voted against beer bills, is in danger of defeat.

Wyant is reported to be desirous now of securing some assistance from anti-prohibitionists, but has not been receiving much encouragement. Westmoreland County has been looked upon as dry territory, but on the convention floor last night Daniel Burns, of New Kensington voted for the Bingham repeal resolution, while E. Arthur Sweeny, of Greensburg, stood with the administration majority.

Burns had declared in the Pennsylvania caucus that he received 27,000 votes for delegate to the national convention, and that all knew he was against prohibition. Burns very frankly said that he wanted clear-cut expressions on prohibition from every one whose position required that he meet the issue.

* * *

Members from Cities Mostly Anti-Dry

In Allegheny County and Philadelphia there is no fear of Democratic congressional success, because with the exception of Congressman Clyde Kelly, of McKeesport, the Philadelphians and Pittsburghers are for modification legislation.

There is still confusion as to why Hazlett, representative of Vare in earlier convention caucuses stood with Gen. Martin for the administration attitude against repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. There have been rumors that some arrangements was attempted, whereby Martin in the event he is elected governor two years hence—which is his ambition and that of his friends—would recognize Hazlett as Philadelphia spokesman.

There is no confirmation of that supposition, but it is evident that the Philadelphia organization would hardly ratify such an arrangement. Many Philadelphia delegates contended that when they voted for a meaningless resolution on prohibition Tuesday they thought it meant repeal, and that they simply followed orders because they believed they would never be instructed to vote on the subject in any manner except that demanded by Vare.

SALES BOOM HERE IN DRIVE TO BEAT TAX

WOMEN ENTER M. E. SESSIONS FIRST TIME

Will Participate Here as Lay Delegates; Reduced Funds Affect Program

Women will have a voice in deliberations of the Pittsburgh conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, for the first time tomorrow when, with brother-laymen, they will attend sessions in the Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church, where the one hundred and ninth annual meeting is being held.

Bishop Adna W. Leonard, presiding, yesterday extended the invitation to the men and women delegates to attend sessions tomorrow and Saturday in conformity with the action of the general conference in Atlantic City last month to further democratize the church government.

EXPECT 20 WOMEN

About 20 women are expected to be present for the historic session tomorrow, when Bishop Leonard will formally welcome the lay delegates. The number of male delegates is around 280, but many of these will not be able to attend, it was said.

The Layman's Association, which has functioned for many years as the only voice of the laity, will cease to exist after tomorrow. Hereafter lay delegates will attend those sessions of the annual conference dealing with church administration. The laity will not have a vote on selection of ministers or passing on their qualifications.

FINANCES REDUCED

Financial stringency has hit many pastoral charges hard, it was revealed, with the result that many ministers have failed to raise their quota for pensioners, the bishop and district superintendents.

Those in arrears are to appear before a special committee to be named by the district superintendents, with a view to putting into effect a system, said to have been theoretically in force but practically ignored, whereby the ministers must share in any cut necessary in the special funds.

GAS LEAK COST PAID BY COUNTY

The Pittsburgh Butler Airport, Inc., which has the gasoline concession at the new County Airport, lost $735 because of the leaks in the pipes of the gasoline system at the port, Maj. S. S. Martin, of the concern, infromed County Commissioners yesterday. Martin declared that in addition to losing a large amount of gas in the break, his concern was forced to buy gasoline in smaller quantities and at a higher price to keep their contract to supply gas at the port.

The county is to share in the profits of gasoline sales at the port and the concern was given credit for the amount lost by the break. Hal Bazley, head of the airport, reported the break had been repaired and the system was now functioning properly.

COUNTY HOLDS CITY IN DEBT FOR AIRPORT

Auditor Reveals Bill for $20,043 for Share of Rogers Field Land Costs

The City of Pittsburgh has never paid Allegheny County the $20,043.18 it owes as its share for buying land for Rodgers aviation field, a port owned jointly by the city-county. This was one of numerous outstanding bills revealed in a report presented the Commissioners yesterday by M. C. Conick, auditor for Main & Co. A checkup of county records has revealed that money is due the county from several utilities companies and from nearby counties.

Conick stated that so far as the records go the city has never been billed for its share of the airport cost. The county spent $37,000 for the land for the port and the remainder for viewers and realtors who helped with the negotiation.

Beaver, Westmoreland and Washington Counties owe money for bridge maintenance on inter-county structures. The state and Turtle Creek Borough owe for a similar reason and the utilities owe for using county structures to convey their lines.

The auditor's report also brings up again the collapse of the Cow Run Bridge in February, 1928. The auditors point out that the county went to the expense of building a temporary structure and finally made repairs to the original span. The auditors state that in the permit issued to Thomas George, contractor, George agreed to assume all responsibility in case of accident. As a result of a steam shovel crashing through the floor of the bridge, John Egloff, of Braddock, was killed.

Several suits were filed against the county, one by Thomas and another by relatives of the dead man. The court however, set aside verdicts in favor of the plaintiffs and entered judgment against the county. The report points out that in clearing the wreckage and building a temporary trestle the county spent $7,357 and later spent $69,739.83 in rebuilding the original structure.

The Commissioners ordered the County Solicitor to study the report and directed the Controller to send out bills.

DEALERS STOCK SUPPLIES TO SAVE LEVY

Some Firms Forced to Turn Down Orders in Rush to Get Goods Before June 21

The federal sales tax effective June 21 and levying on everything from toothpaste to automobiles, has brought a temporary business boom to Pittsburgh wholesalers and many retailers, a survey revealed today.

Merchandise purchased and delivered before midnight, June 20, will not be affected by the tax, which is to be paid by the manufacturer at the source and passed on, in some degree at least, to the wholesaler, the retailer and, eventually, the consumer.

Sales managers for wholesale firms revealed that their sales of taxable goods in many cases has doubled and that they will be unable to fill many of their orders before the tax becomes effective.

LIKENED TO GOLD RUSH

While the retailer is busy placing his orders, the wholesaler himself has not been idle.

Emil Freyer, sales manager for the Samuel Weinhaus Company, estimated that there is an increase of 50 per cent in the buying of jewelry by the wholesaler.

J. E. Messler, sales manager for the Republic Oil Company, said there has been a tremendous upward trend in the oil and gas business, adding:

"It's similar to the gold rush of '49. We are so booked up with orders that we are turning them down.

"Small retailers who formerly took small orders are now taking big ones. On an 8,000-gallon tank car of oil, the retailer will save $320 and $80 on the same amount of gasoline."

SEES HUGE SAVING

There will be a tax of four cents a gallon on oil and one cent a gallon on gasoline, F. F. Berret, chief clerk in the Standard Oil Company's district sales office here, said, asserting:

"Unestimated millions will be made on gasoline and oil which will be in the hands of the retailer when the new tax goes into effect.

"Both the dealers and the individuals are buying a lot of tires and tubes. I would estimate there is an increase of 100 per cent in business because of the new tax."

Tires will be taxed 2½ cents a pound and tubes four cents a pound.

Other articles to come under the new tax law, and their levies are: Furs, 10 per cent; radio and phonograph equipment, 5 per cent; toilet preparations, 10 per cent; sporting goods, 10 per cent; candy, 2 per cent, and automobiles, 3 per cent.

WABASH DEAL HEARING SET

County Commissioners have agreed to give a hearing June 23 to persons claiming to represent owners of the Wabash bridge and tunnel property who have made an offer through C. C. Hamilton, real estate dealer, to sell the bridge and tunnel to Allegheny County at a $450,000 price reduction.

Harry W. Nethkins, vice president of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad, declared Hamilton's offer to sell the bridge and tunnel to the county for $2,550,000 is entirely unauthorized.

Nethkin said:

"That's the craziest line of stuff I have ever heard."

Nethkin said he alone had been authorized by the board of directors of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia to deal with the County Commissioners. He said he never heard of J. S. Haley, supposedly a Niles, O., contractor who Hamilton said had authorized him to submit the offer.

Tax Law Oddities Told to Retailers

Some Stores Will Be Classified as 'Factories'

Soap of the same quality will be taxed as a toilet product, but exempt when purchased for laundry use, under the new federal tax law, effective Tuesday, it was revealed before delegates to the National Retail Dry Goods Association convention which closes today in the William Penn Hotel.

Other oddities of the tax law will, in some cases, make manufacturers out of retailers, it was explained by Attorney Harold R. Young, of Washington, secretary of the association. In reviewing taxes on toilet articles, he said:

"In the matter of toilet soaps, which are taxable at 5 per cent, there are some soaps used for both toilet and laundry purposes. The 'toilet size' would be taxable, the inference being as to primary use, but the same soap for laundry use would not be taxable."

Explaining the status of retailers under manufacturing taxes, he said:

"Certain of our members manufacture at their own fountains certain syrups, and in doing so are liable as manufacturers. In repairing a fur coat, new fur used in such repair in a retailer's workroom is taxable, and the retailer must, as a manufacturer, report the tax upon such transaction. The tax on electrical energy for domestic or commercial consumption is paid on the bill by the consumer. Electrical energy for industrial purposes is exempt. A department store operating its own electrical system would be exempt from the tax."

One meeting was being held today for the smaller stores group. The retail delivery association members were visiting the receiving department of Gimbel Brothers. The store managers and controllers' groups were meeting jointly this afternoon in Kaufmann's store, where E. R. Clarkson was speaking on record systems.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

CHICAGO, June 16.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph.

I got to wondering yesterday if they really had given Mr. Curtis any notice, so I put in a call for him at the Senate, feeling that he would tell me about it, and we had a long chat and he did. And sure enough they hadn't. He said that all the time they had assured him that he was the man.

Will Rogers

He said if they had told him, he would have run for his Senate seat. Then he gave me the low-down on the real objection. It's not age, some of 'em want a real wet. They want a dry head, and a wet tail to the ticket. He said he understood that Mr. Dawes was out. And that from his latest talk with Chicago, that he was still the candidate. Then I called up Gen. Dawes in Washington, who was at the Willard Hotel, and we had a mighty pleasant chat. Didn't cuss, just asked me if I had read his statement. Said he had nothing new to add to it. I told him they needed him mighty bad, not only on this job, but pretty near any job we have to do in this country.

I told him that if it was on account of his private business, to not let that stop him, that no vice president had ever exactly been overworked, that there is no better time to concentrate on something important than when some Senator is speaking for two days on nothing at all. Now maybe I convinced him, maybe I didn't, but I got my own idea.

Yours, WILL.

WCAE Sunday Law Debate Covers Vital State Issue

Repeal of Pennsylvania's Sunday laws, which is to be debated tomorrow night over Station WCAE by two outstanding civic leaders, is a live topic of the day. Within the past several years there have been drives to repeal the laws, enacted in 1794, culminating with a bill in the Pennsylvania Legislature, known as the Denning Sunday baseball law. It was killed in the Senate Law and Order Committee, the graveyard of many similar efforts, in May of last year.

Two years ago the Sun-Telegraph conducted a poll on the question of repealing the law. Allegheny County gave a 5-to-1 vote for repeal, the final count being: Enforcement, 10,164; modification, 5,089, and for repeal, 48,975.

The radio debate is on resolved, "That Pennsylvania's Sunday Law Should be Repealed." Attorney Charles F. C. Arensberg, affirmative, and Rev. James McQuilkin, pastor of the Carnegie United Presbyterian Church, negative, are outstanding in their respective field of thought and endeavor. Attorney Arensberg will speak tomorrow at 10 p. m. for seven minutes, followed by the Rev. Dr. McQuilkin. On Saturday night at 8 o'clock the Rev. Dr. McQuilkin will give the first rebuttal.

Carnegie Boy Saves Pal Drowning in Pool

"Billy" Lyons, 13, of 343 Center avenue, Carnegie, was being congratulated today for the rescue from drowning of his pal, George Dull, 10, of Grant street, Carnegie, in a pool above Rosslyn.

The boys were playing on a raft when it capsized, throwing them into the water. "Billy" reached the shore, then looked back and saw his companion floundering in the water. He leaped into the water, swam to the boy and grasped him as he was going down the third time.

The pool, formed where workmen had stripped coal, is about 100 by 30 feet and is 9 feet deep.

BUILDING GROUP URGES UTILITY TAX DRIVE

Owners, Managers Request Council Aid Plan to Lobby For Public Service Levy

Recommendations that City Council name a committee to co-operate with the Building Owners and Managers Association, along with other civic organizations, to lobby at Harrisburg for tax assessments on public utilities groups here, had been made today.

J. W. Bamford, of the Building Owners and Managers' Association, along with representatives from the Oakland and Allied boards of Trade, and the Allegheny County League of Building and Loan Associations, promised Council full co-operation in the plan, tentatively devised for a proposed special session of the Legislature to be called soon by Gov. Pinchot.

APPEAL PLANNED

The proposal was the result of a long hearing late yesterday in the City-County Building.

When Thomas J. McMahon, chief city assessor, pointed out public utilities were exempted from taxation, Bamford and his colleagues stressed efforts to bring about some method of collection by appealing to Harrisburg.

Flaying the laws which prohibit taxing of more than $35,000,000 worth of public utilities properties here, McMahon asserted when efforts were made sometime ago to legislate at Harrisburg for a change in the situation, the organizations attending yesterday's hearing were "conspicuous by their absence."

TAXES COMPARED

Taxes here are the fifth lowest in the United States, he said, adding that the City Board of Assessors is operated for one-seventh of the cost of the Allegheny County Tax Board. The city board costs less to operate, he declared, than any other in the United States.

Pointing out that no efforts were made to bring about reductions in the county offices or the school district, McMahon asked that some attention be given this matter by the organizations.

Allegheny County has been enabled to cut its payrolls, he declared, because salaries have increased 450 per cent since 1921. The city's increase has been 250 per cent and the school district's 410 per cent, he said.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 16.—Sixty Pittsburgh business, civic and educational leaders visited Uniontown today, the first stop on a two-day tour of the Allegheny tablelands.

They were greeted by several hundred members of the Uniontown Chamber of Commerce headed by G. Carl Areford, its president, and Mayor William C. Hatfield.

Thomas F. Dunn, president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce and leader of the tour, spoke at a meeting in the White Swan Hotel, urging that the two cities co-operate in community benefit programs. William F. Martin, a former Pittsburgh newspaperman, also spoke.

The tourists, traveling in two large busses and planning to study possible development of social and commercial relations among communities in the district, will spend the night at Mountain Lake Park, near Oakland, Md., after an afternoon stop in Morgantown, W. Va.

HANGING DENIED LIFE TERMER

HARTFORD, Conn., June 16.—(AP.)—Dr. Harold N. Guilfoyle was told today that the Superior Court was powerless to grant his request that he be hanged for a slaying for which he is serving a life sentence.

The Hartford veterianarian based his plea for death on the contention that the court erred in convicting him of second degree murder when the indictment charged him with first degree murder. He was accused of slaying Mrs. Claire Kavanaugh Gaudet in 1928.

"Of course, I can't order you hanged, even if I should want to. But you have no desire to be hanged, no more than I do."

The veterinarian insisted:

"But I do. A death sentence is preferable to a life sentence. I am friendless, and penniless, and I can't get my case heard further."

Guilfoyle reiterated he was innocent and said he had presented the petition in the hope of a new trial. Judge O'Sullivan took this phase of the petition under advisement.

During the trial the state charged Guilfoyle shot Mrs. Gaudet as a result of a love affair.

Boy Slashed in Leg, Assailant Forgiven

Robert Joyce, 12, of 201 West Main street, Carnegie, was recovering today from a knife wound in his leg, inflicted by a youth who became angered when Joyce and two companions made a remark about work being done by the assailant. According to Mrs. Joyce, mother of the injured boy, no charge was brought against the assailant because he is the only support of a widowed mother.

LAST OF GANG FOUND GUILTY

William Cullen, 40, the last member of the Considine robber gang to stand trial, was found guilty of burglary by a jury today. Sentence was postponed by Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff, pending a motion for a new trial. Grace McCully was acquitted by directed verdict, on a charge of receiving stolen goods in connection with operations of the gang, but was rearrested on a similar charge. Robert Considine, confessed international crook serving 15 to 30 years for 100 robberies, brought from Western Penitentiary, testified Cullen was not with the gang when the burglary of the home of Charles Best, 5757 Fifth avenue, for which he was tried, was committed, February 1. Another member of the gang, John Miller, awaiting sentence, testified Cullen accompanied them.

DUCE PLOTTERS TO DIE AT DAWN

ROME, June 16.—(INS.)—Two Italian anarchists, found guilty of complicity in separate plots to assassinate Premier Benito Mussolini, will be strapped to chairs at dawn tomorrow and shot in the back by firing squads.

Angelo Sbardellotto, 25, who made three attempts upon the life of Il Duce, was convicted today after less than 10 minutes' deliberation by a special military tribunal. Domenico Bovone, who concocted a melodramatic bomb plot against the Premier with the aid of a beautiful Austrian dancer, was found guilty.

Both were sentenced to die at the same time and by the traditional means used in Italy to dispatch conspirators against the life of the Premier.

SISTER MODELS ACCOMPLISHED

Farrell Girls, Radio Singers, Kept Busy Posing

Miss Ann and Miss Kitty Farrell, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Farrell, owners of the City Lumber Company, are what you might call two busy girls.

Unwilling to follow the customary, quiet channels of social life, both girls work as professional models, posing in bathing suits, gowns, hair transformation and shoes.

In addition to this, they sing on the radio and still find time to swim and dance.

AUTO WRECKED IN RUM CHASE

A driverless automobile crashed against a building at 810 Webster avenue early today, terminating a thrilling two-block chase by prohibition agents after a suspected rum runner.

Fleeing on foot after the crash, agents said, William Arnold, 20, of 49 Chatham stret, was arrested at Bigelow boulevard and Seventh avenue.

Agents said the chase started in Webster avenue, near Washington street. Down the grade the automobiles sped. At Eppy's parking lot, the fugitive drove his machine across the lot in a last effort to elude capture. Unable to dodge a building which loomed in his path, Arnold jumped, agents said, th abandoned automobile smashing into the front of the building.

Search of the machine, which bore an Ohio license, resulted in the seizure of 75 gallons of moonshine whisky.

AMELIA SCANS PLANE ON SHIP

SS. ILE DE FRANCE, June 16.—(AP.)—Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam had traveled 350 miles on her return trip to America today in exactly the same elapsed time—15½ hours—that she spanned the entire Atlantic alone by airplane on May 20.

This ship was 350 miles out from Plymouth, England, when Mrs. Putnam noticed that the time was the same as that of her solo flight of 2,100 miles from Harbor Grace, N. F., to Londonderry, Northern Ireland. She said:

"But this is rather more restful."

Embarking yesterday with her husband, George Palmer Putnam, the American flier's first interest was to inspect her red and gold plane, the wings and fuselage of which were crated and housed on the afterdeck.

Apparently almost as interested in the plane as the owner was Primo Carnera, the Italian heavyweight, whose 260 pounds contracted with the 118 pounds of the slim aviatrix.

Rose Kelly, 24, of 337 First avenue, was in Allegheny General Hospital today suffering from a probable fracture of the skull received when she was knocked down during an argument, her head striking a chair.

Joseph Pennington, 50, alleged proprietor of the Pennington Hotel at 337 First avenue, and Nellie Carson, alias Roberts, 25, of the same address, were being held in Central Police Station on suspicious person charges.

THE HEART OF THE CRUDE

ATLANTIC
Paraffine Base
MOTOR OIL
The Heart of the Crude

NO "LIGHT ENDS"

"Light ends" evaporate • Cause excessive oil consumption. • Have low viscosity. • Have low lubricating value under heat.

NO "HEAVY ENDS"

"Heavy ends" contain residual impurities. • Form tar-like deposit on exhaust valve stem. • Form carbon deposit in combustion chamber, on underside of piston head and behind the piston rings. • Cause formation of crankcase sludge.

THE great new ATLANTIC MOTOR OIL, available Saturday, is without question the greatest advance in lubrication in many years.

Being the heart of the crude, it has none of the injurious elements of "light ends" and "heavy ends."

It easily withstands temperatures two or three times higher than the lubricated parts of your engine can ever develop. It has no tendency to "crack." It is one of the most stable oils ever developed. It has higher viscosity than usual, for better engine protection in summer. It was especially developed for engines of high compression, and for high-speed driving.

Carbon-forming characteristics are so low that the combustion chamber of the motor remains clean after thousands of miles of operation. Inherent sludging characteristics are negligible.

Because of higher viscosity and the elimination of "light ends," there is no evaporation loss; therefore the new ATLANTIC MOTOR OIL will last far longer. A new filtering process gives it a distinctive brilliance.

In short, the new ATLANTIC MOTOR OIL will do a better lubricating job—over a longer period of time—than any other oil ever offered motorists.

The best news is saved till the last. This marvelous new oil sells at no extra cost. Even the new HEAVY costs only 25c a quart.

LOW LIMIT ENDS CAREERS OF VETS

THOUGH YOUNGER PLAYERS in the main were the ones to draw releases when the major league clubs did their final pruning to get down to the new summer limit of 23 men, which took effect last midnight to remain in force until August 31, the regulation was the cause of earlier cuts that ended the big-show careers of a number of old-timers.

Harry Heilmann

One of the most famous stars of yesteryear to be dropped was Harry Heilmann, a four-time batting champion in his American League days, and a big leaguer steadily since 1916, who was let go recently by the Reds. Outfielder Clifton Heathcote, a Penn State athlete until 1917, was given his freedom by the same club after more than 13 years of service in the majors. Pitcher Waite Hoyt, a world series star as early as 1921, was turned loose by the Dodgers. Shortstop Joe Boley was made a free agent by the A's, though he may get another chance with Cleveland. Pitcher Pete Donohue passed from the Red Sox to Jersey City, and Shortstop Mark Koenig was shipped from Detroit to the Missions.

BOOKED TO PLAY two games in Boston tomorrow as part of that city's celebration of Bunker Hill Day, the Pirates will be drawing a Hub holiday that comes to them only once in every eight years. The two leagues take the day in alternate seasons, and it is given to each of the four Western clubs in turn.

This will be the fourth time the Bucs have had the date since the leagues ended their war. In 1908, Nick Maddox and Lefty Leifield pitched a double victory, 14 to 4 and 4 to 2; in 1916, both games were rained out, and in 1924 Remy Kremer defeated Jim Yeargin, 5 to 2, while Lee Meadows lost a 1-to-0 decision to Tim McNamara.

THE HOLIDAY VISIT to Boston in 1916 was made memorable by the fact that on June 16, the eve of Bunker Hill Day, Tom Hughes II. pitched a no-hit shutout against the Pirates, beating Erving Kantlehner and Bob Harmon.

Hughes thus became one of four pitchers to hold the Pittsburgh club hitless in National League games. The others were Bumpus Jones, of the Reds, in 1892; Theodore Breitenstein, of the Reds, in 1898, and Carl Hubbell, of the Giants, in 1929. Claude Hendrix accomplished the feat against Pittsburgh in the Federal League, as did Guy Hecker, Albert Atkisson, Ed Morris and Matty Kilroy in the old American Association.

ADDED WEIGHT IS the explanation given by Rogers Hornsby for the improvement in Bill Jurges. "He was too light in 1931, but he reported this year weighing 15 extra pounds, and that was what he needed," said the Cub manager. "Jurges also used to take his eye off the ball while he was at bat, but he immediately corrected that fault when it was called to his attention, showing that he wanted to learn, and his hitting has improved a lot. I think I'll keep him at shortstop indefinitely. You can't tell what difference a few pounds will make. Last season I thought Jurges was a bust. This season I think he is a star."

Mickey Finn

NO MATTER WHAT Max Carey's plans may have been at first, it became certain during the last few days that Cornelius Francis Finn would not be among the Brooklyn players dropped in order to reduce the Dodger roster to the new limit of 23 taking effect last night.

Until the latter part of last week, Finn's place on the payroll was none too secure, but an injury to Joe Stripp gave him his chance. Mickey put up such a great game at third base that when Stripp returned to action it was decided to put Joe at first base and leave Finn at third, and the combination has worked out so well that Carey may allow it to stand permanently, permanently.

IN ADDITION TO fielding brilliantly and hitting around .350, Finn is full of fighting spirit and is proving a sparkplug to the Brooklyn club. The more they pick on him the harder he comes back.

This was discovered recently by Bill Jurges and Woody English and the Cub pitchers who were accused of throwing at his head repeatedly. They couldn't take any of the fight out of Mickey. He wound up by calling Rogers Hornsby a "country fair manager" and inviting him under the grandstand.

CHICAGO CRITICS ARE convinced that Juan Zabala, the Argentine runner, belongs among the supermen of footracing. Running 15 miles in 1 hour, 20 minutes, 37.4 seconds, was just a breeze for him, and when the race was over he turned handsprings to relax his muscles. The National Intercollegiate track meet in the same city on the same day offered an interesting comparison. While Shugert, of Miami, was winning the intercollegiate two-mile race in 9:16.7, Zabala was running the first two miles of his long race in 9:40, or 24 seconds slower, but with the difference that Zabala continued on his way after the two miles and ran 13 miles more at close to the same rate.

HOCKEY RUMORS SAY that the change in the management of the Montreal Maroons, with Eddie Gerard taking the place of Sprague Cleghorn, is expected to lead to a housecleaning.

According to reports, a deal is already pending, whereby, if it is put through, Stewart, Smith and Siebert will go to the New York Americans in exchange for Roy Worters, former Pittsburgh goalie, and Red Dutton, husky defense man.

OWNING A THOROUGHBRED race horse is a big gamble. One day a good colt is worth $100,000, and the next day he may not be worth $100 for racing purposes. The death of Phar Lap meant a loss of half a million to his owner. Twenty Grand and other handicap stars were suddenly put out of commission, their futures in doubt.

Col. E. R. Bradley

And now the jinx is playing havoc among the prominent 3-year-olds of the season. The withdrawal of Burgoo King from the American Derby in Chicago Saturday on account of a bowed tendon was another addition to a record-breaking list of casualties in that division, leading Henry King to remark that the thoroughbred is a delicate and perishable bit of property.

THE INJURY TO Burgoo King was the second visit of the hoodoo to the stable of E. R. Bradley, as previously Brother Joe, owned by the same man, went wrong in the Kentucky Derby. Mrs. L. G. Kaufman also suffered a double misfortune, as one of Tick On's shoulders was hurt on the stall gate in the Preakness, and On Post went lame training at Havre de Grace and again at Belmont Park. R. W. Daniel's Brandon Mint was jumped on in the Kentucky Derby. Thomas Cassidy's Universe suffered a foot injury at Churchill Downs on the eve of the Derby. Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt's Sweeping Light cracked a hoof galloping at Belmont. Mrs. Dodge Sloan's Flag Pole was hurt in the stall gate at the same track, and came out of the race with two bowed tendons. C. V. Whitney's Fair Apple spread a hoof training for the Derby. So did Victor Emanue"s Incantation. The Standon Stable's Running Blaze was jumped on by another horse in a race a week before the Derby, and Mrs. Payne Whitney's Cavalcade went on the injured list after the Preakness.

JIMMY BRONSON AMAZED AT SHARKEY

After working indoors yesterday with the mercury climbing higher every minute, Jack dropped his weight from above 206 pounds to 202½.

The challenger, who is rapidly reaching the peak of condition for his fight in New York next Tuesday night against world heavyweight champion, Max Schmeling, went through four sizzling rounds.

Joe Sekyra got one of Sharkey's lefts flush on the button, and, while he was gasping, the Boston sailor moved in close and shot a volley of rights and lefts to the body. They fought fiercely in the second round and Sekyra almost returned blow for blow, giving the challenger a warm barrage.

BRONSON 'AMAZED'

Jimmy Bronson, who was a training camp adviser and chief second for Gene Tunney in the retired champion's two famous encounters with Jack Dempsey, saw the Bostonian work and said he was "simply amazed at this man." He said:

"He is as close to perfect as I have ever seen him. He could not be in better condition and his boxing is splendid."

MAX RESUMES WORK

KINGSTON, N. Y., June 16.—(INS.)—Max Schmeling was to resume boxing today. The heavyweight champion rested yesterday for the second consecutive day and his workout in preparation for his tilt with Jack Sharkey in New York next Tuesday, was confined to the golf course.

The champion planned to box this afternoon, and, following another rest tomorrow, will return to the practice ring again on Saturday and Sunday. He will break camp on Monday.

Manager Joe Jacobs said today he was well satisfied with Schmeling's condition. He indicated the champion was taking things easy so as not to be overtrained. Jacobs pointed out that the German had been training longer and harder for the Sharkey fight than for any bout in his ring career.

Jacobs remained confident of Max's ability and predicted he would win against Sharkey. He said Max is in better physical condition than he had ever been and that he would surprise the fans by wading into Sharkey at the outset.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: A SERVICE "VETERAN" AT THE AGE OF 16—Thomas F. Logan, of Somerville, N. J., was born in July, 1885, ran away from home in the spring of 1899, and joined a volunteer regiment, going on to the Philippines, where he served as mascot of the 31st U. S. Infantry. Shortly afterward, he joined the Marine Corps at Cavite. Returning to Manila, he spent some time as mounted messenger in the Quartermaster's Department, after which he returned to the United States. Civilian life was too quiet, and, early in 1901, Logan again ran away from home to join the cavalry at Ft. Myers, Va., where he remained until he joined the Field Artillery, Battery B. After a few days in the Artillery, the New Jersey National Guard entraining for his home town looked good to him, so he joined the group and returned to Somerville, having seen active service in all branches of land service before he was 16.

HARRIS CHOICE IN CENTURY

By JESS CARVER

There may be some doubt as to the eventual winners in a few of the events in the annual A. M. A. senior track and field championship meet in the Pitt Stadium Saturday, but unless he breaks a leg between now and the time he breasts the tape in the final heat, Woody Harris is the lad for the century.

This year's entry in the sprints is husky enough numerically, but lacks the class of previous fields. Aside from the Pitt star, who'll board a rattler Sunday and head for California and the I. C. A. A. A. A. meet at Berkeley, there isn't an outstanding sprinter in the list of a score or more who'll start.

Harris may look to a quartet of veterans, including his own captain, for his toughest competition George Chermonitz, Lou Peresney, Everett Utterback, former Pitt star and national indoor intercollegiate broad jump champion, and Capt. Len Monhein, of this year's Pitt varsity, all figure to be in the final heat.

George Willis, who climaxed his career as a Waynesburg College varsity athletic performer in a highly sensational manner Memorial Day by beating the favorite, Nulton, of Geneva, by a stride in the half-mile run, was honored signally yesterday at the Waynesburg commencement exercises when he was presented the Tri-State Conference medal for all-round scholastic and athletic ability.

Willis was a member of the Yellow Jacket wrestling and track squads for three years. He was an outstanding student, serving as an assistant instructor in natural science last year.

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

Nick Altrock

It's the same old complaint. The pitching staff is on the cash-and-carry plan and is not delivering. The Reds never had much stamina in the box and lately the hurlers act like they could throw their arms out just pitching pennies.

Perry High Netters Win in Tourney

Helm, of Perry, defeated Duder, of Allegheny, 6-1, 6-2, and Lowe, of Perry, put out Stilhoski, of Vocational, 6-1, 6-1. Helm won a second round match, defeating Kruze, of Oliver, 6-0, 6-0.

DORMONT FLAG HOPES FADE

Dormont's chances of winning the first half pennant in the City League practically were obliterated last evening when Dutch Spencer, Reliance Life's classy southpaw, twirled one of the best games of his career, limiting the champions to six hits, and shut them out, 4 to 0.

Spencer has been turning in classics over a period of years for Reliance, but his feat of stopping the champions dead in their tracks was one of his best. It hardly is possible that Dormont can catch the flying Book nine now. The first half title seems to be in the bag for the latter.

M'KNIGHTS' HOPES HIGH

Pat Griffin and his Soho McKnights have not given up hope of winning the first half title in the West Penn League. Next Tuesday, the Homestead Aces must meet the Carrick Eagles, and this is where Griffin expects to catch up with the Fertig aggregation. This evening the McKnights take on the Garfield Martins at Moultrie Park.

Two games will be played in the City League. Books meet the North Siders at the Salt Works and Homewood takes on the Ferris nine. Saturday the Jamestown (N. Y.) Spiderwebs, with a few former major leaguers in the lineup, are due to clash with the Pittsburgh Crawfords in two games at Greenlee Field. Erickson and Hugh Bedient, veteran hurlers, both will be in the visitors' lineup.

While Dormont was being so rudely treated by Reliance in the City League last evening, the Frank Ferris nine and Homewood battled to a 2-all deadlock, the second tie game in a row for Homewood.

EAGLES VICTORS

In the West Penn circuit, the Carrick Eagles defeated the Duquesne Republicans, 2 to 0. Carnegie took the Scott Morgans in the County eLague, 11-7; Dormont won over Fairmont in the Junior League, 21-7, and in the American Legion round-robin tournament, the Phillips nine downed the Rauh Juniors, 21 to 0.

Homestead Aces won over Greenfield, 6-0; Crawfords tripped Monessen, 6-3 and the Griffins and Soho McKnights played to a 5-5 tie in leading non-league frays.

SECOND BATTLE WITH BRAVES CALLED OFF

BOSTON, June 16.—Rain today prevented the second battle of the five-game series between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Boston Braves.

The two teams will clash in a doubleheader at Braves Field tomorrow afternoon in commemoration of Bunker Hill Day.

Steve Swetonic, who was scheduled to oppose the Braves this afternoon, likely will take the mound in the first battle tomorrow. Bob Brown is expected to hurl for the Braves.

PIRATES WIN OPENER

Piet's triple in the eighth with two out and two on gave the Pirates a victory over the Braves yesterday in the first clash of the season between the two clubs on Braves Field. The score was 5 to 2. Earlier in the game Tony put the enemy in front with a low throw, his error allowing two runs to score.

Heinie Meine and Bill Swift held the Tribe to five hits while the Rovers nicked Southpaw Eddie Brandt for 15 safeties. Eddie had been a stumbling block for Pirate batters, but they measured him in the opener here.

Adam Comorosky batted for Meine in the seventh and singled to drive in the tying run. Swift finished and received credit for the victory. Tommy Padden, the Bucs' promising young catcher, also worked his way into the late rounds of the fight. Padden came up in the eighth and carved out a single to give the Pirates their final tally.

PIET HITS TRIPLE

Traynor singled with one out in the eighth. With Barbee out on a foul fly, Suhr singled, Pie taking third. On Schulmerich's throw to first, Suhr dashed to second and then Piet came through with his game-winning triple and Padden followed with a single, three Pirates rushing over the plate on the two hits.

Vaughan's speed figured deeply in the first run of the contest. Floyd dragged a bunt to Maranville and beat out the tap to open the fourth. Traynor sacrificed, but Barbee could not help. Vaughan then swiped third and Suhr singled to score the recruit.

BRAVES TAKE LEAD

The Braves forged ahead in the sixth on Piet's misplay. Urbanski opened the round with a single but was forced by Leach. Worthington came through with a double and the bases were filled when Schulmerich was passed purposely. Shires popped to Vaughan and Maranville grounded to Piet, but Tony threw low to Suhr as two runs went over for the home team. Singles by Suhr and Grace were delivered in the seventh before Comorosky, batting for Meine, drove in the tying marker.

NO SUSPENSION FOR DEAN

ST. LOUIS, June 16.—(INS.)—Jerome (Dizzy) Dean, Cardinals' pitcher who quit the team yesterday in Philadelphia, will not be fined or suspended for his action, Branch Rickey, vice president of the club, said today.

Rickey said he believed Dean's desertion was not due to any "peeve" against the Cardinals, but because of a letter received from his wife informing him she was leaving St. Louis.

VISITS BROTHER

Dizzy said he would go to St. Louis to tell the Cardinal moguls how he had been mistreated. He added that he considered himself underpaid.

TERRY MAKES FINE START AS GIANT PILOT

LEADERS LOSE IN AMERICAN; REDS WIN

Associated Press.

Time alone will judge of Bill Terry's ability to handle a big league club, but there is no denying the big first baseman has made an imposing start as major domo of the Giants.

When he took them off John McGraw's tired hands less than two weeks ago, the New Yorkers were running eighth in the National League.

All Terry did after he took charge—for publication, at least—was to abolish the 11:30 curfew rule and appoint a new club doctor, but it hasn't looked like the same team.

HERMAN'S ERROR COSTLY

Today the Giants stood in fourth place, only four games from the top, after winning eight out of 10 games played under their new foreman. A costly error by Bill Herman, Chicago second baseman, gave the Giants five runs in the eighth inning and a 6-to-3 victory over the Cubs in their opener yesterday.

The defeat did not cut into the Cubs' lead over the field, however, as the second place Boston Braves were dropping a 5-to-2 verdict to Pittsburgh.

Babe Herman had a happy homecoming at Ebbets Field as the Cincinnati Reds trimmed Brooklyn, 8 to 1. The Babe hit a home run, a triple and a double and drove in three runs against his former mates.

The Phillies took a shortened contest from the Cardinals, 7 to 4, rain stopping play in the seventh inning.

LEADERS DEFEATED

The American League's three top teams encountered defeat at the hands of western rivals. The Yankees dropped a close one to the Chicago White Sox, 2 to 1. Lou Gehrig's fourteenth home run averted a shutout for the leaders.

Earl Webb, playing his first game in a Detroit uniform, teamed up with Gerald Walker to defeat Washington, 7 to 6. Each bagged two doubles, and between them they scored three runs and batted in five.

The St. Louis Browns shaded the athletics, 9 to 8, when they scored twice in the ninth.

Ben Avon Lad to Row for Cornell In Regatta at Poughkeepsie Monday

TAYLORS' KIN MAKES GOOD

The scion of a prominent local rowing and swimming family is helping to make rowing history at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., and will compete in the Poughkeepsie regatta next Monday.

He is John W. Todd, Jr., of Ben Avon, grandson of the late James G. Taylor, who in the '70s was a world sculling champion, and a great-nephew of John T. Taylor, secretary-treasurer of the Allegheny Mountain Association, of the A. A. U., a former famous swimmer, and of James R. Taylor, swimming coach at the Keystone Athletic Club, also a former leading local amphibian.

James G. Taylor rowed bow oar on the famous Tyne four-oared crew of Newcastle, England, which won the world championship at Lachine, Canada, in 1870 and retained it at Halifax, Nova Scotia, the following year.

PREPPED AT BEN AVON

Young Todd prepared for Cornell at Ben Avon High School, and is a student in the college of engineering. He was the honor student of his class at Ben Avon, where he was a member of the football and basketball teams. At Cornell, he has been awarded his numerals in football, is a member of his class committee and was honored by being named toastmaster at the annual class banquet. He is a member of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity.

The freshman crew at Cornell, of which Todd is a member, is one of the best in the Cayugans' history. It is a typical Cornell crew, boasting height and weight. Its members, aside from the coxswain, of course, range from 6 feet to 6 feet 4 inches in height and from 170 to 190 pounds in weight.

CREW BREAKS RECORDS

In its first race of the year, at two miles, the Cornell freshman crew finished second to Yale's crew, with the Princeton freshmen third, at Ithaca. Both Yale and Cornell broke the varsity record for the course, which had stood for 11 years. In a dual race with Harvard, at Cambridge, a week later, on May 28, the Cornell yearlings won and broke the varsity record for the 1¼-mile course on the Charles River.

All of Cornell's crews now are quartered at Poughkeepsie for the intercollegiate regatta, in which varsity, junior varsity and freshman crews representing California, Columbia, Cornell, Massachusetts Tech, Navy, Pennsylvania, Syracuse, Washington State and Wisconsin will compete.

PATTERN FOR BOATS

Between Rounds

Jimmy Thomas got himself a flock of good writeups in the Toronto newspapers for the fine fight he put up against Pete Sanstol there the other night, and, as a result, is to be booked into Montreal at an early date. He had to take off almost two pounds at weighing-in time, but fought well, nevertheless. Spider Pladner and Midget Wolgast box in Montreal one week from next Monday night.

Andy Neidereiter collected $350 in expenses for Johnny Irisano's bout with Ted Yarosz which failed to come off at the Meyers Bowl last Monday night. Before departing, he picked Jack Sharkey to defeat Max Schmeling in their bout next week, giving it as his opinion that the American has too much boxing class for the champion. Indrisano's trainer, formerly with Sharkey in a similar capacity, sees Schmeling as the victor.

Marty McHale, of McKeesport, boxes Pee Wee Jarrell in a 10-rounder at Zanesville, O., next Monday night.

BOUT POSTPONED

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—(AP.)—Heavy rains caused the postponement of last night's boxing show in which Kid Chocolate, junior lightweight champion, and Benny Leonard, former lightweight champion, were scheduled as headliners. The bouts probably will be held tonight.

Beats Par

FRED WEPPNER

Par at the Pittsburgh Field Club course was shattered in competitive golf for the first time in two years yesterday when Fred Weppner, of Stanton Heights, shot a 71 to lead the field in the P. G. A. one-day tourney. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

LOCAL TALENT IN BATTLES

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Lee Sala vs. Anson Green, Sunny Jim McVey vs. Tiger Joe West, Johnny Cataline vs. Jackie Wilson and Frank Novak vs. Jack Kearns, 8 rounds each, Hickey Park, Millvale.

Tony Canzoneri vs. Harry Dublinsky (non-title), 10 rounds; Paul Dazzo vs. Cleveland Mickey Cohen, 8 rounds; Sammy Levine vs. Frankie Cheek and Mickey Patrick vs. Nick Taft, 8 rounds each, and Bobby Allen vs. Nick Scialuba, 4 rounds, Chicago.

Kid Chocolate vs. Roger Bernard (non-title), Benny Leonard vs. Billy Angelo, Jimmy Braddock vs. Al Ettore and Young Firpo vs. Buster Brown, 10 rounds each, Phillies' Park, Philadelphia (postponed from last night.)

Local talent, more or less in the background in the boxing war now raging in the Pittsburgh sector, comes back into its own tonight when an all-star card of district mixers will appear in four eight-round battles at Hickey Park, Millvale.

Lee Sala, of Donora, who has been rolling along in great fashion against our middleweights, boxes Anson Green, Homestead Negro, in the windup, a return bout. They recently fought a six-rounder in the same ring, with Sala flooring his man for a nine count. The winner tonight is to be matched with Tommy Freeman, the former world welterweight champion, according to the club.

Johnny Cataline, of Oakland, and Jackie Wilson, East End Negro featherweight, will fight it out for the right to box Chico Cisneros, of Cleveland, on the same program with the Freeman bout. Sunny Jim McVey, Negro lightheavyweight, and Tiger Joe West will clash in the semi-final, and Jack Kearns and Frank Novak, heavies, mix in the opener.

NET TOURNEY DRAW TONIGHT

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Men's singles entries in the forty-fourth annual Western Pennsylvania tennis championships, beginning at the Stanton Heights Golf Club day after tomorrow, will be closed this evening. Chairman Frank S. Smith has announced he will receive names by 'phone at Atlantic 2800 until 5 o'clock this afternoon, at Churchill 1439 till 7:15, and at Montrose 8733 or 1210 until 8 p. m. At the last named hour the tournament committee will begin the man-to-man draw, a task by no means simple, for it involves not only the handling of the names of scores of aspirants to honors, but also the selection and ranking of seeded performers.

It definitely was determined yesterday that Bill Haseltine, popular Philadelphia youngster, who last year and the year before hitch-hiked to Pittsburgh to carry off the David I. McCahill Cup, symbolic of men's singles supremacy here, will be on deck to defend his laurels. Haseltine is holding down a new position in the Quaker City and for a time it was feared that he would be unable to leave the job to joust for the final leg on the flagon.

Doubt on this score has been dispelled by Lefty Haseltine, Swissvale twirler and cousin of Bill, the southpaw star having informed the writer that his Eastern relative is all primed for hostilities. And he'd better be primed, too, for the O'Loughlins, B. F. Arkle, of Wheeling; Paul Hicks, Charley Lockhart, Jack Beatty, Leonard Reed and McCook Reed cast covetous eyes in the direction of the McCahill silverware.

In women's singles, the entry list even this early is the largest and most promising offered in many a day. Miriam Sullivan, of the P. A. A., has entered in defense of her 1931 crown and the Honus Wagner cup significant thereof, while such rivals as Dorothy Jarvis, 1927 and 1930 victor; Dorothy Anderson, Butlerite and 1930 runner-up, and Helen Carson, finalist of a year ago, will likewise seek top honors.

Chairman Smith states that advance reports indicate a feminine singles roster totaling around 40, all of which presages exceptional women's and mixed doubles interest, as well.

Arrangements are being completed for the installation of temporary stands adjacent to the Stanton rectangles. Accommodations for between 300 and 400 spectators will be provided. There's no admission charge and all sport lovers of the Steel City area are invited to attend the tourney sessions, which will be held daily from 1 p. m., Saturday, till dusk of Sunday, June 26.

June Guy Trots To New Record

June Guy, with Dave G. McDonald handling the reins, trotted to a new Schenley Oval record for the mile yesterday in a special exhibition. The 5-year-old stallion was clocked in 2:07, the fastest mile of the year in the United States. The exhibition trot was held in connection with the regular weekly race program of the Schenley Matinee Club.

RING FANS BOO AS PETROLLE 'EXHIBITS'

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

The old razzle-dazzle. That's what the Billy Petrolle-Tommy Grogan fight at Greenlee Field looked like last night, as Billy coasted through the 10 rounds, stalking his man, hitting him lightly for the most part, getting hit a lot himself and hearing the boos of dissatisfied customers as he left the ring, richer in pocket by $3,500, but a heavier loser in prestige with the local fans.

It was a soft touch for Petrolle, who won the decision, was warned after the third round by Referee Red Robinson to open up and fight or risk the loss of his purse, and scored knockdowns for counts of nine in the second and sixth rounds, but saw to it that the dear old pal who had won over him by a technical knockout in Omaha several years ago was on his feet at the finish.

Just what Petrolle's motive was for palpably "carrying" Grogan is not quite clear. He looked bad himself as he walked in and left himself open for punches and had his mouth cut. Grogan, breaking ground all of the way, was in there to stay the limit and did plenty of tincanning, fighting back in spurts just enough to keep the thing from being too onesided. In a few of the rounds, Tommy actually scored more blows than Petrolle, but it was apparent even to the fans in the far stands that Billy didn't care and that he wasn't putting much on his own punches and could have turned in a knockout early if he had wanted to.

Even the splattering raindrops failed to awaken a desire in Billy to get the thing over with in a hurry. Maybe he wanted to give the crowd a show, maybe he wanted to get 10 rounds of work under his belt, and maybe he has just a friendly feeling for Grogan. At any rate, the fans, even after seeing him in action for 10 rounds, sat through the preliminaries that followed muttering that they felt cheated because they had not seen the real Fargo Express perform.

NOT REAL PETROLLE

Petrolle had Grogan bleeding from the nose and almost pitching out of the ring in the first round, and, after dropping him with a right to the jaw in the second, eased off. He kept busy moving and hooking and swinging, but seldom with any force, and generally short or wide of the mark. He frequently had Grogan in spots for killing punches only to be let off. It looked like the razzle-dazzle, all right, although they may have a new name for it now. Grogan tried hard and deserves credit for going through the 10 rounds. He accumulated a split right ear among his other souvenirs.

Petrolle weighed 138½ and Grogan 142.

Rain fell intermittently throughout the show and the windup was put on after the first two preliminaries, in which Johnny Riske, of the South Hills, stopped Jack Snyder, Herron Hill middleweight, in the third round, looking good in doing it, and Johnny Curtin, of Dayton, O., finished strong to beat Ray Winbush, Hill Negro welterweight, via the referee's decision.

BAXTER STOPS FOE

Referee Al Grayber stopped the bout between Charley Baxter, of McKees Rocks, and Len Sheppard, Detroit Negro, following the main bout, in the third round, after Baxter had dropped his man for six in the second round and nine twice in the third and had him goggle-eyed from rights to the jaw.

Prince Saunders, Duluth Negro featherweight, knocked down Mickey Duris, of Johnstown, for a count of eight and re-opened an old cut over the left eye in the second round of the final bout of eight rounds, but Duris outboxed and outpunched him all of the remainder of the way, despite the handicap of the bad eye, only to have all three officials agree on a draw at the finish.

The crowd was larger than for the first show of the new arena, which plans to operate again next Wednesday.

Fight Results

At Greenlee Field—Billy Petrolle defeated Tommy Grogan, 10 rounds; Mickey Duris and Prince Saunders drew (referee's decision), 8 rounds; Charley Baxter won by technical knockout over Len Sheppard, 3 rounds; Johnny Curtin won referee's decision over Ray Winbush, 6 rounds; Johnny Riske knocked out Jack Snyder, 3 rounds.

At New York—Isadore Gastanaga defeated Hans Birkle, 10 rounds.

GROGAN ON CANVAS IN THE SECOND ROUND FOR A COUNT OF NINE

After starting out as if bent on a quick knockotu victory, Billy Petrolle, Fargo Express, eased off on Tommy Grogan, of Omaha, and their battle at Greenlee Field last night went the limit. These Sun-Telegraph pictures are typical of the battle, which was booed by the crowd.

WEPPNER GETS DOUBLE WIN

By TOM BIRKS

Shooting one of the most brilliant rounds of his career, Fred Weppner, Stanton Heights star, led the largest field of the season in the second P. G. A. one-day tournament, held over the Pittsburgh Field Club terrain yesterday. Weppner shot a 71-3—68, one under par, to win both low gross and net prizes.

In the match play against par, with seven-eighths individual handicap, Bill English, of the Field Club, and Gilbert Mourning, of Stanton Heights, took the trophy, finishing 6 up.

It was the first time in two years that the Field Club par has been broken in competitive golf. Two years ago, Fred Brand, Jr., the Penn State ace, scored a 70 in the qualifying round for the national open tourney. Weppner's card follows:

Out... 4 4 4 3 4 4 4 4 4—35
In.... 4 4 6 4 3 5 3 3 4—36—71

LE BOSQUET SECOND

Weppner dropped a stroke on short No. 3, par three hole, and also on the long par five twelfth. Three birdies, however, made up for these lapses. Weppner finished before the storm broke, which caught Maurice Le Bosquet, of Highland, who turned in a neat 74.

George Flinn, Fox Chapel champion and secretary of the state body, started the field of 200 players and then went out to score a 75 to land in third place. Joe Royston, Jr., of Highland, took a 37-39—76, while Regis Wolff, captain of the Pitt varsity squad, had a bad outward round, but finshed with a 78. Jimmy Lappan, Field Club star, who is likely to go out and break the course record any time, turned in a 38-41—79. Lappan played with Jock Graham, South Hills champion, and W. E. Donahue, of the Field Club, who failed to post scores.

Torrid action marked the playing of the women's team matches in Section I yesterday at Fox Chapel. Consistent playing by Mrs. Bernd Rose's Allegheny team enabled it to regain the lead. The team scored seven points against Stanton Heights, while Oakmont had to be content to nose out the Field Club, 5 to 3. Barbara Warmcastle, young Field Club ace, turned in a classy 84.

Fox Chapel struck its stride when Mrs. Hilliard led the home squad to a 7 to 0 victory over Edgewood.

FINAL MATCHES MONDAY

The final matches will be played at Butler Country Club next Monday when a new champion will be crowned, and the last place team named to meet Westmoreland Country Club, winner in Section II, in the playoffs for the right to compete in Section I next year.

Today, the South Hills Country Club will hold a women's invitation tournament. In the late afternoon at Edgewood, a mixed foursome tournament will be held.

At Valley Heights the members will give a banquet in honor of Ted Luther, club pro and winner of the qualifying round at Oakmont in the National Open test and the Oakland Beach Open tourney at Conneaut Lake.

SANDOMIRE GETS ACE

Buck Sandomire, former well known basketball star, sank his tee shot on the No. 8, 125-yard hole at Schenley yesterday for a hole in one. Buckets used a driver.

A Boston man, D. S. Boyden, won the low gross honors yesterday as the National Heating Association, in convention here, staged a tournament at Edgewood. Boyden turned in an 86. T. C. Purcell, of Pittsburgh, got off the longest drive, a 300-yard affair. E. A. Hester, of Baltimore, won the kicker's handicap with a 73.

STOCK MARKET CREEPS HIGHER AFTER DIP

List Continues Advance Under Rail Leadership; U. S. Steel, Biscuit Gain

NEW YORK, June 16.—(AP.)—The stock market encountered some resistance to its advance as it approached the peak of the upturn of a fortnight ago today, but after early hesitancy, the list managed to creep higher under leadership of the rails.

Factors making for hesitancy may have been the opening of the Lausanne Conference, and the appearance of the bonus bill in the Senate, but further pronounced strength of the dollar in the foreign exchange markets, and a good tone in bonds, helped to maintain a fair degree of cheer.

A few early declines, amounting to a point in American Telephone, Case and Eastman, were recovered, and issues selling at net advances of 1 to 2 points by early afternoon included New York Central, Chesapeake and Ohio, Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Norfolk and Western, American Tobacco "B," National Biscuit, du Pont, Allied Chemical and others. Sugars remained firm, with Central Aguirre up nearly 2. Such issues as United States Steel, American Car and General Electric were up fractionally.

Buying of the rails lacked any tangible basis in the news, most of which has been distinctly adverse to the carriers. Nevertheless, a better feeling toward these issues appeared to have developed in some quarters, possibly reflecting the expectation that all July 1 interest payments will be met. There has also been some expectation that proposed government loans for self liquidating projects might include railroad loans to improve equipment. There has also been some vague discussion of possible loans to railroads with which to buy their own bonds for retirement at current depressed levels.

The adverse report of the Senate Finance Committee on the bonus measure was soon followed by a better tone in stocks, but this seemed to have been largely a coincidence, since financial quarters have not expected enactment of the measure. This has been evident in the good tone in United States governments and in the dollar. The sugar stocks continued to improve in response to the betterment in the statistical position in that commodity.

Financial quarters were but mildly hopeful over the possible results of the Lausanne Conference. Prime Minister MacDonald's statement at the initial session that Europe must have the help of the United States, met with some approval, but little enthusiasm in banking quarters, where it was pointed out that early developments of that character seemed doubtful.

Railroad Securities Omits.

Union Pacific Railroad Company today notified the New York Stock Exchange that no dividend payment would be made July 1 on the Illinois Central Railroad 4 per cent stock interest certificates of the Railroad Securities Company. Railroad Securities Company, wholly owned by Union Pacific, holds the latter's large investment in Illinois Central common and preferred stocks. Dividends on the stock interest certificates have been paid semi-annually out of the revenue received from Illinois Central dividends. Last January the rate was reduced to $17.50 from $20. Omission now is due to the suspension of dividends by Illinois Central.

Forbes

America Wins, France Loses; Fear Waning

By B. C. FORBES

THE UNITED STATES has won. France has lost.

The vicious financial attack on America, led by France and participated in by several other European countries, has been gloriously repulsed. This country unhesitatingly has met every foreign demand for gold. Our stock has been reduced fully a billion dollars, yet it remains quite as large as it was during the boom.

Mr. Forbes

I am told by heads of leading banks that the Bank of France has used up practically all its American deposits. Also, the amount now owed other countries has been so cut that no embarrassing withdrawals can possibly be made.

France may draw home some of her rather large amount of earmarked gold — that is, gold which has already been deposited in vaults here for her account and which no longer figures in America's banking statements.

My guess is that the next important international gold flow will be into America.

THE PROSPECT is that the value of the American dollar, as measured in other currencies, will substantially increase as soon as definite signs of business betterment arise. Foreign investors will recognize the superior attractions of American bonds and stocks, and extensive buying is likely to develop.

The United States had demonstrated that it is financially impregnable, that it is on the gold standard to stay, that it is abundantly able to meet all obligations.

MORE WHEN recuperation starts in earnest, the pace in this young, rich, resourceful country logically will be much faster than in any of the older nations. Youth-like, we habitually go to extremes. Did we not go to unprecedented extremes on the return trip? What vast room now for a rebound in values!

Bonds are regarded by even the most conservative of the old-school bankers as ridiculously cheap. Many stocks of seasoned, well-managed, financially strong companies are purchasable for an old song.

Not in the memory of man has cotton been so cheap; rubber never before approached such depths; copper is in exactly the same extraordinary position; sugar, silk, oil, silver and a hundred and one other commodities are dragging far below cost of production. Farm lands, real estate, properties of almost all kinds have been deflated beyond all reason.

Loans have been squeezed down unconscionably. Brokers' loans have tumbled from $8,600,000,000 to $373,000,000, a drop of over 95 per cent. Other borrowers know how they have been called upon to reduce their obligations. Thus the way has been paved for enormous expansion by credit when confidence returns.

SO PESSIMISTIC—so fatalistic—had sentiment become after Congress ran amuck that it is now noted that unfavorable news often fails to have any visible effect and that favorable news is acclaimed. "Blessed is he who expecteth nothing." The financial community, having resigned itself to the very worst news, manifests relief when anything short of the worst happens.

Whereas the very worst was feared from Congress, the very worst has not been visited upon the country. The latest intimations are that Congress will very shortly end its activities. Little further probing is anticipated. There is unparalleled lack of nervousness over the coming presidential campaign.

SINCE NOTHING but bad news has been counted upon from Europe, some modest measure of comfort has been derived from the turn events have, at least for the moment, taken.

THUS HAS it come about that sentiment is today less jumpy in the highest financial circles than it has been in weeks. The ranks of the optimists have been joined by a number of notable recruits.

U. S. FINANCIAL SENTIMENT BOLSTERED

End of Drain on U. S. Gold Stocks Relieves Tension; Foreign 'Fear' Baseless

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Financial sentiment has been bolstered moderately by the slaying of ghosts.

Indications that the gold withdrawals had approximately run their course have relieved tension.

As to the recent fears regarding whether foreigners would increase their potential call on gold through divesting themselves of American securities, the question arises as to whether that would be sound investment policy at current levels. From a long range viewpoint, sound equities and cheap bonds of solvent corporations might well prove more profitable than cash or its equivalent. A flight at prevailing prices from American equities into the risk bearing securities of other countries would seem to weaken an individual's investment portfolio.

Mr. Rukeyser

CAPACITY LIMITED

Apparently discerning foreigners have been reasoning along this line, for well-informed bankers report that buying of American securities by foreigners has been as large as the selling. The chief selling has been in foreign dollar bonds, but the absorptive capacity of the market for these is greatly limited, and there is accordingly a definite check on calls for gold resulting from such liquidation.

The recent strengthening of the dollar constitutes a recognition that the weakness was the reflection of artificial factors and baseless fears. The capacity of foreigners to take gold, when they are our debtors, resulted from the artificial situation created by the one-way moratorium and also by the Standstill Agreement with Germany.

In recent hysterical weeks, the market places of the world have discounted virtually every contingency except the possibility that political and business management would rise to the emergency and dig its way out of the prevailing muddle. Improvement alone has been undiscounted.

COMMODITIES LOW

A useful pamphlet, explaining the value of a substantial acceleration of public works at this time, has just come from the presses of the United States printing office. The document is entitled, "Establishment of Administration of Public Works," and consists of hearings before a subcommittee of the Committee on Education and Labor of the United States Senate on S. 2419, introduced by Senator La Follette.

Much of the debate going on currently over inflation and deflation is academic. Responsible leaders have committed themselves to a policy of credit expansion—or at least to arresting the contraction which until recently had been taking place at a devastating rate. If the gold exports are near an end, the expansion plan of the Federal Reserve System may result in an actual expansion in member bank loans and investments, as desired.

It seems desirable to raise commodity prices from their current acutely deflated level, because we have made our contracts, put out our bonds, capitalized our corporations, scaled our taxes, and everything else, on the price level that existed between 1922 and 1929, and it was not, in the opinion of many economists, a very inflated commodity price level.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Raw sugar was firm early today. Futures opened irregular. July contracts, after selling at .74c, advanced to .76c while December sold from .89c to .91c. The general market at midday was 1 to 2 points net higher. In refined the new price list of 3.80c, or 10 points above that of yesterday, became effective, but no new business was reported. Withdrawals against previous orders were said to be liberal.

Rise in U. S. Government Bonds Attributed to Short Covering

Active covering was reported to be continuing in long term United States government bonds which were under rather unusual pressure of short selling during recent weeks when nervousness over the position of the dollar held sway and gold was moving rapidly out of the country. This selling of governments, particularly the long-term issues, was intended as a "hedge" against possible depreciation of the dollar, the theory being, of course, that such development would be reflected in the government list. News on the gold export situation and continued strength in the dollar recently have served to allay such anxiety as might have been abroad, and in consequence closing out of such "hedges" is reflecting in a better tone in government bonds, in which the bulk of this selling centered.

In usually well-posted circles belief prevails that important foreign interests are showing a disposition to quickly accumulate goodly-sized quantities of American securities. Demand of that character is understood to be originating chiefly with several leading British investment trusts, though some traces of buying for French account are reported to have become discernible. The tenor of dispatches from London and Paris over the past fortnight indicating much better feeling with regard to the American business outlook, would seem to support the belief that interests abroad are disposed to pick up investment type securities here.

The old saying hat "it is hard to satisfy everyone" seems to be borne out at the moment by conditions around the market place. There is no doubt that the action of the market since the beginning of the week has been satisfying to the vast majority which after all finds reason for cheerfulness in the spectacle of rising prices. But the rather steady advance has nevertheless been disappointing to some followers of the tape, namely that element which, being over-cautious, has been sitting back waiting for a reaction to afford fresh buying levels. This element calculated on an extension of Saturday's reaction, but thus far the market has been literally refusing to react in any broad way.

Standard Brands, Inc., in April earned the month's proportion of the 30-cent quarterly common dividend requirement and although complete figures are not available for May, sales in that month and prospects for June, indicate earnings for the second quarter will cover the common dividend disbursement for that period. In the March quarter, this year, net was equal to 30 cents a share on 12,644,713 common shares after preferred dividends, with a surplus after common dividends of $56,592. In the June quarter of 1931, net profit after all charges was equal after preferred dividends to 33 cents a share on the common.

William G. Stuber, president of Eastman Kodak Company, upon his arrival from a six weeks inspection of the company's European properties, expressed optimism over Kodak's foreign prospects over the next few months. He said that the Nagel Camera Works in Germany, recently acquired by Eastman, was working overtime and that conditions in France were distinctly improved.

With Lausanne a source of important world affairs and Chicago offering its political news so important to the nation, together with Congress still in session, it is obvious that politics are the paramount factor in the markets of the world and will be for some little time to come. Many in Wall street believe that much will come out of the Lausanne meeting, because there is going to be the frankest kind of open discussion about world finances and economics.

That shorts in American Telephone have been "averaging."

That there has been revived pool activity in Worthington Pump.

That the steel industry is expecting substantial purchases of rail equipment.

PACIFIC CRUDE RISE LIKELY

LOS ANGELES, June 16.—The projected 25-cent increase in California crude oil prices, predicated on the reduction of state's output to 476,700 barrels daily by Friday, June 17, now appears assured. Higher gasoline prices are also probable as a result of the crude advance.

HOUSTON, Tex., June 16.—Per well allowable production for the East Texas oil field for the last half of June has been fixed at 51 barrels, a reduction of three barrels per well from the previous 15 days.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, June 16.—The bond market maintained a steady seat on the fence today. At the same time continued strength of the United States government list and the better tone of stocks did much to augment the improved sentiment which has recently come into bond trading.

NEW YORK, June 16.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

Sarah's Old Sweetheart, Now A Noted Lawyer, Takes Lynn to Lunch

CHAPTER VIII.

Dwight suggested gayly. "Let's celebrate, Sarah. Won't you and Miss Harding lunch with me? Please! I was just on my way out."

Sarah looked at Lynn. Lynn smiled. A sensational man, David Dwight. She had read about him, heard about him: she knew he had offices in the building. Why had Sarah never mentioned him?

Sarah said, "We'd like to, wouldn't we, Lynn?"

He listened to Sarah but he watched for Lynn's nod. He rose, satisfied. "I'll go in and talk to Norton," he said, "until you're ready."

He smiled at them both, and together they watched him walking lightly as a cat toward the inner office. Lynn could see Tom's shoulders. She could see Tom's head now as he moved into her line of vision. He was much taller than the older man. Yet Dwight did not seem dwarfed.

She said to Sarah delightedly, "Isn't that a grand break? I never knew you knew him. He's awfully attractive, isn't he?"

"Yes," Sarah said absently.

Lynn vanished to wash her hands, to powder her nose, to draw a lip-stick across her mouth with more than usual care. It was exciting, lunching with Sarah and David Dwight. He was an exciting man. A personality.

POPULAR FIGURE

If he argued for criminals, he also argued for lost causes. He knew everybody; people who lived on Park and Fifth; people who lived on side streets; backstage people; cinema people; people who lived in Paris, London, Rome. Policemen called him by name; gunmen knew him; dowagers knew him. He was the personal, legal representative of motion-picture stars, opera singers, millionaires, inventors, marathon runners, prize fighters, social leaders, murderers, thieves, bishops. His income was enormous and his extravagances a byword.

Lynn went downstairs and joined Sarah and Dwight, who were waiting.

Dwight said, "We'll go to a place I know." He laughed. "I lunched with Norton—on this Manning busines, Sarah—in one of the private rooms upstairs. Murals and pewter and noiseless waiters and a million-dollar view. And," he added, "good food. But it all smelled of money. How long have you for lunch? An hour? Make it an hour and a half. I know a place with sand on the floor and whitewash walls which has stood since the Revolution. We'll go there. Or would you rather not?" He spoke to Sarah, but his eyes were on Lynn.

Sarah said: "Anywhere you wish, David."

A DEAD LOVE

She had always said that; anywhere; anything. Anything you wish, David; all my love; all my youth; all my passion; all myself. Break down the barriers; trample the inhibitions; anything, David. She had said, in effect. It's over, then; it must be right because you say it's over. Anything you wish.

He couldn't marry her, 20 years ago. He was beginning to be known, then. She was nobody, a raw western girl, coming East to make her fortune. He had to marry well. To marry money. He had done so. Anything you wish, David.

Love had been over long ago; if it was over for David Dwight in 18 months and had lasted 10 years for Sarah, that was another matter. It was over now. Her work satisfied her as even he had not. She had for him an affection, a loyalty which could not be conquered by months, years or neglect.

Now, he came to see her occasionally. She rested and entertained him. It had been years since he had made any reference to her relations with him 20 years ago. They were friends. She disapproved of him; of his way of living; of his easy separation from his wife; of his utter lack of preoccupation with his children. But she was his friend.

Tom saw them go out, frowning. This man Dwight—what was he doing with Lynn and Sarah Dennett?

HIS OWN WAY

He was doing with Sarah that which he had always done. He was having his own way. Yet, as she stepped into his car and made room for Lynn and Dwight beside her and the car slid smoothly from the curb, she was not remembering that once she had been this man's sweetheart. She was not remembering that once she had struggled from madness to sanity, from suicidal desperation to a sort of apathy which approximated peace.

She was remembering nothing. You do not remember the things which are in your blood. You put no names to them. They are. They exist, part of you. You question them no longer.

And so Sarah, that woman who had been born proud and not humble, but whom love had made docile and amazed, said, "It's nice of you to take us out, David," and he answered, "It's sweet of you both to take pity on me and come;" and Lynn asked tritely, "Isn't it the most gorgeous day?" And Dwight knew that it was. He liked falling in love. When he was in love he was young. And when he was young he was unafraid.

Why was Sarah not warned? Having known David Dwight as something less a man than a force of nature, should she not now be on her guard?

But 20 years had passed; and she belonged to the women who make a fetish of possession; of the first man, the first love, which is the last. She had forgotten embraces, save in the subconscious darkness of her nature, which she never contemplated now; she had forgotten days and nights; she had forgotten tears and insanity. But she had not forgotten obedience. How should she know that in asking her to luncheon—"You and Miss Harding"—he was asking her for Lynn? He knew.

Lynn, returning to the office from the ancient tavern to which Dwight had taken her and Sarah, was late for the first time in her Seacoast Company life. She flew in and went at the work on her desk with considerable animation.

"Well," commented Miss Marple, shutting a file with emphasis, "you look as if someone had left you a million and you'd started out to spend it!" She glanced carelessly at the clock.

"I had a luncheon engagement," Lynn said guiltily.

"Tell that to Sarah the Slave Driver!"

"She was part of it," Lynn said triumphantly.

She stayed late at the office that evening to catch up. When she reached home Jennie was there ahead of her.

Lynn was greeted by a blast of blue smoke and, rushing into the kitchen, found Jennie shoving some curious-looking pork chops around on a frying pan.

"For Lord's sake, you'll have the fire department out."

"I was telephoning," admitted Jennie. "How did I know the blasted things would go up in smoke? Here!"

She shoved the frying pan into Lynn's hand, removed Lynn's hat and bore it off to the living room closet. Returning, she swung herself up on the kitchen table and lighted a cigaret.

Synopsis

Young and pretty Lynn Harding is ambitious for a career. She is a clerk in the Seacoast Bank and Trust Company where she meets Tom Shepard, secretary to one of the bank's vice presidents. One day, Jennie Le Grande, a model for a concern in the building is taken ill and Lynn takes her home. Lynn likes Jennie in spite of her sophisticated attitude. Tom objects to Jennie. He professes his love to Lynn but she refuses to take him seriously, although she also loves him. When he gives her a diamond ring at Christmas, Lynn explains that they can't bind each other as they have their careers to make first. She wears the ring in her right hand. When Jennie's roommate leaves to be married, Lynn rejects Tom's offer of marriage. Later, Sarah Dennet' Lynn's friend and chief, introduces her to David Dwight, the noted lawyer.

Now Go On

Adventures Bring White Flag and Letter

My mother-in-law has two controlling emotions which might also be dubbed "ruling passions." One of them is her intense love for anything savoring of melodrama. The other is her martyr complex. As she hesitated, after my suggestion that she might wish to go downstairs and see what the small boys had discovered instead of my doing so, I wondered which of the two emotions palpably struggling in her breast would triumph.

The martyr complex won, but it was so tempered by an evident sincere desire to let me have a chance to go first to the children, that I mentally apologized to my mother-in-law for my secret diagnosis of her mental processes.

"I trust I know my place, Margaret," she began. "You are the mother of Richard. Second, I am only his grandmother. It is your place to find out what the children have been doing. Besides, I have been entrusted with the care of Baby Faith, and I am not going to abandon that trust for anything else. It is my paramount duty."

Waiting for nothing further, I hurried out of the door and downstairs to the veranda, reaching there just in time to meet the group returning from the expedition in the pasture fence.

"Oh, Mums, we found somep'n," Junior said excitedly. "A regular white flag, only it was just an old piece of cloth, but it meant just the same as a white flag, didn't it, Rod?"

LETTER ATTACHED

"You bet!" Roderick answered, "and that isn't all. There was a—"

"Letter fastened to the cloth," both boys finished in vociferous chorus, neither of them willing to let the other have the triumph of an exclusive broadcast.

"But we don't know what's in the letter yet," Roderick said.

"But Uncle Harry and Dad know," Junior chimed in. "They opened it and then shut it up again. They both said us boys could see it when we got inside the house."

"Come in, all of you," I said smiling, "for I, too, am anxious to see what is in the letter."

"As far as actual knowledge goes," Dicky drawled, "you and the boys are as well off as we of the great master minds are. Here's the letter. Look at it for yourselves."

But when he had taken the letter from its envelope, I noticed that he kept it in his own hands, compelling us to look at it over his shoulder, and I guessed that he shared Mother Graham's reluctance to have the paper touched by the children, who already had discarded their gloves.

"Why! It's in Chinese!" Hank exclaimed.

"Mayn't we read the top line out loud?" Junior asked, fairly jumping up and down in his excitement.

"Yes, mayn't we?" Roderick chimed in. "We saw it first."

BOYS SATISFIED

"But Hank and Bill saw it almost as soon," Junior said, with obvious reluctance but with an innate sense of justice which has been his from babyhood, and which I have assiduously tried to cultivate.

"Which one of us?" Roderick asked, jealously.

"One of us will read down to here," Junior pointed with his finger, and I saw Dicky move the paper back so that it should not come in contact with his hand, "and the other can finish it up. Will you take first or last, Rod?"

Mentally I applauded my small son, who evidently was trying valiantly to remember the principles of fair play; but Roderick, once convinced that no one was trying to get ahead of him, was equally generous.

"I don't care," he said, "take first or last, it's all the same to me."

"No you choose," Junior insisted.

"My dear 'Alphonse and Gaston,'" Harry Underwood said, "we'll save time and choose for you. Junior, you read the first part and stop here," he indicated the place with a pointing forefinger, "and then, Roderick, you finish it."

We had all seen the words at the top of the letter, but we listened attentively as Junior piped: "We shall no come to you again." He stopped, and Roderick took up the saga: "Please give this letter to the Chinese in your house."

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

The regular weekly meeting of the Davis Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club was called to order by Manager J. A. McDonald. The meeting opened with the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" after which the pupils of Miss Barth's Dancing School entertained. Catherine Dublin cleverly executed a toe dance and an acrobatic dance, both of which were well received by the youngsters. Peggy Calogero sang two songs of the blues type and the Marcus brothers gave a splendid exhibition of a tap routine.

Following the pupils from Miss Barth's, the boys and girls were entertained by several of the members of the Arsenal Chapter. John Senick, Hart and Jenkins, Dorothy Andrews, Lois Richards, Josephine Baron, Winnie Fundy and Betty Richards all sang various songs much to the delight of the little members of the Davis Chapter. This was followed by David Levy, usher at the Davis, singing for the kiddies and then leading them in community singing until the meeting was adjourned.

IDEAL PLACE

Mothers are fast learning that the ideal places for their youngsters on these warm Saturday mornings are the regular meetings of the Sun-Telegraph Warner Teaters Junior Komic-Club held each week at the following theaters: Arsenal, Ambridge, Belmar, Cameraphone, Davis, Enright, Etna-Harris, Grand (Greensburg), Kenyon, Manor, Memorial (McKeesport), Mt. Oliver-Harris, Plaza, Rowland (Wilkinsburg), Schenley, South Hills, Washington, (Washington, Pa.)

At each of the meetings the youngsters are always assured of more than two hours of good, clean, wholesome fun and entertainment such as was offered at the Davis Theater last week.

HOW TO JOIN

If your boy or girl is not a member of the Sun-Telegraph Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, send their names to the Secretary, together with their address, school they attend, date and year of their birth and a membership card and button will be mailed them.

During the Republican Convention, now being held in Chicago, "Uncle Bob and Betty" will read for all the little and big grown-ups the comics of the Sun-Telegraph, over radio station WCAE, at 5:45 p. m., instead of the usual time, 6 o'clock. Be sure to have your radio tuned in 15 minutes minutes earlier tonight, so that you can laugh with "Uncle Bob and Betty."

A Pressing Suit

WHITEN TEETH a shade a day

Yellow, stained teeth are not natural. For proof start using Kolynos—a half-inch of this scientific dental cream on a dry brush, twice daily. In 3 days your teeth will look fully 3 shades whiter!

This remarkable dental cream cleans teeth so much whiter than other preparations you've used because it contains two remarkable ingredients. One—the finest cleansing agent known—foams into and cleans out every fissure, removes decay-causing debris, erases ugly tartar and yellow. While the second ingredient kills millions of germs that swarm into the mouth and cause most tooth and gum troubles. Thus the mouth and teeth are quickly cleaned right down to the beautiful, natural white enamel without injury.

Now if you want gleaming white teeth free from decay, and firm, pink gums free from disease start using Kolynos, with its unique Dry-Brush Technique. You'll never regret it. Buy a tube today.

CONGRESSMAN FRISBY OFFERS AMERICA A LOCK OF HIS HAIR!

Above picture, snapped in Chicago especially for posterity, shows historic conference between club women and Congressman Frisby called to find ways and means to get out a bigger vote. "It is resolved," says a statement issued by the trio, "that only fifty per cent of the people vote at elections. To remedy this evil, Congressman Horace Walpole Frisby—a gentleman if there ever was one—has graciously offered to present a lock of his hair to every woman who casts a vote for him next November. Those who accept this challenge will be pleased to learn that a lock of Napoleon's hair recently sold for $843.10."

There Is Danger This Year for Either Party To Dodge the Dry Issue

It is trying to reconcile candor and duplicity on the prohibition issue. This is more of a task than even the "best minds" of the "only party fit to govern" are equal to.

The policy of straddle, to which the Republican party has stooped for the last 12 years, is now played out. It has no promise of electoral success. Shameless as it has always been, it is no longer a formula of victory at the polls.

Public opinion is no longer enfeebled by a division of sentiment on this burning issue. The record of national prohibiton has been made, and it is a fearsome record, from which the people of the United States, regardless of party, are turning in horror and disgust.

Every energy which the nation possessed has been thrown, to no effect, into the effort to enforce the prohibition law. It has proved INCAPABLE of enforcement.

Now the people see clearly, in the spread of corruption, in the growth of crime, in the demoralization of American life, a train of evils which can be arrested and cured only by attacking their source. This source they now perceive and know to be the Eighteenth Amendment.

No longer can the people be deceived by the stratagems of the party trimmer, to whom nothing is so abhorrent as facing an issue.

Of course, a convention of politicians and place-holders would like to dodge. It is their training and instinct to dodge all issues. But the time has arrived when this propensity will not avail them.

The Republican party, as well as the Democratic party, must SPEAK and speak in clear and unmistakable LANGUAGE.

The demand of the people to be accorded the opportunity to declare and enforce their judgment on the subject of prohibition, is beyond the power of any party to resist. Equivocation on this question will spell disaster to any party who resorts to it.

If the Republican party is not FOR the people in their determination to rid themselves of prohibition, then the Republican party is AGAINST the people.

Relief Need Urgent

Talbot Act Brings Unexpected Problem Requiring Prompt Legislative Action.

The need for prompt action on unemployment relief has made an extra session of the Legislature imperative. Charitable organizations supported by private contributions are nearing the end of their resources. The Talbot act, which appropriated $10,000,000 for relief work, has brought another problem in its wake. No provision was made to raise new money to meet this drain on the state treasury. As a result, this fund must be deducted from state appropriations to hospitals, educational institutions and the mothers' assistance fund.

Because of the lack of state funds, the Talbot act has turned out to be an expedient of only temporary value. The state is now taking money away from its permanent charitable institutions to apply it to the most pressing emergencies.

Unless the Legislature is called into session to clear up the situation, hospitals will be forced to close their doors to charity cases and some of the smaller institutions will have to suspend all work.

Operation of hospitals is further complicated by the fact that these institutions have not been notified how the 24.16 per cent reduction in their appropriations is to be made. If the entire cut is taken from their quarterly checks expected in July there would be no balance due to the institutions for money they actually have spent during the past three months. If the reduction is spread over future quarterly checks, these institutions would be compelled to partially curtail their operations. But in the present uncertain situation, these organizations do not know what course to pursue.

Hours of Labor

President Baker, of Tech, Predicts United States Never Again Will Need So Many.

Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology, addressing the graduating class of that institution, probably was prophetic in predicting that the United States never again will "require as many hours of labor as it has in the past." The pioneering day is gone, he said, and we are entering a new phase. Of course, it is a mere quibble to state that we are still pioneering, and that we always pioneer at the beginning of a new era, and it appears that is the threshold at which we now are. The point is that, as Dr. Baker points out, we are at the end of the road we have been following.

Where shall we go from here? There is a call for guides. Many would like to be leaders. What difference will it make whether we protest about following? No difference whatever, if we may rely upon the infallibility of "economic determinism," a material sort of philosophy that goes into the plane of fore-ordination in the matter of cause and effect.

The technical pioneer has made it easier for man to serve man. Light has been bottled, ice is made to order, we fly with the birds, time of processes has been shortened, manual work has been supplanted to a large extent. But the manual worker must eat. He must be the buyer of what the machine can make, but cannot use. A real problem.

But, like all problems, it contains the terms of its own answer, which Dr. Baker hints at in stating that the United States never again will require the hours of labor it has in the past. And in the answer will be found a greater problem—that of adjustment.

That lets the chips fall where they may.
And are they not, when all is said,

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 16.—Actors in serious dramatic roles are frequently called upon to preserve decorum under trying circumstances. Any number of plots to evoke laughter during tense scenes has kept entire companies in hot water. There, for instance, was the trap set for Bert Lytell.

He was appearing in a skit—The Valiant—at vaudeville's Valhalla. The Palace. A group of 18 friends were seeing him from the front row. There is an agonizing moment when Lytell as a condemned prisoner looks out at the audience just before walking to the gallows.

It is the betrayal of a soul in torment, steeling himself for a hero's death. When Lytell gazed out he caught sight of 18 fiery red mustaches of the handle-bar variety attached to as many lips. He did not give way to a snort of hilarity until he reached the wings. But he could not take a curtain call.

The late Cyril Maude, on the opening night of an American engagement, noticed two London cronies in a stage box in full evening dress. A curtain screened them from the audience. When he looked at them again, during a scene alone on the stage, they were in athletic shirts and shorts, calmly swaying palm leaf fans.

On the night of his divorce, a leading man had as a front row customer his recent wife. She was a comedienne who could simulate a drunken hiccup. During a tender love-making scene, as he whispered soft nothings, she interpolated every few minutes with ankle-deep regurgitations.

But the greatest backstage hoax was perpetrated by Leon Erroll and Walter Catlett during the run of "Sally" at the New Amsterdam. At the end of the first act Erroll announced that among celebrity visitors was the noted Italian Count Luigi, war ace and richest young bachelor in Italy. The count had arrived by limousine with a motorcycle escort and in tow of a foreign- looking delegation. His lapel hung with medals and across the white expanse of shirt front was the familiar red ribbon. He was introduced with cyclonic applause, and after the play met the cast. He kissed the hand of Marilyn Miller and several girls in their enthusiasm kissed him. The count was—and still is—Tony, the bootblack at the Lambs.

The eagle-eyed John Chapman discovers New York's only screever in a block of West Fifty-seventh street. In London, the screever or sidewalk artist is common, especially near Trafalgar Square and London Bridge approaches. The screever draws pictures with colored chalks and depends upon pitched coins for his livelihood.

Fannie Hurst's first view of a film version of one of her novels was something to remember. The hero in the transition became a fragile female blonde.

In a taxi today my wife and I were struck with the resemblance of the driver's license photograph to my own dour visage. There was little resemblance, however, in the flesh. Tapping at his window, I slowed him up to point out the similarity. He got out, looked at it, then at me. "Some," he admitted grudgingly, "but that was snapped after a rough sea voyage."

My truest photographic likeness came out of hastily snapped passport pictures, so universally the target for jeers. They are the only ones ever to do me justice. But perhaps in my case not so much justice is needed as mercy.

It has been a struggle to round out this column what with every sort of an interruption from a visitor needing $600—the flatterer—within the hour, to three fires in the neighborhood and an elevator accident around the corner. I'm sitting here now rather expecting the ceiling plaster to come down with a crash.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

The worst menace to modern life isn't booze, or dope, or the crime wave, or crooked shenanigans in politics or business.

Human beings have always wanted some excitement; always needed it. Life rots without any excitement, just as it ravels out with too much. But, under the natural order of things, the human animal got his excitement in occasional, fairly infrequent spurts, like the other brutes. Between times he had large, wholesome periods of monotony, during which he recovered and reinforced his emotional balance—and maybe, if had the makings, he did a little thinking.

Now within the last 20 years, this slow natural tempo of life has been knocked to smithereens. The average youngster travels more, sees more in a month than his grandfather did in a whole life time.

Even if he does not seek it, excitement is constantly seeking him. The streets are a bedlam. Lights whirl before him. People rush by him. Street cars rattle. Whistles shrill. Horns toot. Automobiles roar by. The whole scene revolves in a movement, light, sound.

Every time a modern youngster steps into a street, that thing happens to him. It happens even if he doesn't step into a street. Within his own home telephones shriek at him, radios yammer, papers and magazines offer an endless stream of exciting pictures and stories.

If he lives in the average small apartment, people jostle him almost as much as they do on the street. He never knows solitude or silence. He has no chance to think for himself, to learn to depend on himself—no time or place to recover his normal tempo or balance.

What happens? Plenty. But two very important and dangerous things certainly happen.

First, he becomes conditioned to excitement. His nervous system acquires the habit of excitement. He comes to need it as a drunkard needs booze, as a drug addict needs dope. He does not know how to do without it. He is miserable if deprived of it—wants "something doing" all the time.

Millions of American people, old and young, are living in that way. They have practically ceased to have independent personalities. They have almost no place in the world of reality; fail, if they try to face it. Excitement is the one issue in their lives. It is at once their goal and their stimulation, their alibi, their substitute for action, their compensation and their escape.

And all the time something even more deadly is happening. When the senses lose their fine edge of discrimination, so does the mind and the spirit. Satiated flesh means a dulled soul that can no longer distinguish the fine line between right and wrong.

Remember those times when you have been "dog tired"—too tired to care whether schoo[illegible]ept or not?" Modern minds are [illegible]og-tired, slugged by continuous [illegible]er-stimulation—punch drunk!

And the soul within that drunken flesh also staggers. It no longer recoils from evil, or shrinks at vulgarity, or thrills to beauty.

Why are such frightful things happening? Why are there increasing numbers of people who seem absolutely immune to every argument of decency—bright people, impossible to qualify them as insane? Yet it is equally impossible to arouse pity in them, or shame, or a sense of fairness. How can such things be?

BECAUSE, AS A RACE, WE ARE BECOMING PUNCH DRUNK FROM EXCITEMENT.

We are never still. Life no longer has a chance to work her slow, quiet, regenerative miracles within us. We do not know how to think. We are losing our ability to feel.

WE ARE BECOMING THE MOST DANGEROUS BRUTES THAT ROAMED THE EARTH.

The Passing of Hoover As a Liberal Leader

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

WHEN Herbert C. Hoover first entered the White House, he was still widely respected as a Liberal.

As he approaches the end of his present administration, his reputation for progressivism is at a low ebb.

His summary rejection of the proposal by a group of eminent business executives for the re-creation of a peace-time equivalent of a council of national defense is typical of an attitude that has been disappointing to Liberals.

In his letter of negation, Mr. Hoover sidestepped the underlying issue as to the need of economic co-ordination and planning by asserting: "It is my impression that but few of these gentlemen are familiar with the law bearing on this subject."

In an earlier memorandum, the President indicated that we have in the United States enough boards and commissions already. That is true, but there is, nevertheless, a need of fewer and better boards and commissions. Furthermore, the existing multiplicity of commissions does not meet the crying need for a co-ordinating, integrating agency, manned by a bi-partisan group of the ablest business minds in the country.

Except in emergencies, when belated machinery is hurriedly created, the President still thinks in terms of "rugged individualism," despite widespread evidences that old-fashioned laissez faire has broken down.

THE creation of the Young committee of bankers and industrialists in New York and of similar committees in other cities constitutes practical recognition of the fact that co-operation can achieve more than anarchy and unbridled individualism.

These very committees, created for a special emergency, may well demonstrate the creative utility of permanent machinery for industrial planning and economic co-ordination.

It would seem that the President's economic philosophy is directed backwards—toward 1929 or perhaps 1913.

On the other hand, creative statesmanship should be seeking to devise improved social machinery for balancing potential huge production with a high standard of living for the people.

The way out of the paradox of privation amidst plenty lies in diffusing the good things of life among the general public more widely than ever before.

WE respectfully direct the President's attention to an admirable statement of the problem and the opportunity by Sir Arthur Salter, British economist, in his new book entitled "Recovery: The Second Effort," in which he declares:

"We cannot return to the unregulated competition of the last century; an unwillingness to accept some of its social consequences and the development of modern industrial technique together make that impossible. But we need not, therefore, aim at a regulated world from which both individual competition and freedom of enterprise are excluded. To take either course is to fail in the specific task of this age. That task is not to find a middle way, but a new way; to fashion a system in which competition and individual enterprise on the one hand, and regulation and general planning on the other, will be so adjusted that the abuses of each will be avoided and the benefits of each retained. We need to construct such a framework of law, custom, institutions, and planned guidance and direction that the thrust of individual effort and ambition can only operate to the general advantage."

Mr. President, if we are to move forward, we need more than a program of negation and equivocation.

TEASING DISLIKED

By Winifred Black

No, I don't like to be teased. To be quite honest about it, I hate to be teased, and it's all I can do not to hate the one who tries to tease me.

I don't see any fun in it, myself. Life is full enough of little worries and small disappointments and petty griefs at the very best. What amusement is there in making anyone on earth even slightly uncomfortable, if you can help it?

The men at the office like him. His boss likes him, and the office boys are crazy about him.

Children all run to him the minute they see him, and not a woman in the world knows him for an hour without wanting to tell him how queer her Billy is acting, and what had she better do about it.

I never had been able to see what there is about this man that makes people like him so well.

But the other night we sat together, a few friends and I, and the popular man was there. He was very silent, and I looked at him and thought!

"I don't see what there is to him. I think he's sort of stupid, myself."

And then the tease began to tease. He teased the awkward, half-grown boy about a girl he had seen the boy [illegible] home from school with that afternoon, and the boy blushed and stammered and twitched his feet till they looked as big as a field tractor, each one of them.

"Did you notice," said the popular man, "that Whim Wham Consolidated is creeping up?"

"No," cried the tease. "Is it in tonight's paper?"

"Um hum," said the popular man; and the tease hunted for the paper, and when he found it there wasn't a word in it about Whim Wham Consolidated.

The popular man said he must have been mistaken, but the half-grown boy had taken the chance to slip out of the room and get away from the tease.

Three separate times in that one evening I saw this same man step quietly in between the tease and his victim; and I stopped wondering why everybody likes him.

The tease is a man of quick wit and ready tongue, and I suppose he finds a kind of elfish delight in leading people in and out of puzzling and embarrassing situations. I never look at him but I think of the will-o'-the-wisp—that mischievous elf who loved to lead tired travelers off the road into a bog, and then run laughing on his light-hearted way.

I wish the tease wouldn't be a tease; I like him so much. But when he finds pleasure in other peoples' discomfort, I can't help feeling that he is a little heartless.
